OVATION FOR GOVERNOR BY CROWD THAT FILLS TEMPLE

CURLEY NOT TO SPEAK ON STAGE WITH FITZGERALD

For a long time last night it seemed certain that the Walsh and Barry Ratification Meeting in Tremont Temple would have to worry along without James M. Curley. The Mayor was sulking in his tent. He refused to go on because John F. Fitzgerald was on the bill. Later, he took up a position near the Temple and waited for the word to come that Fitzgerald had left for another meeting in the suburbs. Then Curley entered the hall and climbed onto the platform.

Democrats and Independents Cheer Walsh at Monster Rally That Marks Real Opening of Campaign—Women Wave Flags

Democrats and Independents packed Tremont Temple to its capacity last night to hear Governor David I. Walsh and his associates give an account of their stewardships. The great audience was enthusiastic. It lost no opportunity to let Walsh, Barry, et als understand that they still have public confidence.

The rally was one of four held last night in Boston, opening the Democratic campaign. Richard H. Long of Framingham, presided.

The Temple speakers included: Former-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, during whose presence Mayor Curley declined to take part; Curley himself, who hurried to the Temple from a recent meeting as soon as they had telephoned him that Fits had left for another meeting; Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden, and everybody on the State ticket, the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State Donahue, State Treasurer Mansfield, State Auditor Pope and Attorney-General Thomas J. Boynton.

Governor Walsh was a late arrival, having first been heard at campaign meetings in Roxbury and Jamaica Plain. The Governor got a wonderful reception, the great audience rising, cheering and waving flags, while the band played "Hail to the Chief!"

Governor Walsh's straight-from-the-shoulder speech, delivered and applauded as few political addresses have been enunciated and received hereabouts for some time, is covered in full elsewhere in the Sunday AMERICAN. The demonstration for the Governor must have cheered his heart. "A vote of confidence," the ex-Mayor called it.

Treasurer Mansfield opened proceedings by telling of his plan of disposing of bonds to the people, "instead of to syndicates of bankers," a cold of cutting the denominations of bonds to $100, placing them within the reach of the poor, but thrifty. He told how his predecessors have all come downtown to be vice-presidents of banks. Mansfield got an ovation scarcely less than that given to the Governor

RESPECTS TO CUSHING.

Lieutenant-Governor Barry said of his Republican rival, Grafton D. Cushing, that the latter belongs in the "House of Lords." Samuel W. McCall, Mr. Barry said, was one of seven men in Congress who voted against government supervision of the railroads.

Attorney-General Boynton stuck to the single issue of how he has done the work of his office. After fourteen years of litigation he has seen Haverhill at last get cheap natural gas. After twelve years of litigation, he has stopped the pollution of the Neponset River. And his investigation blocked the hopes of the greedy who would have jumped the price of necessities and blamed it onto "the war in Europe."

Auditor Frank Pope, whose election is conceded even by Republicans, displayed his usual good speaking form and said a number of fine things about all his associates.

EPIGRAMS BY DONAHUE.

Secretary of State Frank Donahue had a speech full of snappy epigram. Of McCall's declaration for "economy," Mr. Donahue said: "Generalities are safe and 'economy' is generally the last resort of a candidate devoid of genuine issues."

Former Mayor Fitzgerald, delivering one of his familiar we-all-love-dear-old-Boston speeches, declared that Grafton D. Cushing, a native of the city should be in better business than carrying Western Massachusetts trying to scare intelligent people with the wornout bogie of "because the Republicans are Democrats!" What Cushing has been like him dislike, Mr. Fitzgerald declared amid applause, is the record for humanitarian legislation that Democrats have been making in Massachusetts State House for the past four years.

Mayor Waits Outside the Temple Until Predecessor Has Spoken and Left—Notifies Committee Not to Book Them Together

First the Mayor said he wouldn't—and then he did.

Mr. Curley wasn't going to the Walsh and Barry meeting in the Temple last night, because former Mayor Fitzgerald was also billed to speak. Along about 10 o'clock, however, waiting in a retreat nearby, the Mayor was tipped that the ex-Mayor had left. Then Mr. Curley put in an appearance and took his place on the speakers' platform. Later he made a speech and shared with the Governor the big applause of the night.

The reporters learned early in the day that the Mayor had decided not to go to Tremont Temple last night. When they asked him why, Mr. Curley said:

"Wait until next Wednesday."

It developed later in the day that Mayor Curley had told Chairman O'Leary of the State Committee that headquarters must choose, and choose quickly—before next Wednesday at the latest—between John F. Fitzgerald and James M. Curley as a campaign drawing card. The Mayor positively will not appear, he says, on the same platform with Fitzgerald. It hurts his dignity.

CHANGES HIS MIND.

Mr. Curley changed his mind so quickly last night that there is no telling how soon other chronicles of the Curley-Fits feud may have to be re-written again, but this is what the Mayor said early in the evening to a reporter for the Sunday AMERICAN:

"I am willing to do anything within the bounds of reason to help re-elect Governor Walsh, but under no circumstances will I speak from the same platform with former Mayor Fitzgerald, no matter what happens.

"I haven't spoken to Fitzgerald since last January, nor do I ever intend to say so much as one word to him again.

"An Mayor of Boston, to break this rule for any reason would be a distinct sign of weakness on my part.

"After what passed between us previous to the city election I would forefit the right to be respected if I took any other stand.

JUSTIFIED, SAYS MAYOR.

Yes, let me put it even stronger, if I were to speak to Fitzgerald, or speak from the same platform with him, I would lose my own self-respect.

The people of Boston knew full well, or should know, just how Fitzgerald acted toward me immediately before and after I was elected to the office which I now hold.

For Governor Walsh, I am willing to go the limit, but I must draw the line at Fitzgerald-addressed rallies.

To swallow the insults that Fitzgerald has offered me, even for the Governor's good, is now and always will be, impossible.

That there may be no mistake as regards my attitude toward Governor Walsh, however, I wish it understood that I am ready to take the stump for him at the earliest possible moment.

I have so informed the Democratic State Committee, and expect to hear from them next Wednesday at the latest as to whether or not they wish me to speak for the State ticket during this campaign.

If so, and providing that I am not asked to address any meeting which Fitzgerald speaks at, well and good.

In order that there might be no misunderstanding about it, the Sunday AMERICAN reporter read this statement over to the Mayor.

"Right," said Mr. Curley.

Former Mayor Fitzgerald said at midnight that he guessed he wouldn't discuss either Mayor Curley or his statement.

"I am glad the Mayor finally showed up at the Temple," Mr. Fitzgerald said, "and I am inclined to think that his 'statement' was only another one of those Public Garden jokes."

Spent Nothing; Got Nothing; 'Ezry' Proves It

And so you stand up there and say that a fellow can get by in Massachusetts politics without spending a cent. Is that the idea? It is, hey?

Well, how about 'Ezry" A. Hobbs, out to Framingham?

You don't know, hey?

Well, they coaxed "Ezry" to try for the Republican nomination for the House out to Framingham and "Ezry" allowed that he had no money to waste on such tomfoolery, and the boys said he wouldn't need any—what! A popular fellow like "Ezry" Hobbs!—so "Ezry" he run.

The result appeared yesterday, when Mr. Hobbs, in accordance with the law, filed at the State House a return of his "campaign expenses."

This was Mr. Hobbs' letter to the Secretary of State:

"I allowed my name to be used to show what could be done without the use of money; result—nothing."

Woman, 90, Saves Pet Hen by Surgery

"Why send for a surgeon when you can repair your own hens?

Mrs. Joanna McEacheron of No. 98 Buttonwood street, Dorchester, is nearly ninety years old and has a flock of pet fowl.

Her oldest and most treasured hen, "Betsie," ran into the kitchen, stuttering and clucking in distress. "Betsie" was on the "dangerous" list from something which had lodged in her throat.

Mrs. McEacheron made a slit in "Betsie's throat with a sharp knife and extracted a piece of hard celery. Mrs. McEacheron sewed up the slit with needle and white thread and "Betsie" trotted out much better. "Betsie" is now laying eggs at a double rate to pay her doctor's bill.

New U. S. Record for Sustained Flight

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—W. C. Robinson, a young Iowa aviator, today captured the record for sustained flight across country. This was in a flight from Des Moines which was intended to end in Chicago, but which really ended in Kentland, Ind., 150 miles southeast. Robinson covered the journey in 4h. 26m., which is estimated to be between 85 and 90 miles an hour. The distance between Des Moines and Chicago is 300 miles, and as the aviator flew 81 miles southeast of the city, it was estimated that he actually covered at least 400 miles.

Steamer Noordam Hits Mine; 7 Hurt

LONDON, Oct. 17.—An Amsterdam dispatch to Lloyd's News says that the Holland-American line steamer Noordam struck a mine between Dover and the Dutch coast, and that seven persons aboard the ship were injured by the explosion. The Noordam had been held at Falmouth, after seizure in the English Channel by British cruisers, and searched for contraband. She was released and was proceeding to Rotterdam when she struck the mine.

Fair Weather for Today Is Promised

The amount of rainfall for the month up to last night was 1.23 inches.

SAY LOWELL EX-MAYOR WAS KNIFED

Police Declare Charwoman Attacked Commissioner G. H. Brown With Pair of Shears.

CHARGED HE DISGRACED HER

Woman's Daughter Is Said to Have Attempted to Restrain Her Mother.

LOWELL, Oct. 17.—Mayor Dennis J. Murphy, in his capacity as head of the Police Department, issued an official statement today in which he said that the mysterious wounds on either side of the nose of Finances Commissioner George H. Brown (the former policeman Mayor) are the result of being stabbed with a pair of shears in the hands of Mrs. Annie Mullaney, one of the City Hall charwomen.

The Mayor says that Mrs. Mullaney accused Brown of disgracing her, stabbed his face with the shears, then threw a half-brick at Brown, but missed him because her aim was diverted by the interference of her daughter, Miss Vera Mullaney, clerk in the street department's office.

Commissioner Brown had said he cut his face shaving. The attack took place Thursday morning in City Hall. Brown has not been seen in the city since Thursday afternoon. He is said to be in New York.

The Mayor's official version of the most sensational affray in City Hall for years is as follows:

WOMAN ENTERED OFFICE.

"On Thursday morning last, about 9 a. m., Commissioner Brown was in the back office of the Street Department with another man whose name is known. The door between the back office and the front office was closed at the time. A tap came at the door, but it was not opened. After a wait of five seconds or thereabouts Mrs. Annie Mullaney, one of the cleaners at the City Hall, opened the door and entered, making for Commissioner Brown.

"She stated that she had been disgraced by him and drew from somewhere a pair of shears or scissors and attacked the commissioner, cutting him on both sides of the face.

"Mr. Brown grabbed her wrists and she then dropped the shears or scissors. Mrs. Mullaney then secured a half-brick which was "in the office and made to throw it at Mr. Brown. Her eldest daughter, Vera, caught her mother by one arm and, pulling her at the time, caused the brick to go amiss at the mark at which it had been aimed.

"Mr. Brown then rushed out from the office and down to the lower floor of City Hall, where he had his wounds washed and covered with court plaster in the city dispensary."

With brown at the time of the attack was Street Commissioner Daniel H. Morse. Later Brown returned to Morse's office, and in reply to telephone inquiry said: "I was shaving with Morse and, not being used to it, I cut myself on both sides of the nose."

CHARWOMAN TWELVE YEARS.

Mrs. Annie Mullaney has been one of the five City Hall charwomen for twelve years. She recently bought a $4,500 house on the Belvidere heights, the "quinity" part of the city. Five members of her family have been on the city payroll.

Vera Mullaney has been clerk in the street department six years. Her sister, Annie, has been clerk there two years.

Brown, after being defeated for re-election for Mayor, was elected street commissioner under the new charter three years ago. He made one of the Mullaney boys, Joseph, his chauffeur. Two years ago, when re-elected to the Municipal Council, Brown was made head of the finance department, which includes the assessors. Joseph Mullaney and his brother Thomas were given work in the assessors' office.

When Brown ran out of the street commissioner's private office, with blood streaming down his face, he ran into the main office and headed for the corridor. It was then that Miss Vera Mullaney, who was at her desk in the main office, followed, according to Mayor Murphy's statement, by grasping her mother's arm, just as Mrs. Mullaney was hurling a half-brick after Brown. The half-brick was part of a sample one sent to the street commissioner for approval.

Brown is a candidate for re-election to the Municipal Council, as his two-year term expires at the end of the year. His opponents say this episode means his certain defeat.

MYSTERY OF FULLER CASE IS DEEPENED

Lawyer Strangely Assaulted in Roslindale Home Doesn't Know Who Clubbed Him.

HE EXONERATES MAN HELD

Victim Near Death; Police Think He Is Concealing Name of Assailant.

Investigation yesterday into the vicious and probably fatal clubbing of Frank M. Fuller, the State street lawyer, in his bungalow home at No. 55 Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, Friday night, served only to deepen the mystery.

William F. Sullivan, twenty-seven years of No. 22 School street, Somerville, was held in West Roxbury District Court yesterday for investigation, which he admitted, and for assault and battery on Fuller, which he denies.

Harry H. Nayor of No. 6 Castlegate road, Roxbury, who has an office in the same group of offices where Fuller is located, at No. 53 State street, said last night that Fuller denied yesterday that Sullivan was his assailant, though he did not know who the real assailant was.

Lieutenant Hazlitt of West Roxbury police station also said last night that he did not think Sullivan is guilty of the actual assault, but his explanation of being in Fuller's house at that time is not satisfactory yet.

It also developed last night, according to Mr. Nayor, that Fuller's name was formerly Pugh, but he changed it. Mr. Nayor said:

CHANGED HIS NAME.

"Fuller's original name was Pugh. He came from the West. He has been in Boston fourteen years. Ten years ago, not liking his name, he assumed the name of Fuller. He was formerly connected with a furniture trade paper. He specialized in furniture collections.

"I saw Fuller at Forest Hills Hospital today. He recognized me. I asked who assaulted him. He said he didn't know. I asked, 'Was it Sullivan?' He said, 'No, it was not Sullivan. He came after the deed was done.'

"I notified Fuller's sister, Mrs. Mary Pugh of No. 629 Eastern parkway, Brooklyn. A niece of Fuller arrived tonight from New York and went to the hospital."

Lieutenant Hazlitt at West Roxbury police station said:

"I saw Fuller and he said that, even if he should see his assailant, he could not identify him. Fuller's story hardly coincides with the indisputable evidence in the case. He maintains that he was assaulted with an Indian club when he answered his doorbell early in the evening, before Sullivan came, whereas everything points to the attack having occurred in the afternoon, shortly before Sullivan's arrival.

"There are signs of the struggle there. Everything is spattered with blood. We do not think Sullivan is guilty of the assault, but he did tell conflicting stories and did not give satisfactory explanation of his presence there that time of night.

Mr. Fuller, who is on the "dangerous" list at the Forest Hills Hospital, is connected with prominent people. President David S. Ludlaw of the Auto Car Company of Ardmore, Pa., is said to be his brother-in-law.

Although Mr. Fuller occupies one of a suite of offices at No. 53 State street, the Exchange building, and has also his Roslindale residence for four years, the Metropolitan avenue neighborhood is not well acquainted with him.

He is regarded as a retiring man. The porch screens on his piazza are usually pulled down.

DENIES ALL CONNECTION.

Sullivan vigorously denies knowing anything about the attack on Fuller. He says that Fuller is his guardian, paying him $15 a week. He went to Fuller's house Friday night. Sullivan's story, as told to the police, continued thus:

"I rang the bell several times. Finally Fuller came to an upper window. 'Who's there?' he asked. I told him it was I. He said: 'For — sake quit your ringing and come inside.' I raised the latch, walked upstairs, went upstairs and found Fuller was covered with blood and very weak. I asked, 'What's the matter?' He said, 'Somebody hit me. I asked, 'Who?' Fuller said, 'Never mind.' I called the police and waited until they came."

An Indian club was found covered with blood near Fuller. The police assume that this was the weapon used.

Daniel T. Sullivan of Somerville, brother of William F. Sullivan, says that he (Daniel) had no connection with the case, although his name was given out by the police.

Official Statements

FRENCH.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—German troops occupying western Belgium have not passed the line of Ostend-Thourout-Menin.

FRANCE. Comparative quiet exists upon the greater part of the front.

At our left wing, there is no change in the situation in the region of Ypres.

On the right bank of the Lys the allied troops have occupied Fleurbaix as well as the immediate vicinity of Armentieres. In the region of Arras and in that of St. Michel we have continued to gain ground.

In Russia no notable change has occurred in the situation on the East Prussian front. Along the course of the middle Vistula the Austro-German armies have been reduced to take the defensive along the whole front. To the south of Przemysl the conflict continues. The Russians have taken 500 prisoners.

11 P. M.

The action of the front is confined to artillery. Our progress on the left wing continues.

The British troops have taken possession of Fromelles, southwest of Lille.

On the canal from Ypres to the sea our marine riflemen have repulsed a German attack.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, via. Copenhagen, Oct. 17.—The reinforced German right wing is to make an offensive movement with the greatest possible energy. A vigorous movement is to be directed against the allied troops defending Calais. We know that this movement will echo the longing that is in every German heart.

GERMANY. Conditions in the eastern theatre of war are satisfactory and the Germans before Warsaw are more than holding their own.

EVENING.

In the French theatre of war there has been no important event.

In the province of Suwalki Russians yesterday were inactive. A number of prisoners weer captured near Schirwindt and some guns were taken. The battles near the south of Warsaw continue.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 17.—The onslaughts of the German forces along the big battle lins in Russian Poland have been repulsed with severe losses to the enemy.

RUSSIA.

After having been driven back from Warsaw after they had advanced to within eight miles of that city, the Germans from the entrenched positions again took the offensive, but every attack made by them was repulsed and they were again driven back.

We have let the enemy take the offensive from strategic reasons. They have lost many men in killed, wounded and prisoners, and we have captured many guns and ammunition stores.

Near Ivangorod the Germans tried a night assault. Our troops threw their searchlights upon the advancing enemy, and in the terrific battle which ensued the Germans were utterly routed with heavy losses.

In the Galician theatre of war we are continuing our heavy bombardment of Przemysl. All sorties made by the garrison there have been repulsed.

"WHY WORRY"

That's the name of a book. The author is Dr. George M. Walton, consulting neurologist at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The secret of work is further indicated by the following quotation on the title page:

"The legs of the stork are long.
The legs of the duck are short.
You cannot make the duck's legs longer.
You cannot make the stork's legs shorter.
Why worry?"—(Chinese Proverb.)

It is argued that the two words, "Why Worry?" are worth more to a person, in this age of stress and strain, than $100,000 or a college education.

BRITISH SINK 4 GERMAN DESTROYERS IN BATTLE OFF COAST OF HOLLAND

Germans in Belgium Reported to Have Cut Off British and French Forces Near Ypres, from Main Army of the Allies; Austro-Italian Agreement Contemplated

Great Britain Said to Have 1,200,000 Men Already Under Arms—King Albert and Army in France—Paris Reports Further Gains in Battle of the Aisne

Four German torpedo boat destroyers were sunk off the coast of Holland yesterday afternoon by the British light cruiser Undaunted, according to an official announcement of the British War Office.

The Undaunted was accompanied by four British destroyers. "The British engaged the German boats and by well directed shots sent the German destroyers to the bottom. The British boats escaped unmarked," says the announcement. The German loss is estimated at 230 men.

A dispatch from Rome says it is reported from Ancona that an Austrian torpedo boat destroyer has been sunk by the French.

The Germans have won a notable strategic victory over the allies in the great Franco-Belgian battle, if a late report from Berlin concerning the progress of the fighting proves true.

This report, which is not official, comes via the Sayville, L. I., wireless from the German capital in the following wording:

"It is reported here that the French and British troops operating around Ypres, Belgium, have been cut off from their main army by the Germans."

Last evening's official report, issued at Berlin, made no mention of such an achievement. An earlier official statement, however, said that the German right wing had been strongly reinforced from Belgium, and that an important offensive movement was planned.

"A vigorous movement is to be directed against the allied troops defending Calais," the statement said, "a movement that will echo the longing that is in every German heart."

The Germans near Ostend, other advices from Berlin say, have reached the North Sea just west of Capelle. Fighting is reported going on in the direction of Dunkirk, France. Ostend is understood to have fallen into German hands without opposition.

There is no hint of German successes in the French official report issued at 3 p. m. yesterday in Paris. On the contrary, further gains by the allies are announced.

Successes have been gained by the French and British in the vicinity of Armentieres, in northeastern France, and near St. Mihiel, in the valley of the Meuse, according to the Paris statement. The French are said to have occupied Fleurbaix, six miles from Armentieres. Armentieres is about eight miles to the northwest of Lille.

The Paris evening official report says progress on the allies' left wing continues, the British having taken Fromelles, southwest of Lille, and a German attack having been repulsed by marine riflemen on the canal from Ypres to the sea.

Unofficial French reports place the right wing of the allies within twelve miles of Mets, the great German stronghold in Lorraine.

A rumor which gained wide circulation in London last evening, but which was officially denied by the Admiralty, was to the effect that German submarine had sunk the big British cruisers Invincible and Terrible.

German prisoners of war state that General Von Kluck has been succeeded by General Von Arnim in command of the German forces at the right wing of the big battle line.

King Albert and what is left of his Belgian army are reported to have escaped safely into France and to be effecting a junction with the main army of the allies.

The London Times' war expert, Colonel Repington, says Great Britain has 1,200,000 men already under arms.

Petrograd reports that "gigantic onslaughts" by the Germans along the battle line in Russian Poland have been "repulsed with severe losses," while Berlin says the Germans are holding their own in the conflict with Russia. There is an unconfirmed rumor in Rome that Przemysl, the Austrian stronghold in Galicia, has fallen.

The casualties in the sinking of the cruiser Hawke by a German submarine included twenty-seven officers, it is officially announced by the British press bureau. Captain Williams, commander of the cruiser, is among the missing.

In the Far Eastern theatre of war Anglo-Japanese troops, in a night attack, captured Prinz Heinreich Hill, overlooking Tsing Tao, according to a dispatch from Tokio.

CRUISER, ATTACKED BY FLEET OF DESTROYERS, SINKS FOUR

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The British Navy today avenged the Hawke, the British cruiser sunk off the coast of Scotland by a German submarine torpedo, by sending to the bottom four German torpedo boat destroyers off the coast of Holland.

The terrific execution was accomplished by the British light cruiser Undaunted. The cruiser was attacked by a fleet of the enemy's destroyers while on patrol duty, according to the official announcement of the Press Bureau of the Admiralty, which confirmed the news of the victory.

She had been searching the seas for the squadron of the enemy's ships which had been operating from the estuary of the River Ems, one of which war vessels recently had been sunk by a British submarine.

QUICKLY SENT TO BOTTOM.

The attack was accompanied by four torpedo boat destroyers Lance, Lenox, Legion and Loyal, which were acting as her convoys.

The attacking fleet singled out the Undaunted and concentrated their fire upon her, thinking first to dispose of the more formidable vessel and then to turn their attention to the lighter craft.

In the battle which followed, details of which have not yet been received by the press bureau, four of the attacking destroyers were quickly sent to the bottom by well directed shots from the six-inch and four-inch guns of the Undaunted.

But thirty-one members of the

four destroyers are known to be saved. This number of prisoners were captured by the Undaunted and the accompanying British destroyers. The complement of the German vessels was from forty-eight to eighty-three officers and men, or an average of sixty-five for each vessel, a total of 260 for the four. Thus the German loss may be estimated at about 230 dead.

The admiralty announced the British casualties as one officer and four men wounded.

The damage to the destroyer accompanying the Undaunted was officially announced as slight.

The Undaunted was commanded by Captain Cecil H. Fox. Captain Fox was the commander of the Amphion, which sank the German armored cruiser Kaiserin Augusta, and later was itself destroyed by a German mine on August 9.

According to the last navy list the Undaunted is a vessel of 5,300 tons. Her armament consists of two six-inch and six four-inch guns. The destroyers accompanying her are 250 feet in length and have a speed of twenty-five knots. Each carries 100 men. The Undaunted went into commission early this year. She is 410 feet long, equipped with turbines and has a speed of better than thirty knots.

The German destroyers were of the class of which at the opening of the war Germany had 141, all with a speed from twenty to thirty-two knots. Each carries two twenty-three pounders or lighter guns and three or four torpedo tubes.

With the four warships sunk today the British navy now has to its credit seven torpedo boat destroyers sent to the bottom, six by gun fire and one by the submarine. In addition they have sunk one Austrian and six German cruisers, as well as several converted merchantmen such as the Cap Trafalgar and the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. Several Austrian destroyers have been sunk in the Adriatic sea, according to unconfirmed reports.

The Germans have destroyed one Russian and six English cruisers, while one submarine has been lost to Austria by accident. The Russians also claim to have sunk two German submarines, but this is denied in Berlin.

While London was still flushed with the pride of the Undaunted achievement, a rumor, unconfirmed, was widely circulated in London that the big cruisers Invincible and Terrible had been sunk by German submarines in the North Sea. The rumor became so persistent that the official press bureau, at the request of the admiralty, issued an official statement denying the report.

Among the officers reported to have lost their lives in the sinking of the Hawke is Dr. J. R. D. Watson, the international Rugby football player, who was attached to the cruiser as a surgeon.

Forty-eight more survivors of the Hawke have been landed at Aberdeen by a trawler, which took them off a boat of the steamship sank he picked them up from an overcrowded boat. The sailors declared they were unable to do anything for the men in the water. They also stated that the periscope of the submarine disappeared immediately after the explosion which sent the Hawke to the bottom.

With the seventy-three previously reported saved the survivors of the cruiser disaster now number 121 of the crew of approximately 460.

British interest in the land movements in Belgium and in France centered about the progress of the German troops who now are reported to have left Ostend. According to a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Flushing, Netherlands, but 5,000 Germans now remain in the coast city, while 2,000, after having occupied Zeebrugge, seventeen miles northeast of Ostend and a valuable port from a strategic standpoint, are reported to have quit that point. In the region between Heyst and Blida there are now no Germans to be found.

The German flag has been hoisted all along the entire Dutch frontier and communication with Dunkirk in France, apparently the next objective of the Germans, has been cut.

To the northeast of Ostend Germans are reported to be pushing forward rapidly toward the coast and late yesterday their outposts were discovered at Knocke, two miles from the Dutch frontier on the North Sea.

Reports that have reached London that the German imagination has been so fired that the call, "On to Calais," has been sounded and six army corps, including the famous "Iron Brigade," of Germans, wounded officers who are prisoners in an English hospital, state that General Von Kluck has been relieved of his command of the right wing of the German army in France, and that General Von Arnim has succeeded him. No less an authority than Lieutenant Von Arnim, a nephew of the general, is credited with vouching for the statement.

Colonel Grey, brother of Sir Edward Grey, the British Minister of Foreign Affairs, is reported to have been brought down in a Bristol biplane while acting as observer near Peronne, in France. According to a statement published here and attributed to the Berlin War Office, he was taken prisoner.

Another dispatch from Amsterdam quotes the German paper Der Tag as reporting an English aeroplane shot down, together with its occupants, the aviator and an observer, captured.

BRITISH, WITH 1,200,000 MEN IN ARMS, ONLY JUST BEGUN, SAYS EXPERT

By JOHN C. FOSTER,

Special Correspondent of American.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The London Times' military correspondent, replying to the Frankfurter Zeitung's statement that Great Britain was unable to raise more than 600,000 troops, says:

"We have at the present moment exactly double that number, namely, 1,200,000 men, and the number grows almost faster than we can cope with it. This is only the beginning.

"It is our way, as well as that of America, to begin to raise our arms after war breaks out and to go on raising them until our ultimate ends are achieved. With 1,200,000 men at home, the army in the field and the hundreds of thousands forming in India, Canada, Australia and elsewhere are merely the nucleus upon which other armies will eventually be built.

"It is only a question of time. It stands to reason that an empire of 400,000,000 can never back men. This war for us has hardly begun. We have sent merely an advanced guard into France. In the Spring the remainder of the advance guard will follow and somewhere toward the end of 1915 the main body will begin to come within view.

"We are sorry for the allies that we are even slower than Russia in getting our armies' (the Times' military) correspondent, replying to the Frankfurter Zeitung's statement that Great Britain was unable to raise more than 600,000 troops, says:

"We have at the present moment exactly double that number, namely, 1,200,000 men, and the number grows almost faster than we can cope with it. This is only the beginning.

"It is our way, as well as that of America, to begin to raise our arms after war breaks out and to go on raising them until our ultimate ends are achieved. With 1,200,000 men at home, the army in the field and the hundreds of thousands forming in India, Canada, Australia and elsewhere are merely the nucleus upon which other armies will eventually be built.

Help Restore Rheims Cathedral, Appeal Made by Edwin D. Mead

Dr. Edwin D. Mead of the World Peace Foundation deplores the damages done to Rheims Cathedral by the war and urges the raising of a fund to repair it.

I wish that a picture of Rheims Cathedral might be hung upon the walls of every high school in our country and in the world. I wish that the continual sight of it, with the thought of the irreparable damage done it by the recent bombardment, might solemnly impress the rising generation with a sense of the menace of war to everything precious in our civilization.

It is the merest accident that the ruin of the cathedral is not complete; and this would have been a vandalism unparalleled in its gratuity, for all who care for art and history since the ruin of the Parthenon by the Venetians and the Turks in 1687. The cathedrals of Amiens and Chartres, Cologne and Strasburg, Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's, may count no more upon immunity, in the contingencies of possible wars, than the cathedral of Rheims.

How could we more impressively express our sympathy in such a time than by a pledge to restore, when peace comes again, this beautiful and revered cathedral? Will this fine service not appeal to our churches, walking as we do before the awful face of war and the duty of peace, to our schools, to our societies of architects, and to the hearts of all citizens of our republic who love the great sister republic of France?

CRUCIAL BATTLE OF CAMPAIGN BEING FOUGHT IN BELGIUM

Allies, Whose Line Extends to the Sea, Resist Terrific Attack of Germans.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—A gigantic battle is being waged with desperate energy just across the border in Belgium. The Germans have hurled an enormous force against the allies, who are on a front from Armentieres to Ypres and then to the sea. It is the blow which has been threatened since the German menace of a new drive on Paris by way of the sea coast became an ever present hope to Parisians. The battle is being fought within 100 miles of London, as the crow flies.

Both armies have driven forward their advance columns until at several points they interlap. The fighting of the most desperate character is confined to the limits of the quadrangle described by Ypres, Menin, Ostend and a point on the sea coast between Nieuport and the Belgian border.

Official statements issued this afternoon and at midnight tonight give a hint of the terrific nature of the fighting in this theatre. The afternoon communique from Bordeaux declared the German lines would not be able to advance from Menin through Thourout and Roulers. It is known that heavy engagements of sanguinary character have been fought in this section and the statement is interpreted as meaning that the allies have held their own. The midnight official statement reported that the French marines had driven the Germans back after an attack on the French position at Dixmude and running along an irregular course from Ypres northward to the sea. Since this report it is apparent that the Germans have driven through at some point and have advanced in this section of their line a distance of from fifteen to twenty miles, only to be repulsed.

NEW BRITISH FORCE.

No attempt was made to reconcile these claims by General Gallieni, the commandant of Paris, to whom the French war office transmitted the bulletin for publication. The official censor was authorized to pass the unofficial interpretation of their meaning.

A startling announcement in the midnight bulletin was the appearance for the first time of British troops to the southwest of Lille, indicating the presence of a fresh body of allied troops on the extended north line of the armies defending France. Their appearance was heralded with the chronicling of a shrewd encounter with the Germans, in which the British forces captured the town of Fromelle.

The new battle line is now the scene of a second great artillery duel.

In fact, the war office declares that the action at the front during the day has been confined to artillery mostly. This apparently refers to the positions west of Lille, as it is connected in the official bulletin with a chronicle of continued French progress by the left wing army.

In this section the greatest activity has been along the River Lys. Today the French occupied Fleur Paix, on the right bank, and drove the Germans from the vicinity of Armentieres.

In the region of Lille, General Joffre has succeeded in slowly pressing back the German advance bodies.

ARRAS NEARLY DESTROYED.

The extension of the line from Ypres north to the sea has effectively barred the invaders from any chance of successfully executing a flanking movement against the allies, and the only recourse now left to them is a frontal attack. That the results of this form of attack are meagre in comparison with the great toll of life it exacts has been demonstrated not only in the battle of the Marne, but in the fighting along the Aisne.

Nevertheless French experts look for the great test of strength to come in the battle just over the Belgian frontier. And this battle will open with a frontal attack, they are convinced.

According to a detailed report of the fighting around Arras, the town has been almost completely destroyed by the Germans.

An advance toward Verdun by the French right wing army and the right flank of the French center has been reported from the eastern end of the battle front, where the French have been hammering unmercifully against the rear of the Crown Prince's retreating army.

The relief of Verdun is the ultimate purpose of this advance.

With the investment of Verdun broken the French will then be in a position to throw a greater force in the direction of St. Mihiel and occupy that important position.

Meanwhile the centre wing army, which has been heavily engaged along the Nancy-Metz line, upon which the Crown Prince depends for his support, has met and defeated in the vicinity of Pageny, on the road to Metz, a strong German force, and the French now are reported to be within ten miles of the outer works of Metz.

Strong reinforcements of first line troops have been withdrawn from certain positions where they were needed immediately, and their strength has been added to the battering ram which is being driven against the German positions in an effort to carry this maneuver to successful conclusion. If the French right wing is triumphant the immediate effect of the movement will be to transfer the fighting on the east end of the line into German territory.

Famous "Lawson Express" Cut Off

While Thomas W. Lawson is out West the New Haven Railroad is going to amputate the famous "Lawson Express," owing to the high cost of railroading. The "Lawson" has been making Plymouth at 7:21 A. M., running express to Egypt and making stops between there and Plymouth. It will be discontinued for the winter, the last time it will run being on October 24 and the last northbound one on October 26. It will resume schedule about May 17 next.

During the winter a train will leave Boston week days at 5:10 for Plymouth. Returning, it will leave Plymouth at 6:56 A. M. for Boston, covering the service performed by the "Lawson."

The truck, which is owned by the Walter Trait Stove Company, of Watertown, was not damaged, Thibault received a slight shaking up.

WAR TAX BILL PASSES SENATE

Smith Amendment for Relief of Southern Cotton Growers Is Defeated.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—After defeating all amendments intended to relieve the cotton situation in the South, the Senate tonight passed the war tax bill by a vote of 34 to 22.

The purpose of the bill is to raise $107,500,000 a year to make up for the loss in revenue caused by the European war.

Only one Democrat, Senator Lane of Oregon, voted against the bill. Senator Vardaman of Mississippi announced that he was paired against it. No Republican voted for it.

The bill is prior to materially different from the bill passed by the House, will go to conference Monday. The Senate conferees are Senators Simmons, Williams, Stone, Clarke of Wyoming and McCumber. After a day or two in conference it will be finally passed by the House and Congress will adjourn about the middle of the week.

The principal fight was on Senator Hoke Smith's amendment directing the secretary of the treasury to purchase 500,000 bales of cotton at 10 cents a pound and hold them for three years. This was defeated forty to twenty-one.

The threat of the Southern Senators to defeat the war tax bill unless action was not made for the relief of the cotton growers, was not carried out. Only eight Democrats voted were expected to vote to table the bill on the first roll call mark when a motion to indefinitely postpone construction of the bill was voted on. Those were Senators Bryan and Chamberlain, Smith of Georgia, Smith of South Carolina, Vardaman and White. The three who fell out were Sheppard, Robinson and Shields.

The bill places a tax of $1.75 on beer, which is expected to raise about $40,000,000 revenue; a tax on wine at 5 cents a gallon, with 55 cents a gallon on grape brandy or wine spirits used in fortifying wines; a tax of $10 per $1,000 on capital surplus and undivided profits on banks; and special taxes on pawnbrokers, commercial brokers, custom-house brokers, theatres, circuses and bowling alleys and billiard rooms.

Special taxes are placed on manufacturers of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes. Stamp taxes from two cents per cent. are provided for bonds, debentures and certificates of indebtedness, agreements to sell on exchanges, certificates of stock, promissory notes, bills of lading, telegraph and telephone messages costing fifteen cents or more, foreign exchange, conveyances, insurance policies, steamship tickets, powers of attorney and Pullman car tickets. Taxes are also placed on perfumery, cosmetics and chewing gum.

CLAIM GERMAN WARSAW REPULSE

Petrograd Announces Important Victories for Russian Armies in Poland.

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,

Staff Correspondent of the American.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 17.—A gigantic onslaught by the German forces along the battle line in Russian Poland has been repulsed with severe losses by Russian troops, it is officially announced today. After having been driven back from Warsaw the German armies took the offensive, but again they were repulsed. Many prisoners and guns were taken by the Russians. In Galicia the statement says the siege of Przemysl continues and the fall of the fortress is only a matter of days.

From Warsaw a report comes that south of the Vistula unofficial is audible in the city, but that the population remains tranquil.

The Kieff correspondent of the Novoe Vremya relates a curious instance of Austrian cruelty. Conversing with an Austrian who was wounded, the correspondent learned that the Austrians were convinced that the Russians were trying to secure them and that they were not at Kieff, but at Petrograd or Moscow.

It is unofficially reported that the Germans are conveying to the front large numbers of wounded. A considerable number of newly recruited troops.

From semi-official sources it is learned from those high in command, that the Russian line in the Dunajec has decided to play a waiting game. This is borne out by the fact that otherwise they would not have given the Germans time to entrench and effectively prepare for their line of operations.

Reliable information shows that the Germans are seriously contemplating wintering in Poland. Peasants have risen in many places, notably at Kielce and Miechow. Regardless of this most terrible reprisals they are forming guerrilla bands and attacking the invaders. The railroad near Novoradomsk has been wrecked and trainloads of German soldiers killed.

UNIQUE PICTURE OF TEN 'TWILIGHT SLEEP' BABIES BORN IN BOSTON LAST WEEK

This remarkable group of "Twilight Sleep" babies was taken last week at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital on East Concord street, especially for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. The left hand baby is the youngest, being eight hours old; the seventh from the left is eldest, fourteen days old. There are seven girls and three boys in the group. The astonishing thing in connection with this picture is that not one of the mothers suffered the least pain nor was she aware that the stork had arrived until she awakened and found the baby in bed beside her. The babies were fed before "posing." Then the nurses placed them side by side upon the long tray of a surgical carriage. They were wheeled through the hospital corridors, loaded upon an elevator, taken to the top floor and again wheeled into a lighted room in the maternity ward. Then the youngsters were bolstered up, with pillows slightly "tipped" as they lay in the tray to face the camera, and the entire row was photographed on one plate.

SONGBIRD CHAPINE BENEDEK'S BRIDE?

Prima Donna's Romance Began with Love Song by Winter Garden Assistant Manager.

Chapine, the French prima donna at "The Whirl of the World" company, and P. Benedek, assistant manager of the big Winter Garden show, are declared by members of the company to have been married within a few days. Chapine is said to have insisted that the marriage be kept secret for professional purposes, but it is the fruition of a remarkable romance of the stage.

Chapine was asked by an AMERICAN reporter last night if she had married Mr. Benedek.

"I do not understand English very well," was her only reply.

"I do not care to talk about this matter and I will take it as a favor if you do not print anything about it," said Benedek.

The romance between the pair is known by members of the company and it is declared on all sides that if they have not already married they will do so within a few days.

The romance is filled up with a popular song, "Mine When the Dawn Is Breaking," in a curious way. Benedek wrote the song. This is the story:

TOLD LOVE IN VERSE.

Chapine has been in grand opera. When she came to this country she was unable to get anything upon the American stage because she could not speak a word of English. She finally took a place as a Cabaret singer at the Carlton Terrace, a New York restaurant.

Benedek, a New York poet and friend of Alfred Solman, the composer, happened into the Terrace one night and heard Chapine. He fell in love with her immediately and upon the back of a menu scribbled the following impassioned verses:

Mine when the dawn is breaking
Mine in my dreams at night,
Mine when the birds are waking,
Mine when the stars are bright
Mine when the years are flying
Mine with a glory divine,
Mine with a love unending,
Mine and always mine.

SENT POEM TO CHAPINE.

He showed them to Solman, who declared he would set them to music, and he sent the poem to Chapine.

In a day or two Solman wrote the music and the management of the Terrace got Chapine, who was rapidly learning English, to sing it. Benedek was introduced and the affair was going well when John Cort happened in one night and heard her sing. He immediately engaged her as prima donna in his "Rose of Panama."

Chapine disappeared from the restaurant, leaving no word. Her name there was assumed, and Benedek could not discover what had become of her.

It was weeks before he located her and then only by accident. But the courtship was resumed. When she joined "The Whirl of the World" company a few weeks ago, Benedek followed the company in Orpheum finally engaged as assistant manager. So they are both in Boston, and supposed to be married or contemplating it, and the song which brought them together is growing rapidly popular.

Even the Doctors Amazed at Success of the "Twilight Sleep" Method of Painless Childbirth at Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital—Twenty Happy Youngsters Attest to the Value of Scopolamine

Ten more Twilight Sleep babies were last week added to the list at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital on East Concord street, making twenty in all born under this so-called method since it was started as a regular feature of the maternity department October 1.

All these twenty babies have been born without mishap; the mothers in every case have been completely unconscious of pain or suffering and the hospital authorities announce that the twilight sleep method now has passed the experimental stage and is now a permanent feature of the institution.

A flood of letters are being received by Dr. William C. Mann, superintendent, and Dr. Ray Lewis, now in charge, making inquiries about the treatment and asking for reservations in the maternity ward for prospective mothers.

"About half the letters received," says Dr. Lewis, "refer to the twilight sleep treatment; the other half of the writers evidently have not heard of this treatment.

"But the number of letters indicating an interest in the new method is increasing from day to day. These twenty babies have not shown the slightest ill effect of the anesthesia. Not one has had to be brought out of a coma as a result of the sedative administered to the mother.

ONE MOTHER EXTREMELY HAPPY.

"One of the children in the group is the fifth child of a mother who had lost her two previous children at birth. Twilight sleep methods enabled this baby to arrive successfully and alive.

"In one case a patient remembered when the night nurses were changed in the ward where she lay. She has no recollection of anything else. When she awakened her baby lay beside her."

To show the difference in the treatment regime indicative of the patient's temperamental differences, one mother had her first child after two and a half years and with four administrations of the anesthetic. Another received eleven injections of the anesthetic and was ten hours before the baby arrived.

Many of the prospective mothers object to the twilight sleep treatment in the beginning, but begs for it after after the severity of the labor has begun—when it is too late.

Physicians and nurses at the East Concord Street Hospital, even after two weeks of successful work in the handling of cases, are scarcely able to credit the astonishing facts—the anaesthesia doing away of all pain and suffering, the continual spectacle of mothers sleeping during what hitherto has been a most trying time.

There are today none of the nerve-shattering evidences of suffering that formerly made the maternity ward of the hospital the ward most shunned by the sensitive.

"It is interesting to find that the children are all born healthy and well, but it more interesting to find that the mothers have a much better convalescence, that there is no rise in temperature, that the recovery is quicker, that there are no hemorrhages," said Dr. Lewis. "When these twilight sleep mothers waken they are rested. The recovery of strength is so rapid that they nearly all wish to leave in a day or so. But, of course, all have to remain during the alloted period of convalescence.

SUPPLY OF ANESTHETIC LIMITED.

"We neither darken nor quiet the maternity room in any way. It has not been found necessary. In fact one mother lay in twilight sleep while physicians and nurses in the same room were working the pulmotor in a vain attempt to save an emergency case where a mother had been brought to the hospital in an ambulance suffering from a hemorrhage. During all the noise of the pulmotor clatter the twilight sleep mother rested peacefully and later when she awakened with her baby knew nothing of what had happened.

"The narcophin used in combination with scopolamine is obtained in Germany, and while the supply is necessarily limited in this country, the hospital has enough to treat 110 cases more, and I believe that we will be able to obtain more when our present supply is gone.

"For about twenty-four hours after the baby arrives the mother shows evidence of the anesthetic—the ordinary evidences of being anesthetized, with the accompanying dilation of pupils and flushed cheeks. This, however, passes and leaves no after effect that we know of. The mothers have all felt able to get up the next day, though we haven't let them.

"Since the hospital has been in existence no twenty babies have ever been so easily born here. According to last year's statistics, there were forty-six still births and thirty-six babies died out of a total of 816 at the hospital. That is, about 4½ per cent. of the babies died. We have a record of twenty 'twilight sleep' births with no deaths up to date.

"I should say that the 'twilight sleep' method would have a tendency to diminish the mortality among babies."

Peach Brandy and Blackthorns Come From the Same Tree

Peach brandy and blackthorn antielahs form a striking combination which Captain John W. Dillon of the Park and Recreation Department asserts in yesterday's issue of the City Record come from the amygdalus prunus persica and its kindred trees.

"You may take your choice," he states in operating the sound student of botanical authors, and then accept the one most commonly used, but as for me I prefer just peaches."

"And lastly," he states further, "the sapling furnish that which is so dear to an Irish heart, the much prised blackthorn stick, or shillelagh."

The discreet author, however, refrains from stating just what the consequences would be if one were to take both by-products of the amygdalus prunus persica and its kindred trees at one sitting. That, apparently, is left to the imagination of the City Record readers.

PIMPLES SPREAD ON BODY AND FACE

Never Had Night's Rest. Clothing Irritated. Eruption and Pained. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Didn't Have One Pimple Left.

6 Blyrie St., New Haven, Conn.—"My skin broke on my body and face which made me scratch and after I stopped scratching the skin remained very red. Hard little pimples also came and after I scratched I never had a night's rest and as I continued scratching the pimples spread over my body. After a month white points appeared on them. My clothing irritated the eruption on my body and gave me pain. Many nights I did not sleep; I could not move in bed for if I did they got worse.

"I used ——— and many kinds of ointment but they did not help my trouble. It was all red and sore. I then sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after I had used them for a little better one bought more. I bathed in hot water and the Soap morning and night, afterwards dried and applied the Ointment. After three months' treatments I didn't have one pimple left." (Signed) Miss Rose Consigio, Apr. 2, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery, because they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address: post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

CHICAGO POLICE IN 'BECKER' CASE

Politician and Gambler Swears Out Warrant Accusing Lieutenant.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—C. P. Bertsche, a politician and gambler, who was wounded with four others, including two policemen, during a recent shooting affair, has sworn out a warrant charging Police Lieutenant John Tobin, second in command of the detective force, with being an accessory before an assault to murder.

William Egan and James Monaghan, detectives, who participated in the daylight street fight, are charged with assault with intent to kill and murder.

The whole city is stirred up over the shooting, which is similar to the slaying of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, in New York. It is reported that the shooting was for the purpose of closing the mouth of Bertsche.

The Assistant State's Attorney who aided Bertsche in getting the warrant, said that Lieutenant Tobin, who has not hitherto been mentioned in connection with the shooting, was in the company of Egan and Monaghan both before and after the shooting.

Eat Your Apple a Day and--'Raus Mit Der Doctor

Good morning, have you eaten an apple today?

If not, why not?

The Apple Consumers' League is booming New England's famous fruit. The war cry of the league is this: "An Apple a Day Keeps the Doctor Away."

This is a big apple year, a bumper crop. The European war has practically closed the foreign market for apples. All the more apples for us to eat in Boston and New England.

An apple a day is healthy. It helps the apple producers.

The Apple Consumers' League has issued a "Housekeepers' Apple Book." It gives 197 different recipes for serving apples.

And what's the matter with apples raw, raw, raw!

Disabled Schooner Towed Into Salem

The schooner Helen Montague, Captain Stephen R. Mason, from Calais, Me., was towed into Salem by the steamship Buccaneer with her masts and rigging blown away. The schooner, laden with 3,500 railroad ties, encountered a heavy blow two days ago. The steamship Suffolk first came to the assistance of the crew of the disabled vessel but stood by until the Buccaneer arrived to relieve her.

AUNT SUES FOR HOME FOR HER CAT

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 17.—"Bouncer," a big yellow cat with admirable manners, is the central figure in a suit Miss Harriett N. Kaull, "Bouncer's" mistress, has brought against her nephew, Thomas S. L. Weaver, for alleged breach of contract. The case began before Judge Rathbun and jury in the Superior Court.

Miss Kaull charges her nephew with breach of contract, saying she advanced him $2,500 to buy land on which to erect a house, with the stipulation that she was to have a room for herself and a place for "Bouncer."

Weaver testified: "I told her if the cat put his paw in the goldfish globe and took the goldfish I would kill the cat. She replied: 'Then I'll kill your goldfish.' She wanted a sun parlor for the cat, saying it was a nice cat, with no bad manners."

MILK IS SOLD AT LOSS, SAY DEALERS

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 17.—Western Massachusetts milk producers told the Boston Chamber of Commerce committee that is investigating the cost of production in the New England States that it costs about five cents a quart to produce milk in this section, while contractors pay less than fifty cents for a ten-quart can, at a heart's ease today. The hearing revealed that milk cannot be raised at a profit and sold to contrators at prevailing prices.

SURGEONS ARE AT WAR OVER ETHER

Disagree Over the Beneficial Effects as Sequel to Celebration.

A controversy over the value of ether has developed as a sequel to the celebration on Friday of Ether Day at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Dr. John W. Finney, one of the foremost surgeons in the country, said in his address:

"Among all the many agencies used for relieving pain, ether is easily the first, and, all things considered, has for general use no real rival. The beneficial effect of ether is most felt in the large group of cases in which pain accomplishes no good purpose."

Dr. Freeman Allen, who is in charge of the anaesthesia department at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and who is held by Dr. Richard Cabot as one of the highest authorities on the subject, differs with Dr. Finney. He says:

"The whole tendency of the medical profession is away from the use of ether. Nitrous oxide gas has absolutely no after effects, can be administered more readily and answers every purpose."

STATE MUST RULE, DECLARES BIRD

Insists on Massachusetts Controlling the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Charles Bird and Joseph Walker were the speakers at a Progressive rally in Lynn last night.

Mr. Bird took up the question of the settlement of terms in the separation of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven Railroads. He said that it was characteristic of the Republican party that the railroad plank in their platform was ambiguous.

"I believe that there is but one thing to do—namely to take the Boston & Maine out of politics," he said. "It would be a criminal betrayal of the State's interest . . . for the control to go out of our hands.

"The Progressive leadership in the Legislature has resulted in the refusal of the Legislature to surrender the stock. It is amazing that Governor Walsh agreed to the provision to abolish the "voting" provision. Mr. McVail has shown that he would favor abolishing this State control provision. Every citizen is disgusted with the private control that has looted and wrecked the New England roads and made our railroad service the most inefficient in the country."

City to Pay Only $15,000 to Shuman

Land damages of $45,000 for the Shuman property taken in connection with the widening of Avery street, with provision for the repayment of $30,000 betterment assessments to the city, were approved yesterday by Mayor Curley. This leaves only $15,000 actual damages to be paid by the city for the 176 square feet of land taken at Washington and Avery streets.

B. F. YOAKUM FOR GOVERNMENT R. R. OWNERSHIP

Only Thing That Will End Graft and Wildcat Schemes, He Tells Rock Island Probers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Government ownership of railroads was advocated by B. F. Yoakum, one of the ablest railroad men in the United States, testifying to-day before the Interstate Commerce Commission, investigating the Rock Island Railroad.

This came after an accumulation of evidence showing how the Rock Island had been financially wrecked by the Eastern speculators.

"Government ownership is the only solution of the railroad problem," said Mr. Yoakum.

"You think this whole problem could be solved by the injection of government ownership into the national body politic?" asked former Governor Folk, chief counsel for the commission.

"I do," replied the witness.

"At this particular time," continued Mr Yoakum, "the government might not be prepared to take up the matter. I realize that it might involve more money than the government might care to spend.

Q. Well, then, how could it be undertaken?" A. By the receivers of this company conveying to the government one-half of their entire interests, and this without charge to the government.

Q. Your idea is, then, to let the government have one-half of the profits accruing from railroad management? A. Yes, I think that in this way the government, if it got one-half the profits of all the railroads, would be enabled to abolish direct taxes in all forms in the States and territories and have enough to run the national government as well.

"WOULD ABOLISH GRAFT."

Q. Do you think any other advantage might be derived from government ownership in the way you have suggested? A. Yes, I am sure that a lot of graft would be abolished.

Q.—Anything else? A.—It would tend to prevent overcapitalization of railroads. In that way it would be a profitable thing.

Q.—Would it put an end to such affairs as have brought the Rock Island Railroad to the attention of the Government and demanded an investigation? A.—I should say it would end these wildcat schemes.

Q. There have been many such schemes? A. Every railroad system in the country has been indulging in them and will continue to do so until the government takes charge.

Q. Is the Rock Island, as a railroad, as paying a proposition now as it has been for the last ten years? A. Yes.

Mr. Yoakum described in detail the sale of the Frisco lines to the Rock Island Company, a New Jersey holding company. "That's a "paper deal."

"The Rock Island," said Mr. Yoakum, "paid $61.50 a share for the Frisco stock and paid for it with ten-year collateral notes of the Rock Island in 1903, calling the whole affair a farce. Frisco stock was the collateral.

"ONE ON HARRIMAN."

"In other words," said Mr. Yoakum, "the Rhode Island paid $17,500,000 for the Frisco and sold it back for $10,000,000 some years later."

Governor Folk, in questioning Yoakum, brought out the fact that Mr. Yoakum "put one over on the late E. H. Harriman," in the purchase of the Chicago & Alton. The Rock Island got the Chicago & Alton when Harriman was ousted. Yoakum smiled when he recalled this incident.

"Is there no hope whatever for those who have invested their money in the Rock holding companies?" asked Commissioner Clements of W. J. Wallace, president of the Central Trust Company.

"I don't think there is a hope," replied the witness.

"Do you think the credit of railroads can be permanent when such things go on?" asked the Commissioner, but the witness hedged.

DUMMIES DISCOVERED.

Two more "Dummies" were discovered at to-day's proceedings. George G. McMurtrey of New York, a director of the Rock Island operating company and of the New Jersey holding Company, and George T. Boggs of New York, an official of various capacities of the Rock Island operating company.

McMurtrey admitted he knew positively very little concerning the operations of the various companies. Asked about the Frisco deal whereby the Rock Island lost $15,500,000 he confessed he relied entirely upon the report of the committee in charge of such things.

Mr. Boggs thought the Rock Island directors had a right to dispose of the company's money as they saw fit.

Q.—You consider then, the operation of a railroad purely the private concern of its officers, directors and stockholders? snapped Mr. Folk. A.—Yes. I do.

ARE PUBLIC HIGHWAYS.

Q.—Don't you know that railroads are public highways, that what they charge is a tax on the public that the public is interested lest these charges become too high? If the funds of the railroads are to be dissipated and given away in extravagant ways the railroads must charge higher passenger and freight rates if they continue to operate. Do you believe in that?

A.—I do not set it that way.

Q.—You don't consider, then, that railroad officials are quasi-public officials and have a duty toward the public?

A.—No, I do not.

"You the old idea, Mr. Boggs," rejoined Mr. Folk. "The day is not far distant when railroad officials who are false to their trust will be held with the same degree of accountability to the criminal laws as other quasi-public officials who betray their trust."

"RECORD OF BETRAYAL."

"The record in this case is a record of betrayal to the public," added Governor Folk with emphasis.

According to B. F. Yoakum, who represented the "Frisco stockholders in the deal with the Rock Island the loss to the latter road in its purchase and sale of the 'Frisco was the difference between $61.50 and $37.50 a share. The total amount of actual loss, he thought, was about $7,500,000.

When the "Frisco stock was acquired by the Rock Island, Mr. Yoakum, who had always been actively connected with the 'Frisco lines, became a member of the boards of the various Rock Island companies. He said competition never ceased between the Rock Island and the 'Frisco lines even when the latter was bought by the Rock Island.

Mr. Yoakum suggested that the United State Government pay half of the railroads of the United States, so that it could keep "an eye on the other half."

$31,000,000 NEEDED.

Mr. Wallace, the Central Trust Company president, said he felt discouraged over Expert McKenna's report that it would take some $31,000,000 to put the road on its feet. Nineteen per cent. of the locomotives are useless, 60 percent. of the passenger cars are dilapidated, 2,925 freight cars have a scrap value placed on them, and 20,000, or 20 percent. are ordered to be replaced. The purpose of the Central Trust Company Wallace started proceedings for foreclosure of the Rock Island, he said, and if the road is sold at auction, he, as chairman of the bondholders' committee, will buy it in and distribute it to the bondholders.

"When this sale takes place at public auction, that will wipe out all of the Rock Island Railroad the New Jersey holding company, all the stocks and bonds of the Iowa Company, and all this pyramid of $350,000,000 which was raised on the basis of the $175,000,000 capital stock and those who have purchased stock in the New Jersey company will lose their money and this loss will only lose its value'" asked Mr. Folk.

"Everything of that paper company will be wiped out."

The hearing was adjourned indefinitely to the subject of coming up again within two weeks.

Captures Pheasant on Cathedral Fence

It takes more than a Governor's stop-order on hunting to prevent patriotic Edward F. Buckley of East Bedham street station from catching 'em alive.

Buckley was patrolling Union Park street, South End. On the fence of Holy Cross Cathedral he spied a bird, a gorgeous fellow of brown and gold, and other colors, his burnished feathers gleaming in the air.

"This may be Union Park street, but that's a cock pheasant," said Buckley.

Avoiding a frontal attack, Buckley outflanked General Pheasant, sneaked up in the rear, made a clever grab and caught the bird by his feathered legs.

Buckley took his prisoner to the station house. Captain Driscoll telephoned the curator of Franklin Park. The bird is now in the park aviary, getting acquainted with the twenty golden pheasants already there.

U.S. EXPERTS HERE TO BOOM BUSINESS

Three Commercial Attaches Visit Boston to Teach Way to South American Trade.

Business men and manufacturers of Boston and New England, attention! The Federal government wants to help you expand your business and is spending thousands of dollars to help you.

While Europe fights, the rest of the world is crying for goods made right here in New England. Just where to sell and how to sell in these new markets the government is anxious

Last week the Federal business boomers descended upon Boston from Washington, three of the new four, to tell you business men.

Seven commercial attaches of the government conferring with business men at the Chamber of Commerce especially on trade possibilities in South America.

The attaches were A. I. Harrington, Dr. Albert Ulrich and Miss Ruth Havens. They are sent out by the Department of Commerce and Labor to talk export to American business men upon the great opportunity which exists today for export business.

But these trade boomers have carefully impressed one big point upon business men and that is this:

"ASK THE GOVERNMENT."

Before you act in on new export fields, ask the government. For years the government has been spending thousands of dollars sending field agents to South America, Europe and the Far East to find out just what trade conditions there are there from the standpoint of all kinds of goods seeking a new market for goods.

This information the government wants to place in the hands of every business man. For this purpose the government has sent to Boston F. L. Roberts, commercial agent, and he has opened an office in No. 752 Oliver building, just to be of service. If you want to find about banking conditions, credits, shipping methods, trade demands of all kinds in South America, Europe and the Far East, ask Mr. Roberts and he will place at your disposal all the great mass of information the government has collected.

The government warns all the would-be exporters that it is futile to spend too much time and money if they just blindly send out salesmen to South America or Europe finding out all of the business facts about the place the men are going to. Mr. Harrington, speaking of the government's new service, said:

"Circularizing South America, especially with badly translated trade literature, using the metric feet and inches and ounces and pounds to people who know no standards of weights and measure except the metric system, is not advancing American trade there. Business is business in South America as well as in Boston. You must go after it. Get your agent on the spot. If your business is small combine with others, send a salesman down. Instead of that, hire what native salesmen are needed and hustle for business in the same way you do here. Keep in touch with a manager who is acquainted with business conditions here and knows your own business, but hire your salesmen in South America and take advantage of their experience in local conditions.

"Financial conditions are disturbed in South America at present and there is not much hope of making big sales until things right themselves somewhat, but this is just the time to make connections. Send your representatives down there to make friends—and as most South American business men were educated in Europe and are cultured men, your representatives should be well appearing and men of tact.

"South America needs to know about the United States. It knows more about Europe than it does about us, its nearer neighbor.

"Why can't the business men of the United States—the various Chambers of Commerce, for instance—join in a plan to supply real life news from the United States—a telegraph and cable news service. This daily stream of news in the newspapers of South America would do more, I think, than any other one thing to bring and gather the two Americas into a close sympathy which should exist.

TO GO TO PERU.

"Let the South Americans know North America and they will come here to buy and our people can sell our goods down there. But first of all, our business men must go there armed with the knowledge which the English and Germans have had for years. They know how business is done in South America. The government wants to teach the American business man.

"I know the United States is waking up to the possibilities in South American trade as we have seen by the enthusiasm shown by manufacturers right here in Boston, and so in New York and in the West."

Mr. Harrington leaves next month for Lima, Peru.

At the conference arranged by the Boston Chamber of Commerce the government attaches met John N. Cole of the Boston Industrial Development Bureau, William S. Mosher of the Harbor and Land Commission, Thomas F. Anderson of the Boston Leather and Shoe and Leather Association, Secretary George E. Conte of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and about a score of manufacturers. It was evident at the meeting that the matter of payments and credits interested many of the manufacturers. In answer to many statements and questions John Connors of P. L. Connors & Co., cordage manufacturers, said:

NEVER LOST A PENNY.

"I have been selling enormous quantities of cordage in South America for a great many years and never lost a penny.

"It is not the fault of our manufacturers that we have let this great business get away from us. It is the fault of our bankers. Trade follows credits and our bankers should have been in the field years ago."

Mr. Roberts told the manufacturers present that he was already prepared to give them information relative to tariffs, government purchasing agents and other trade details and many appointments were made with him.

HOW I TOOK FORT FURNACE.

By MORTON BRIGE.

THERE may be swell fighting in Europe,
Where millions have answered the call,
The newspapers print all they hear without stint
Of battles and sieges and all.
But Europe's worst battle is faded
Compared with the day when I raided
And captured my furnace unaided,
My furnace that hated to fall.

FORT Furnace was stocked with coal ashes
And cinders and clinkers galore,
And rubbish and soo; and old rubbers, to boot,
Left over from Winter before.
With only my shovel so trusty
I went for that furnace so rusty
And soon all the field was so dusty,
I couldn't draw breath any more.

BUT soon I returned to the slaughter.
That fort should surrender or I,
I charged through the dust, yelling: "Furnace or bust!"
To capture that furnace or die.
In fierce irresistible dashes,
With shovel and clinkers in clashes,
I waded through millions of ashes
And had it cleaned out by and by.

Harvard Students to Fight for Right to Be Listed Voters

Dissatisfied with the decision of the Cambridge Board of Registrars that they are not self-supporting and so are ineligible for registration, Harvard College students have decided to take a test case into court. Charles P. Howard, a Law School graduate of last year, is attending to the preliminary work. Counsel from the three chief political parties will assist.

About thirty students were registered and the same number were rejected. The Harvard Political Club, recently organized, is backing the action of the students.

J. Frank Facey, chairman of the Cambridge Registration Committee, says that each case must be considered individually in registering Harvard students; that a student might establish a domicile in order to be a voter and that, if he is merely a student in Cambridge, while his home and parents are in Texas, for instance, he is ineligible.

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one of many who have adopted mercolized wax in place of cosmetics, massage, steaming and other methods. Many who have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish freshness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially beautified. One that is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving it even a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in original one ounce package, or put up at slight cost in two ounce lots by the Mercolized Wax Co., 214 Lake Bldg., Chicago, Ill. We have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently, and have mislaid the formula here it is: In an enameled saucepan, dissolve 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel.—"Natalie" in the Woman Milliner.

WOMEN TEACHERS ASK FAIR PLAY

With New Conditions Are Entitled to More Pay as Well as the Men, Says Somerville Petition.

The women teachers in Somerville High School believe that they, as well as the men, should be paid more money.

The women have a petition now before the finance committee of the school board.

Miss A. Marion Merrill, chairman of the pay-petition committe, who is spokesman for the women teachers, said yesterday:

"The schedule of salaries under which we are now working was adopted in 1898. Since then the number of pupils has trebled. Our work and responsibilities have increased, as well as the cost of living. Only eight women teachers have received an increase since 1900. We don't ask for any specific increase, preferring to leave that to the judgment of the school committee. The request is made for all the women teachers."

While Miss Merrill did not say anything about promises of increase for the men teachers at the High School, the original petition which the women teachers sent in does lay stress upon that point. The petition reads as follows:

"We, the women teachers of the Somerville High School, beg to call your attention to conditions which seriously concern us. A number of the High School faculty (referring to men), have recently received promotion and promise of increase in salary; in this, there has been no recognition of a large portion, namely, the women teachers of the faculty, during the past eight years, since 1906, when the last raise was made to but five of the forty-six women teachers, despite the fact of long service, increase of duties and added responsibility. We submit to your consideration this above mentioned conditions and earnestly ask an increase of salary."

The Somerville High School faculty now consists of 22 men and 50 women teachers. Four women teachers having been added since the petition was framed.

Three of the women draw $1,200 a year. They rank as first assistants. They are Miss Merrill, head of the English department; Miss Frances M. Kaan, head of the German and French department, and Miss Helen L. Follansbee.

Ten women teachers draw $1,000, or above $900. The rest are paid between $850 and $700, except two who receive $600. These two are classed as "student teachers."

Mrs. Eaton is now living at Assinippi with her daughter, Daniel H. Ainsworth, her two daughters, June and Dorothy, and her mother, Mrs. Harrison.

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy Is Home-Made

Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it. Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents' worth) from any druggist, pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. FAMOUS CHURCH DAMAGED BY FIRE

Largest Edifice in New Bedford Ablaze as Result of Overheated Stove.

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 17.—The North Christian church, known as the "White Church," the largest edifice in the city, was badly damaged by fire tonight. An overheated furnace was the cause. Prompt work by the firemen saved the structure from total ruin. The Central fire station was only a few doors away.

The church stands on Purchase street directly opposite the Parker House, whose guests got a scare. While the excitement was at its height Herbert Hardman, a guest at the Parker House, fell from the stone steps to the sidewalk and his skull was injured. He was carried unconscious to St. Luke's Hospital, and is in a critical condition.

The church is sixty years old. The Rev. Frank H. Peters is pastor. The congregation will worship in an adjoining edifice tomorrow. The damage was $3,000, much of it from smoke and water. The spire was saved by several streams.

Be A Pantry Pirate Once More

By Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets You Can Renew the Appetite of Your Boyhood Days.

Some of you suffering men and women should just go soon think of good old Dolly Dimple with a pair of Bengal tigers. You're afraid of your stomach. If you will only try it Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal and at bed time you will very soon overcome this fear of food.

"Gee! It's great to eat like a boy again."

These little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into the stomach just like food. They mix their saw and fresh digestive qualities with your worn-out juices in stomach and intestines and thus enrich your body, stop gas, irritation and "after eating distress." The act of taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet is a pleasing one. You eat it as you would an "after dinner mint" or a "lemon." It at once mixes with your food and digests that food. It relieves the strain of that meal, of course, and thus you experience a restful feeling from your food.

Soon your appetite will return. You will find yourself eating the foods you would dearly love to eat, but are afraid to eat, and in a very short time your old digestive system will be returned to you, for our bodies very quickly readjust themselves to normal conditions when we furnish nature that makes them diseased.

Go to your druggist, no matter where you live, and buy a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. To any one writing a book of these Tablets please address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart bldg., Marshall and Mitch. sts., a small sample package will be mailed free.

PSYCHIC VICTORY FOR MUNSTERBERGS

Harvard Professor Continues with Broadsides in Kaiser's Defence.

"Resignation is vexation. Endorsement is as bad. Here Hugo, be perplexed no more, But Wiener drives me mad."
—HARVARD OVERSEERS' LAMENT.

Up to the hour of going to press the odds were on Professor Munsterberg. He held the whip hand and his victory to date has been decidedly psychological.

It is fitting and well and not a little amusing that so great a master of psychology should hold a position so psychological.

He has tendered his resignation and it came at an hour psychological. For Harvard to refuse will be psychological and to refuse, as Harvard apparently must, will be a psychological achievement for the patriotic German instructor.

So all-in-all Professor Hugo, single-handed didn't appear to need reinforcements last night though what the future may bring is a matter for conjecture.

BREATHES NEW DEFENCE.

And the author of "The War and America" was still breathing broadsides in defence of his Fatherland and the Kaiser.

Meanwhile the Harvard "grads" of the class of 1909 were paying their respects last night to Major Clarence Wiener of Philadelphia and London—Clarence of $10,000,000 fame.

Most of Wiener's classmates at Cambridge couldn't recall the Philadelphian very vividly, and some of those who did put the soft pedal on their utterances to make them fit for Sabbath publication.

One recalled Clarence was "foppish," another had to consult his class album carefully to refresh his memory about the "benefactor" and another thought Clarence was trying to boom himself at the expense of his alma mater and Uncle Sam and "Professor" Hugo.

STAR JESTER.

"Rot," said another. "Wiener is a star jester," suggested one more, and a man who didn't wish to be drawn in popped the liveliest crew of all when he drawled:

"Say, doesn't this Clarrie Wiener, the London major, run a press agency or bureau or syndicate or something? Then don't you think this is a fine way to boost it and give it world fame?"

A canvass of classmates in and near Boston last night drew forth a variety of opinions.

Percy A. Atherton, a lawyer, with offices at No. 53 State street, said: "I never heard a boo of this Major Wiener while I was at Harvard. I lived in the yard during my course and knew many of my classmates. I never heard of this fellow until I read of his Amsterdam proposition. I do not favor this proposition and believe that Harvard has the same attitude."

Dr. William L. Barnes of Lexington, said: "I never heard of Major Clarence Wiener. When I read of his $15,000,000 offer in the daily papers I looked through my class album, but I could not find his photograph. It looks to me as though Wiener is trying to advertise himself."

"A LOT OF MONEY."

Thomas R. Bateman, a Winchester lawyer, said: "I have not a very distinct recollection of this new benefactor of Harvard. However, I remember him slightly. He evidently was very wealthy and I always found him to be a good fellow. I believe that it will be a long time before he will see ten million dollars. That's a lot of money, you know. His offer looks to me like some kind of a joke."

William Lee Beardsell, a Boston broker, living in Lexington, said: "My personal opinion of Wiener is that he posed as a sport. He lived in luxuriously furnished apartments on the Gold Coast, but did not last very long. He had to give $10,000,000 then I guess that I can give $100,000,000."

Dr. Conrad Bell of Waltham said: "I remember Major Wiener when I was at the Law School. He was at the bottom of the alphabet and mine was at the top, so that we did not have much chance to be together. His offer of a large legacy to Harvard is absolutely foolish."

Frank P. Bennett, Jr., a Boston journalist, living at Saugus, said: "I remember this fellow very slightly. He lived in Dunster Hall on the Gold Coast. I lived in the yard because I could not afford Gold Coast apartments. He evidently was possessed of considerable means. He was a member of the elementary chemistry class in my Freshman year. He served very queerly in class. I remember that one day, for some reason, he was up to the professor and in his affected manner argued with him. The next I heard of him was many years later, while I was reading the North American Review, which contained an article on a new form of coining currency in the Philippines. This article, which was over-ably by a Captain Clarence Wiener, showed a great knowledge of currency. I was not heard of him till the other day when I read of his $10,000,000 offer."

Harold Blakes of No. 11 Hudson street, Mattapan, said: "I did not know Wiener while I was a student at Harvard. This foolish offer of his was entirely uncalled for. It places Harvard in a most peculiar position."

For the latest word from Major Clarence which came last night by cable to the AMERICAN from London, read this:

It is quite true that I have made such a will and shall revoke it if Professor Munsterberg is retained by Harvard. I consider Munsterberg's poisonous campaign against the English-speaking nations should be stamped out at once. It is not only unjust, but is causing incalculable harm. On the other hand I think Count Bernstorff is a valuable asset to England and her allies, because his methods are stupidly clumsy.

Munsterberg, however, is clever and far more dangerous.

SIR I think his miserable representations will soon be forgotten and that public opinion will be so aroused in fair-minded America that he will be compelled to leave the United States.

I propose to do my share toward realizing that end, anyhow.

Captain Wiener, the London cable continues, is a Philadelphian who has for some years lived in this country. Until a few months ago he ran a small news and photograph agency in the Strand.

SEEDNT WORRY.

Mr. Wiener, says the London cable, is supposed to live on a liberal allowance made to him by a rich and generous relative named Ketterlinus in Philadelphia. He had a considerable fortune some years ago and he may be the prospective heir of his Philadelphia relative, who is a rich lithographer, but those who know Mr. Wiener do not think that Harvard need worry about the loss of any bequest, whether $10,000,000 or less, he can now make.

Now what Bostonians are most interested to learn about is whether Wiener has the price. He has boasted that he will keep that $10,000,000 if Harvard doesn't dump Munsterberg, but even if Clarence had the "dough" Harvard would have to wait until he passed away and he is anything but aged and infirm.

From Philadelphia came tidings last night that while Clarence resided there he had a reputation for bringing advertising novelties. While at the Bellevue-Stratford he invented a striking advertisement in the newspapers announcing that he had lost —no, not that troublesome $10,000,000, but a basket of grapes. He promised to reward anyone honest enough to restore the grapes and several hundred answered the ad. It is reported that he was requested to leave the hotel after that escapade.

HIS OWN LIFE STORY.

In the Quaker City the impression is strong that Wiener hasn't got anything like $10,000,000 to give.

Wiener's family are among the most aristocratic in Philadelphia and active socially. Wiener has spent most of his life in England.

In writing about his life for the Harvard decennial report Wiener said about himself in part:

"In 1897, in November, I went to Cuba. In 1898, in August, I went to Porto Rico as first lieutenant and aide-de-camp on General F. D. Grant's staff. In 1899, in November, I went to South Africa as correspondent for the New York Sun.

"Appointed by Chamberlain of the London office, I went to Natal with General Buller, then to Cyphergats with General Outgate. At Stromberg I led back the remaining eighteen scouts of Captain Montmorency's Imperial Cross Scouts. I was given slight commissions in the next few days.

"I decided to organize a corps of scouts with Major Driscoll and was placed second in command of the corps—'Driscoll's Scouts.' I was slightly wounded, and in January, 1901, had an independent command of 340 men. Afterwards I was invested major and second in command of the Prince of Wales Light Horse (Welch regiment of 800).

"I had thirty-six polo ponies in Rome, where I started polo. In the Spring of 1904 I drove tandem and three extra horses 2,000 miles through Europe from Rome. In the spring of 1905 I drove tandem and three extra saddle horses from Rome through Simplon to Geneva, Aix for Rains, Lucerne, Prague, Dresden, Cologne, Linz and Vienna, in all 4,200 miles in four and three-fourths months.

WAR VIEWS AND THEIR SPONSORS THAT HAVE SPLIT HARVARD

President Eliot

"We must hope and pray that we will not be drawn in, but that will be due to the fact that Russia and France and England will not need us to accomplish the defeat of Germany.

"This is, perhaps, no time for prophecies, but it is not rash to prophesy that the American people will be true to its quality, its history and its debts to England and to France.

"All our hopes were shattered by Germany's actions. All our American ideas of the right to life, liberty, property, happiness were nullified by this nation, which is led by a ruler who has an archaic idea of his powers and of his relation to the world. . . . The present German philosophy stands on 'might makes right.'"—CHARLES W. ELIOT, president emeritus of Harvard.

"Dr. Eliot asserts that the Germany of art, education and science is against the war. Dr. Edwin D. Mead of the World Peace Foundation, after weeks of inquiry, believes otherwise.

"I stand by all I have said—and you will find it all in my book, 'The War and America.' This books aims to put forth my arguments for fair play for Germany.

"Dr. Eliot and others are entitled to their own opinions.

"Dr. Eliot has spoken of the German and Austrian armies as 'brute forces.' Is the English navy any less than a brute force?

"The public press is like a curved mirror which distorts and alters the perspective. With some of the best papers the reaction has set in.—HUGO MUNSTERBERG, professor of psychology at Harvard.

Professor Munsterberg.

DR. ELIOT SCORED BY THE MAGYARS

Newly Formed Organization Says His Views Must Not Be Taken Too Seriously.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, is attacked in a circular sent to the Magyars of the State yesterday by the Magyars of Massachusetts, a newly-formed organization. The circular says: "Nor is it wise to take Dr. Eliot too seriously."

The organization was formed to raise relief money for the needy in Hungary. The permanent organization of the Magyars of Massachusetts is yet to be effected, but a relief committee of fourteen has been appointed, consisting of three women and eleven men, all of Boston. This committee will meet at 10 o'clock this morning at the office in Barristers' Hall of Albert Propper, head of the association.

Mr. Propper said yesterday that Dr. Eliot's recent statements have aroused resentment among the thousands of Magyars in this State, who wrote protests to their leaders. The circular deprecating Dr. Eliot's attitude, which was issued by the association yesterday, was in response to the complaints.

STAMP U. S. WAR SCENES ON TOYS

American Makers Rise to Demand That Is Shut Off by Conflict in Europe.

The martial spirit stirred by the European war is to be reflected in a measure by American toys next Christmas. On drums and shields and other creations to be used by young America in play, war scenes are being stamped as decorations. Symbolic toys are being turned out in greater number than ever, such as swords and guns and soldier sets and tiny cannon and battleships and submarines.

Domestic toy makers have anticipated a demand the scope of which is already assured, judging from orders by wholesalers and retailers. And the cataclysm across the sea has played havoc with stock lithographs which had been used in this country for years, such as the stamps for drums showing the grouping of international flags.

Manufacturers say it would be hardly discreet or profitable to use the old groupings showing the national colors of England and France and Russia entwined with the flags of Germany and Austria. So new lithographs had to be struck off and the old and reliable groupings abandoned, which is another unlooked for sidelight on the far-reaching effect of the present war.

WORK DOUBLE CREW.

New England toy makers have been forced to work double shifts to meet the increase of orders resulting from the cutting off of importations from Germany, the big toy centre of Europe. They say there will be no shortage the coming Yuletide. One prominent manufacturer predicted that the year 1915, however, would be a critical one for the toy industry in the United States.

The Morton E. Converse & Sons toy factory at Winchendon, is one of the largest in the United States. It employs 500 hands. A. D. Converse said:

"We have been working a double shift night and day since the war began. Reports that the Asiatic market would not be able to meet the demand are not true. American makers are not so dependent on the German market as is generally supposed. Take our case for example. We have already met all orders and could accommodate more.

"We turn out all sorts of toys here. The cutting off of German products by the war was felt worse in this country so far as rocking horses were concerned. Drums are all made in this country. It wouldn't be possible to import the heads. The sea voyage would spoil them.

"Dolls also come from Germany in great numbers, and they are a high grade type, but domestic dealers are overcoming the doll difficulties in a surprising fashion.

MAKE HIGH GRADE TOY.

"We have made the high grade mechanical toys for years. We do not attempt to compete with the cheap mechanical devices of tin, such as the jumping jack and the like. We make our own motors and mechanical trains and trolleys and other types of heavy and durable toys.

"The war has caused a shift in lithographs. We can no longer stamp drums with the international flag groupings, as complications have necessitated a careful separation of colors. As a result we have abandoned these stock decorations which were popular for years and have substituted for them American battle scenes and emblems. We are working Getting and Bunker Hill and the Boy Scouts and similar embellishments."

Advertising to Be Topic of Lectures

To improve the quality of advertising, the Pilgrim Publicity Association has arranged a series of free educational lectures on advertising topics for the coming Winter.

The first part of the series will consist of lectures by Professor Paul Cherington of Harvard, Professor Colin Scott of the Boston Normal School, Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr., and Thomas Dreier. These lectures will be given by each of these men, in Union Hall, No. 48 Boylston street, the first one on October 21, the last on March 21.

The second part of the series will consist of group meetings in the rooms of the Pilgrim Publicity Association, No. 44 Bromfield street. These meetings will discuss the following: Retail Advertising, with talk by representative advertisers and a general discussion. By-Mail Advertising, for consideration of circulars, letters and catalogues. National Advertising Mediums and Methods. Trade Marks and Copyrights. These meetings will be conducted by H. C. Thompson, trade mark counsel of the association.

Bet Against Braves; Fined $100 for Theft

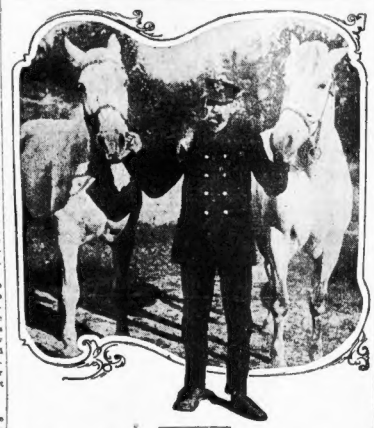
Stephen Irwin of No. 66 Pearl street, Cambridge, bet against the Braves in the World's Series. After he had admitted this in the Dorchester Court he was found guilty of the larceny of $85 from Mrs. Mary Sullivan of No. 114 Melville street, Cambridge, and was fined $100.

Irwin is a mattress renovator. Mrs. Sullivan telephoned to him to renovate her mattressed. He came with his helper, George F. McConnell of No. 174 Prentiss street, Cambridge. After the mattresses had been attended to Mrs. Sullivan found $85 which she had saved for taxes and hidden beneath the mattress had strangely disappeared.

Patrolman Jeremiah Sheehan investigated and arrested first McConnell, and later—after questioning Mrs. Sullivan—arrested Irwin also. In court McConnell was acquitted, but Irwin—found guilty and fined $100—appealed and was held in $500.

Fire Horses Refuse to Quit Firemen Resort to Fake Alarm

LIEUTENANT G. L. LEACH, WITH TOM AND JERRY.



Refusing to be ousted from their places at the Greenwood fire house by the advent of motor apparatus, two of the fire horses of the Wakefield Fire Department, known as Tom and Jerry, were removed from office only by strategy and are now stationed in the town's street department.

For the past three years the handsome white horses have been the pride of the department and the pets of the firemen. They were unusually intelligent animals and learned to box and do all sorts of tricks.

A few days ago motor apparatus was installed in the fire station and the horse-drawn hose wagon was backed to one side of the fire station. The two horses, however, were retained until it should be seen that the motor apparatus was all right.

When the day arrived for the horses to leave the station, Lieutenant George L. Leach, in charge of the Greenwood house, accompanied by an employe of the street department, went to the stalls to lead the animals out. Much to their surprise, both animals refused to budge. Coaxing, tempting them with sugar and other arguments failed to start the horses. The men were in a quandary.

Finally, it was necessary to resort to strategy. The motor apparatus was run out of the house, the old hose wagon was backed into its former place, and the drop harness arranged. Then a "fake" alarm was sounded on the Greenwood hose house tapper. True to their training, the horses ran to their positions beneath the drops, were quickly harnessed, and Lieutenant Leach and the street department employes rode on the gallop in the hose wagon to the town stables. There the two horses were unharnessed and stabled.

Both animals will be retained by the town for street work. Drivers of the horses, however, expect to be treated to a thrilling ride some day when the horses are within sound of the fire bells and the apparatus dashes past en route to a fire.

LOWELL EXPLAINS AIMS OF HARVARD

'Our One Function to Weld Youth Into One Type,' He Tells Federated Clubs.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 17.—"Our one function to perform," said President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard last night before the meeting of the Federated Harvard Clubs of New England, "is to weld the youth of the country together into one type that will understand its different manners." Mr. Lowell devoted the major part of his address to a discussion of the new freshman dormitory system organized this year at Cambridge. In addition, Samuel J. Elder, one of Boston's famous lawyers and a member of the class of '82 at Yale, spoke.

"There is one criticism that has come to me," Mr. Lowell said, "and that emphasizes the cost of the three new dormitories which we erected after lengthy canvass among the alumni of the college. We did not build for the present, but for futurity. Some have complained that we have provided too many luxuries and that we are giving the youth the things they ought not to have. Yet the luxuries of the present day may be the necessities of the future.

"Our great aim in the establishment of the freshmen dormitories has been to avoid segregation. For this reason such things as the freshmen dining table have been abolished. We charge every man for his food, but they eat anywhere he wishes. As a result practically every man eats in the dining halls provided in the dormitories.

"We have not placed any restraint on the men, for we wish to produce an environment and an atmosphere. We want the men from all parts of the country to become friends, know each other and understand the different ways of their fellowmen.

"Through an anonymous gift to the college we have been able to supply a professorship of hygiene, held by a doctor who does not devote any of his time to practice. It was the aim of the donor to provide a medical friend to the student. We have also made a physical examination of every freshman compulsory. This was adopted by a number of other American universities."

Mr. Elder spoke of the kindly feeling that in late years had sprung up between Harvard and Yale. In speaking of the great war in Europe, he said: "It may never be known who is right. Be assured, though, that the German and Austrian thinks he is fighting for the safety of the fatherland and that the French and English are fighting for the sanctity of treaties, the peace of the world and the growth of civilization."

Auto Ride and Crash Gets Three Nahant Men Into Trouble

IPSWICH, Oct. 17.—Three Nahant young men are in trouble as the result of an auto ride. They are James G. Loftus, Benjamin Martin and Harry McIntyre. The automobile in which they were riding collided with an ice wagon in this town. The horses were injured. The machine was damaged. Loftus was fined $10 for driving a car without a license and $50 for operating it while intoxicated. Harry Coles of Nahant said the machine belonged to him and that it was taken from his yard. He says he will prefer charges for theft of the car.

Rides in Luxury in an Ambulance

Arthur Springer of Woburn likes the Boston patrol wagons. Arthur was arrested at Hamilton place and Tremont street yesterday by Patrolman William Wills. Wills asked a citizen to call the patrol wagon. Friend Citizen made a miscue at the box and called the ambulance, which has air cushions and rubber pillows. When Springer sprang on the cushions he chirped: "Take me to the station by the longest route." Then he peacefully fell asleep.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF FALLING OUT OR DANDRUFF—25-CENT DANDERINE

Ladies! Men! Here's the quickest, surest dandruff cure known.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

7 WOUNDED ON U.S. SOIL BY MEXICAN STRAY BULLETS

200 Yaquis Indians Killed in Repulse of Maytorena's Force at Naco.

NACO, Ariz., Oct. 17.—A two-hour attack on the trenches protecting Naco, Sonora, today resulted in the repulsing of forces of Maytorena's Yaquis Indians, who left upward of 200 dead on the field. The fighting was the fiercest since the attack on the border city began eighteen days ago, and when the Yaquis retired to their trenches bodies of their dead were piled up almost to the line of the hill immediately south of the town.

Again the American town of Naco, Arizona, was subjected to a galling fire with the result that seven persons were wounded, two of them it is believed mortally. Four of these hit are United States soldiers.

The wounded soldiers are: Private Robert W. Watson, troop B Ninth Cavalry, shot in the abdomen, will die; Private Daniel Wakefield, troop H Ninth Cavalry, shot in the head, believed mortally hurt; Private E. McCarver, troop A Ninth Cavalry, shot in the leg; Sergeant Mason Stith, standing gun platoon, Tenth Cavalry, shot in the thigh.

Private Wakefield was on sentry duty guarding the border when he was shot down. The other three men were in the cavalry company north of the town at McCarver being in the guard house. The wounded soldiers were at once sent to Fort Huachuca for treatment at the posts hospital. They were loaded into a baggage car which had just been emptied of a consignment of rifles and ammunition for the Hill forces.

The casualties today brings the total number of wounded American soldiers since the fighting began up to seven, one of which has since died.

ORDER CARRANZA TO STOP FIGHTING OF REVOLT AT ONCE

By JOHN W. ROBERTS.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

AGUASCALIENTES, Mex., Oct. 16, via El Paso, Oct. 17.—The Mexican National Peace Convention last night in secret session adopted a resolution ordering First Chief Carranza, General Benjamin Hill, Governor Maytorena and General Zapata to cease all hostilities immediately. This was made necessary on account of alarming reports reaching here of battle in the suburbs of Mexico City between Zapatista followers of Carranza. The convention will send up another formal invitation to Zapata to send his twenty-five delegates at once. This was signed by 91 delegates.

General Villa, accompanied by his staff and a guard of a thousand men, arrived unannounced in Aguas Calientes late last night. His unexpected arrival created a profound sensation.

It was not expected, explained General Villa. My train was ready to go to Durango, but I changed my mind and decided to come here to consult with the generals of my division with reference to the military situation in Durango, which is far from satisfactory.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 17.—John R. Silliman reported to the State Department today that he had received guarantees from General Aguilar that the Mexican troops lying west of Vera Cruz would not attack the American forces in this city. Afterwards Mr. Silliman left for Mexico City to confer with officials of the Mexican Government.

Mr. Silliman visited General Aguilar's camp last night. The Mexican general denied the rumor that he intended of attacking the Americans and readily agreed to meet Mr. Silliman in diplomatic agent. A proclamation was issued to the Mexican soldiers today, ordering them to abstain from acts of violence and hostility against Americans.

At the same time it was intimated that the departure of the Americans would be hastened.

Quits Engineering to Teach Tango Graduate Finds More Money in It

ZENAS CROCKER AND MISS LAURA CARTER IN NEW POLKA.

When it comes right down to the brass tacks of money-making, Zenas Crocker, Jr., Tech graduate and former business associate of Richard Washburn Child, the writer, thinks the tango has it all over engineering. So, hurled of sitting in front of his rolltop desk on State street, he is out in the Back Bay teaching the society buds—and matrons, too—how to dance the modern steps.

"It was engineering or dancing, and I chose the latter as the more remunerative," he says. He is now teaching the Brazilian polka, one of the very, very latest, they say, of the up-to-the-minute agnees.

Four years young Crocker spent fitting himself out at Tech for an engineering career. He was on the relay team, was statistician of the Technique, was elected into the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, and a year ago he graduated.

INDUSTRIAL ENGINEER.

After graduation he entered the offices of H. G. Valentine, the former Commissioner of Indian Affairs and now an industrial engineer. In the same office is Arthur Child, the engineering specialty consisting in giving counsel in labor and industrial matters generally.

"When the war broke out," declared young Crocker yesterday, "I made up my mind to make a change. I had been thinking it over for some time, and the question fell back on dancing. I secured Miss Laura Carter, a New York dancer, as my partner and started in.

"These are the directions he gives for dancing the Brazilian polka:

"The dance is in the same time as the famous Two beginnings are always with the right foot.

"The couple takes four slow walking steps, then four running steps. Then comes four running steps, composed of a slide and a step. You really do start off with a marked body motion.

"Then come two pas de basques, or box steps. Box, because they form three sides of a square in making the step.

MAKES A LITTLE BOW.

"To make the box step, the gentleman separates from his partner, taking two steps backward, away from her with a little bow. She bows, too, and both have hands at sides. The girl stands while he moves backward for the two steps. The two now face in readiness for the box step. There is a count of one, two, three, four, and on the four both pairs feet together, facing, but with positions reversed. This last step is repeated and the couple thus return to their original position, with a bow at the end.

"They step towards one another, the gentleman putting his right hand on the girl's waist, her right hand going to his left shoulder. Each keeps the left hand at the side and slightly to the back.

"Now come eight half side corte steps, completing one whole turn. This I call the 'P. P. P.'—the pedal propelled pivot. The lady takes eight steps, the gentleman takes seven, stepping back with the left foot on the count of eight and making a little bow. She acknowledges.

DESCRIBES A CIRCLE.

"Then, as directed, the gentleman takes the lady's right hand in his left, holding it overhead. The lady describes a small circle—described, you would say, mathematics. She starts with the left foot and takes eight steps. At the same time the gentleman, still holding her hand, circumscribes a circle about her, starting with his right foot and going in the opposite direction to that she takes. He takes eight steps, too. This brings them back to their starting position.

"In this turn, the lady passes the gentleman once and faces him on the count of eight.

"They pass easily into the initial position and start over again."

Young Crocker has been selected to teach dancing at the Conservatory of Music.

Zenas Crocker, Jr., Tech graduate, who finds tango dancing more profitable than engineering.

Sure! All Along the Nation's Song Has Sounded Wrong

The claim is now made, on account of the fame that Boston has gained in the national game, that maybe a line or two rubs it a bit wrong that always has been in the national song. Dame Boston is modest, as ladies should be, but people keep talking and writing about the town, since the World's Series has proved such a snap, Dame Boston comes first on the national map.

The line in the song we have reference to is one that need only be changed a bit to read: "I tells how the Spangled Banner shall wave over the land of the free and the home of the brave. The statement is made it would not be amiss to have the line changed so be written like this: "The World's Series shall gallantly wave over the land of the bean and the home of the Braves."

Watch Presented to Ex-Mayor Barry

Ex-Mayor J. Edward Barry of Cambridge was presented a gold watch and chain, following a dinner tendered him last night at Brigham's Hotel by Cambridge politicians.

BREAKS A COLD IN A FEW HOURS WITHOUT QUININE

First dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" relieves all grippe misery.

Don't stay stuffed-up. Quit blowing and snuffling. A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up any cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages; stops nasty discharge or nose running; relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

'FATHER' FOR ONCE HAS HIS INNINGS

WORCESTER, Oct. 17.—The negligent treatment of the infants here today when Mrs. William Lowell Putnam of Boston spoke before the delegates of the Massachusetts branch of the National Congress of the Mothers and Parents' Potential Association.

"A father thinks just as much of the baby as the mother and he is not given the slightest consideration," said Mrs. Putnam. "The fathers in the home are shamefully neglected. I am a mistake to believe that the mothers possess all the virtues."

Another speaker was Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson of New York, National chairman of Child Hygiene, who laid the blame for many divorces upon the fact that noisy infants disturbed the peace of homes. "The health of the child is the basis upon which contentment is built," she said.

"The inefficient mother considered even an ill-managed nursery and unattractive home good things into the world saving children because she does not know how to care for herself before they are born. It is hard for a man to have to go home after his day's work to children made sick by sickness. It is cruel enough to drive him to drink. What is more terrible at night than a cross baby? The most efficient mother has a disorganized housekeeping family because she does not take the time to care for herself before they are born."

Mrs. Herbert N. Wright, president of a Worcester branch of the Parental Teachers' Association, said:

"Mrs. Richard Child's pupils are stupid, lazy and vicious."

The truth of this claim has been proved in hundreds of thousands of cases throughout the United States.

COURT FIGHT MAY HALT TECH WORK

Wellesley Woman Would Silence Stone Crusher Which Furnishes Construction Material.

The work on the new Technology buildings in Cambridge will be brought to a sudden halt if Mrs. Helen B. Baker of Woodland avenue, Wellesley succeeds in obtaining an injunction from the Superior Court restraining the Wellesley Gravel Company from operating its plant opposite her residence. A hearing will be held next Friday. She seeks this injunction on the grounds that the plant is a public nuisance, makes intolerable noise, causes so much dust that she is unable to open her windows and she is unable to hold conversation on her veranda without exhaustion and patience.

According to Clarence G. Coley, who is the treasurer of the gravel company, the company is doing all it can to do away with these objectionable features. They do not want to be held up in their work because they have the contract to supply all the gravel to be used in the construction of the new Institute of Technology. If they are to be restrained from operating their plant this work will be halted and the contractors are already many months behind their schedule owing to a change in the plans.

Magnificent Hair Easy to Obtain Quickly—Some Astonishing Beauty Secrets

Many Months of Precious Time Have Now Been Eliminated in the Acquirement of Beauty, Says Valeska Suratt, America's Famous Self-Made Beauty-Actress.

By Miss Valeska Suratt

If you could actually see a difference of two inches or three inches in the growth of your hair in a few days, I feel certain that such an improvement in its vigor and silky appearance you would perhaps wonder whether a miracle had not been suddenly performed. Changes of this kind are so infrequent that most women do not believe them possible, yet the fact remains that if the proper means are employed they are more likely to occur than not. The proper means, of course, are the nourishing factor. Mere hair tonics, which are commonly sold in ready-prepared form and ready to use, are so often weak in power and in ingredients that a difference of two inches in the growth of your hair in a few days is impossible.

"A Difference of Several Inches a Month Has Resulted From This Excellent Formula."

Here is a formula which may be relied upon to produce results that it is remarkable how much of them are called a surprise. If you would obtain a really beautiful head of hair quickly and with little trouble, just make up yourself at home in a few minutes, a mixture of one ounce of beta-quinol with one-half a pint of alcohol and half a pint of water (or use a full pint of bay rum if you prefer). Add the alcohol to the water, and alcohols and apply this liberally to the scalp, rubbing it apparent little will stop falling, dandruff will disappear, and the hair will grow with remarkable rapidity. It is in fact surprising how the hair roots quickly take on new life and vigor, and naturally enough, when this occurs, almost any hair trouble is bound to disappear. Beta-quinol makes over a pint of this unequaled hair grower, and costs but little more than a hair tonic, and besides it is far more effective.

PHILLIPPA.—Superfluous hair on a woman is a hideous thing. Many women hesitate to use depilatories because the ordinary preparations sold for this purpose injure the skin and leave a spot where supplied, simply because the formula literally burned off. The way to do is to use simple sulfo solution, which is the only thing known that will simply dissolve away the hair and leave the skin soft, white and natural. In this way no one can ever tell you used anything for removing hair. Simple sulfo solution can be obtained at any drug store. It never fails to destroy the hair right and coarse, with the utmost certainty and promptness, and it never injures the most sensitive skin or leaves a mark.

MRS. S. T.—Only one cream is necessary to beautify the skin and bring it to a condition of incomparable loveliness in a short time. A few days' use will astonish them. Make up a mixture of one tablespoonful of glycerine and one ounce of Ithione in a pint of water. This makes a satin cream which will never injures the most sensitive skin or leaves a mark.

MISS T. D. N.—Here is a wrinkle-removing formula which has already become famous because of its quick action in removing wrinkles, skin plump and vigorous and thereby eliminating all trace and lines of age. Mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and two ounces of witch hazel in a half-pint of water. The result is a beautiful cream of wonderful absorbent qualities. Rig and little wrinkles disappear and looseness of flesh disappear in a remarkably short time. The difference in the appearance of sex will be quite startling.

EVELINA D.—Development of the bust is very often possible. There is absolutely no assurance of this, however. There is danger in the use of vacuum cups, pumps and the like. The following mixture is safe and has been very successful. To half a pint of hot water add half a cup of sugar and two ounces of mustone, with which any druggist will supply you. Dissolve thoroughly and take two teaspoonfuls after meals and on retiring.

MISS FONDLY.—Do not pinch out blackheads. You can remove them without fail and in a few minutes by sprinkling some cream of tar in hot-wet sponge and rubbing this on the blackheads. Then look in the mirror and see the difference. This is the only article I know that will really remove blackheads, and do it almost instantly.

JANET T. D.—You probably don't realize that dandruff may now be checked in any community. You will not done with soap, because the alkali in soap is not permitted. But you will dissolve a teaspoonful of borax in half a pint of water and use as a head wash, you will be surprised at its wonderful effect. You can secure from your druggist a few ounces of beta-quinol to make over a dozen of these shampoos.

MISS WAITING.—Hydrolized talc is a remarkable thing for excessive perspiration of the armpits. Use it liberally, and you will find that you will suffer no longer from the excessive wetness under the arms and dress shields and arm-pits will be fresh and dry and you will have no more gowns ruined by perspiration. Hydrolized talc can be obtained at any drug store. It also destroys perspiration and bad odors completely.

GERMANY CANNOT BE BEATEN, DECLARES PROF. KUHNEMANN

At 20th Century Club Defends Militarism and Says Documents Show Belgium Was in League with England.

"The victory will be ours. The German people are unconquerable," declared Professor Eugen Kuhnemann of Berlin, formerly exchange professor at Harvard University, before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday.

The professor came to the defence of militarism, which he defined to be a scientific training for the people. He was interrupted several times by the Rev. Dr. C. F. Dole, president of the club, to explain several of his assertions, especially about the treatment of Belgium by Germany. The professor said documentary evidence had been obtained in Brussels showing that Belgium was to league with England before the war began.

Defending militarism, he said:

POWER OF DISCIPLINE.

"The militarism in Germany has been a powerful means for civilization. The German army is the greatest teacher. Through this militarism the German people have learned discipline. It has been also a wonderful scientific training. It has shown the sense of physical science, the way to walk, etc., so that today it is the concentrated power of the German nation against a world of enemies.

"The militarism of Germany has been also the means of keeping peace for forty years in Germany.

"Now I am asked about Von Bernhardi's book, 'Germany and Next War.' I have not read this book till lately, neither have my friends read it. It is no authority in Germany. England, for the sake of its own cause, has multiplied the sale of that book. But Germans do not put any trust in the book as authoritative. The general himself is considered unfavorably in Germany and he was dismissed from the army.

"Often in this country we hear much about democracy. Let me say, that Germany is more of a democratic country than America.

DEMOCRACY IN GERMANY.

"We have in many respects developed the idea of democracy. It is the rule of the people which prevails in Germany.

"Then we are told that the Alsatians are more contented under French rule than under German. This may be true of the lower classes in that section, but it is not true of the cultured classes. Many volunteers on the side of Germany are in this province.

"Then Germany gains the victory. It will mean the subjection of Russia and that England and France will stop their aggressive lusts against Germany."

He denied that Germany began the war and gave evidence that the Kaiser did all in his power to have peace. He also said Russia was mobilizing long before any other nation; that when war did break out, Russia had her troops from Siberia right near the German line.

"How could this be if Germany started the war?" asked the professor. "How did these troops from that far-away country get to Germany?" Professor Kuhnemann showed how reports of false victories by the Russians were circulated through the Balkan states to inspire awe in that section.

"Germany is the only country today in the war zone where the financial and industrial life has no real disturbance," he declared.

NEUTRALITY OF BELGIUM.

"How about the neutrality of Belgium. If that country had only let us go through the German people would have paid any penalty. But we found that Belgium was in league with England. Such documentary evidence we discovered in Brussels.

"I deny the atrocities attributed to us. The German army is made of the people; they are not paid soldiers, and they would not be guilty of the atrocities made against them. When the Belgians turned snipers then certain things were done, but not what has been said about our army.

"Then about the Rheims Cathedral. This is not destroyed. The French put their cannons upon it and made a point in the battle line.

"Japan did not want to join in the war, but England made it.

"The Slav has been satisfied with Austrian treatment and they do not care to stand apart from that country.

"The war would not have been started in the shape that it has had but England refused to be neutral."

Prof Kuhnemann denied that Germany had declared war on England, but England had declared war on Germany.

"Every child in Germany knows this," he said. "We went so far as to ask England what was its attitude toward neutrality and she never answered our request."

DEFENDED HOME LAND.

"But this war was prophesied in 1907, when a certain article appeared in an English review. It was undoubtedly written by some one prominent in the government. Ever since that article Germany has been on her guard.

"Over in Germany we had to look after ourselves. You Americans would do the same if you were threatened on your Pacific Coast with the invasion of the Japanese. Treaties or no treaties, you would protect yourselves."

Following the address, which was frequently cheered owing to the expiration of the time limit, Professor Kuhnemann answered a dozen questions, most important of which were:

Q.—Do you think Austria-Hungary has treated her Slavic people so fairly as to warrant the demands she made of Servia?

A.—I think the attitude of the Slavic people in this war is proof enough that they have been satisfied with Austria's treatment. The feature of the war, that which has surprised Europe more than anything else, is the way the Slavs have gone into the war on the Austrian side.

Q.—Why should Germany have allowed so little time for the consideration of the issue between Austria and Servia?

A.—This was an act of Austria alone and Germany had nothing to do with it. It was presented as a different attitude was absolutely impossible.

Q.—Have you sufficient reason to believe that France or Russia would have attacked Germany if Germany had kept her army within her own territory?

A.—Yes. Germany said to France: "Remain out of the war and we will do nothing against you." She also said this to England. Why did Russia call her Siberian regiments to the border of Germany? Was not that with the intention of attacking Germany?

Q.—What right has any nation—Germany in the case of Belgium and the allies in the case of the Chinese—to make neutral territory the theatre of war?

A.—No right, of course. It is not a case of right or wrong, but a war for national existence or non-existence. With every nation the first law is the preservation of the nation he has to lead.

Several women laughed and giggled at the professor's explanation, but the professor gravely and calmly explained why Germany had invaded Belgium. But, undisturbed, the professor said: "Those people are in a state of laughter enormously."

Q.—Are you satisfied with the treatment Germany has given to the people of Alsace-Lorraine since they were taken from France?

A.—I could answer this by saying "Yes," but undoubtedly the question or means are the people of Alsace-Lorraine satisfied with the treatment they have received from the Germans? To this I answer: While we have found a few traitors in the lowest class of the people, all the educated people of Alsace-Lorraine have been loyal to Germans. An unusually large number of Alsatians have enlisted in the German army. Since we have given them a sort of "home rule" they have been entirely satisfied.

Q.—In case of the decisive victory of Germany in this war, do you see any need of the United States to maintain a strong navy with reference to Germany to defend the Monroe Doctrine? Do you see anything unfriendly to Germany in the Monroe Doctrine?

MEANS EUROPEAN PEACE.

A.—The defeat of Germany means Russian domination in the whole of Europe, the stopping of the progress of civilization in Europe for centuries if not for always. It means clearly a second big battle or war between England and Russia. And you can easily think what will come after this second war. The victory of Germany means clearly that Russia, England and France will forever have lost their aggressive lusts against Germany. So the victory of Germany means peace for Europe. I don't think the United States needs a stronger navy with reference to Germany, and, especially, it will never have to defend the Monroe Doctrine against Germany.

WAR WILL LAST TWO YEARS, SAYS DR. ALDERMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the the University of Virginia, who returned from Europe yesterday after a five months' trip abroad, said:

The opinion of thoughtful people in England as to the the length of the war is that it probably will last until the Summer of 1916. It is generally felt that it will be a fight to the finish, whether that is interpreted to mean either the destruction of the British fleet on the one hand, or on the other, continued economic pressure upon Germany making a continuance of the war impossible.

Russians Beaten Berlin Report

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A German victory over the Russians at Lyck on October 14, in which the Russians lost 800 prisoners, was claimed in a statement from Berlin given out by the German Wireless Press Bureau to-day. The Germans claim to have taken one cannon and three machine guns.

"Fierce attacks by the French northwest of Rheims have been repulsed," says the official statement. "The French claim to have advanced in that district, but the facts do not bear out the French claims.

"Official reports from Vienna state that the Austro-Hungarian advance through the Carpathians is progressing favorably. The Russians are retreating from the Artyca region."

Germans Buying Gasoline in U. S.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—"Germany has an elaborate plan to transport gasoline from America," says The Automobile Magazine. Within the last six weeks, the magazine says, a dozen vessels carrying 10,000 to 20,000 barrels of motor spirits sailed from America for Germany or Austria-Hungary.

It is said that in the present year Copenhagen received 20,000 gallons against 16,275 in the same months last year, the bulk of the increase being credited to the period covered by the war. Vessels flying Danish, Norwegian and Swedish flags are mentioned as the carriers.

Letters Describe German Suffering

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The government, through having made public a number of letters taken from Germans found in Norwegian and Swedish ships, of them state that the German prisoners are unused to long marches and are suffering from great hardships. Sickness in the German camps is on the increase.

RUSSIANS CLAIM WARSAW VICTORY

Battle Along 200 Mile Front Proceeding Favorably Petrograd Reports.

PETROGARD, Oct. 17.—Grand Duke Nicholas has elected to fight his decisive battle on his own territory. The Russians, who had penetrated almost to Cracow, have been withdrawn to a line running from the Carpathian Mountains south of Przemysl northward along the San and Vistula rivers for a distance of more than 200 miles. Fighting along this wide frontier has been in progress for several days with results entirely satisfactory to the Russians.

The Germans made a desperate attack on their left with the intention of getting within reach of Warsaw, in order to bombard it. The Russians met the attack thirty miles West of Warsaw and drove the Germans back.

The next German move was a vigorous attack from the right flank, where Austria troops, under German officers, predominate. Here the Russians had much less difficulty and took many prisoners and guns, while beating back the attack.

Fighting along a part of the entire front filled all of Thursday, the Germans attacking along some 120 miles, two-thirds of their front, evidently in order to give their left, previously driven back, time to recover. By Friday their attack had been stopped throughout its length by the Russians and the Germans were forced from a position of attack to one of defence.

It had been universally believed that Russia would be chosen as the arena for the great struggle. Probably that belief was cultivated without intention, but Germany is everywhere strongest in mechanical appliances for slaughter, of which strategic railways are the most important factors.

Had the fight been located in Belgium anywhere near the Russo-German frontiers, the Germans would have enjoyed the fullest use of all their mechanical appliances for their scientific methods of warfare. As it is they have a couple of hundred miles of what Napoleon called "the worst marching country of Europe" between their firing line and the railways.

General Malleterre Is Badly Wounded

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The youngest French commander, General Malleterre, aged forty-five, lies wounded in Paris. His left leg has been amputated and his left arm is shattered. He is being nursed by his young daughter. His wife, who served with an ambulance at the battle front, had her shoulder torn by a shell. His son, a dragoon officer, was also wounded. The general was badly wounded in winning a battle at Bar Le Duc when a spy notified a German battery of his whereabouts. As he left the restaurant a shell burst near him, inflicting terrible wounds.

England Cares for Thousands of Homeless Refugees

CALAIS, France, Oct. 17.—A pall of terror and desolation hangs over Northern Belgium and France. Tens of thousands of refugees, penniless, homeless and hungry, have been taken to England, where they are living on charity.

All the cities of Northern France on the coast are crowded with fugitives who fled from their homes leaving all behind. It is feared that most of these homes are in ruins. Dover and Folkstone in England are overcrowded. Most of the refugees are in a nightmare of panic for fear the Germans will make an aerial raid and drop bombs. Famine is rampant. More than 2,000,000 people in Northern Belgium and Northern France are homeless.

German Cyclists First to Enter Ostend

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A dispatch to the Daily News gives the following unofficial account of the German occupation of Ostend:

"The Germans entered Ostend about 10:30 Thursday morning. The civil guardsmen were seized and their rifles were thrown into the harbor. The advance guard of the Germans was composed of Uhlans. They were guided into the city by German eyclists. About five minutes after the German cyclist soldiers appeared six Uhlans rode into view. They were followed by twelve others. Then came the German officers and motor truck after motor truck filled with German infantrymen. The troops proceeded to the city hall, where the German flag was hoisted. The refugees who had been unable to leave were panic stricken."

Only Sure Corn Cure Ever Known

"Gets-It" the New Way, 2 Drops Do It.

To endure the pains and tortures caused by a little thing like a corn is ridiculous, simply because it is unnecessary. The new-plan corn cure,

"GETS-IT" is the first one ever known to remove corns without pain, by simply putting a drop upon them. This is why it is the biggest-selling corn cure in existence. "GETS-IT" is now used by millions, because it does away with stiffening with plasters and cotton rings that shift their position and cause needless pain. Also with salves that "spy up" the toe, and "harness" that cause pressure and pain, with knives, razors and files, chawing and pulling at a corn. "GETS-IT" is applied in two seconds. Two drops applied with the glass rod do the work—the pain goes, the corn ceases existing. Accept no substitute. Try it on any corn, wart, bunion or callus to-night.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere—35c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. If "GETS-IT" is sold in Boston by Riker-Jordan Stores.

SMOKING RUINS IN PLACE OF ARRAS

Beautiful French City Laid Waste as Result of War.

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Staff Correspondent of the American.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The ancient, beautiful city of Arras, in northeastern France, is in ruins. This sad news is contained in a special dispatch to the Matin.

All that remains intact of the magnificent fifteenth century town hall is the lofty belfry. Bodies are still being extricated from the debris. They are being burned at night on funeral pyres of logs to prevent an epidemic.

The prefect of Pas de Calais was the only person to remain in his quarters during the bombardment which destroyed the city. The prefect stayed in the office of the prefecture, risking death. When the Germans occupied the city last month the commander of the invading forces sought to occupy the offices of the prefect, but he refused. When the enemy returned from the city they turned their guns against it. Volleys were concentrated against the prefecture, but the official was not wounded. He had many narrow escapes.

The Figaro says that the Society of Dramatic Authors has decided to oust Herr Humperdinck, Professor Hauptmann and a number of other famous Germans.

The Gaulois publishes an interview with the Bishop of Orleans in which he says that one-third of the priests of his diocese have joined the French army and are on the battle line.

A Rome dispatch to the Echo de Paris states that the proposed performances of Wagner's "Parsifal" in Naples have been cancelled and another opera substituted because of the strong anti-German feeling in Italy.

British Protest on Ship's Clearance

LOS ANGELIS, Oct. 17.—C. White Mortimer, British vice-consul, filed formal protest today with United States Collector of Customs J. B. Elliott against granting a clearance to the Mexican steamer Manatlan, giving as his reason that the Manatlan had taken aboard a large quantity of munitions and provisions for a German cruiser, now off the Mexican coast.

'Prosperity Coming for Boston After War', Says Curley

Mayor Curley, in a letter yesterday to President Benton of the Boston Public Library trustees, urging the establishment of a business men's reference library in the old aldermanic chamber at City Hall, declared that the end of the war "must of necessity result in an industrial and commercial prosperity unprecedented in the history of Boston. A repeal of the archaic navigation laws and the adoption of a liberal policy with reference to American registry must of necessity result in increased commercial opportunities," the Mayor wrote.

Mayor Curley has approved tentative plans for the library. Several months ago the Mayor requested Mr. Kenney, one of the library trustees, to visit other cities to look into the working of similar business men's reference libraries. Last week Mr. Kenney reported back to the Mayor.

U. S. ATTACHES HELD IN BERLIN

THE HAGUE, Holland, Oct. 17.—A Berlin dispatch states that the police raided the British Consulate on Monday. A relief committee has been installed there.

The Berlin police are reported to have made a number of arrests at the United States Embassy on the ground that Secretary Weston and his assistants are both English.

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium is also with the Belgian army, it is said.

And Become a Perfect Man

RUPTURE is a handicap. It will never get well of itself, but gets worse from time to time. It will certainly cause you pain and distress. It positively grows dangerous—think of the danger of the rupture reaching their lives to strangulation.

Don't forget that the old-fashioned antiquated truss and appliance won't help you—at best they are only a makeshift, a crutch, a star of hope for the ruptured—a safe, sure cure is assured by the adherence of the lock. There is hope, joy and comfort awaiting you.

The "Schulling Rupture Lock"

is a wonderful invention for rupture—the outcome of years of study, hard work and diligent research. It is away from the old lines of trusses, elastic belts, etc., and is entirely on a new way. Nature intends to cure you may heal the rupture—is assisted by the Rupture Lock.

Simple, safe, inexpensive, and will cure, but does not cure all we claim after trial required, it will not cost you a cent.

The Real Secret of Healing Rupture

To successfully co-operate with Nature in the work of healing, the supporting device must be so considerate that the rupture retains instantaneous and draws together the breached opening instead of pushing it apart.

The trusses of today are sadly lacking in this most essential feature, and in fact, in every essential feature. Such can not help but enlarge it, making it that much harder for the tissue to grow together, and is uncontrollable rupture with serious complications.

The Schulling Rupture Lock was conceived to overcome just such faults. It is made to comply with Nature's laws and reach the objective point by the safest and shortest possible route. That it has succeeded is best told by the thousands who are now singing its praises in every part of the world. This is the Rupture Lock that you get on a 30 Day Trial.

Write for My Free Book at Once

It tells you all about getting rid of your rupture—it tells you about interesting references of former ruptured sufferers. It tells why physicians and surgeons endorse the Rupture Lock instead of advising dangerous operations. It tells you why the Rupture Lock is different from all trusses ever sold. It tells how the Rupture Lock gives you much advice and many facts about rupture that you never heard or read about, also tells you how to order the 30 Days Trial.

Send me the coupon, or, still easier, just drop me a postal card with your full address, and the book will be sent you promptly by return mail.

ASK WILSON TO STAY ZEPPELINS

Protest, in Humanity's Name Framed by Passengers on the Olympic.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—F. Hopkinson Smith, the American author and artist, who was among those returning on the Olympic yesterday, in discussing the war in Europe said:

"The Germans, in my opinion, intend to fly their Zeppelins over London next month and destroy innocent women and children if the United States, through President Wilson, does not intervene for the sake of humanity."

Mr. Smith was the chairman at a meeting of 200 first-cabin passengers held in the library saloon on Thursday in aid of the Red Cross Societies. Many passengers at the meeting denounced the practice of dropping bombs from aircraft, and the meeting adopted this resolution of protest:

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings be forwarded to the President of the United States, accompanied by a personal letter, begging him, in the interests of humanity to protest, so far as lies within his power, against the continuance of this practice.

1. Because it is necessary to the instincts of all civilized peoples and

2. As being sure to alienate every particle of sympathy from those indorsing such outrages, and

3. As [illegible] brutal and cruel in itself [illegible] but without any other [illegible] advantage than the terrorizing, maiming, and killing of innocent noncombatants who are helpless against such attacks.

In a letter to President Wilson Mr. Smith wrote:

NEW YORK, Oct. 16, 1914.

Mr. President: I have the honor to forward to you the inclosed memorandum, which explains itself. We earnestly beg that some steps may be taken to forestall, if not it is too late, the setting free of the fleet of Zeppelins to [illegible] which are now preparing for this deadly work. We feel it is not a question of neutrality, but a question of humanity, and that any power refusing to heed your wise and humane counsel would forfeit the sympathy of the world. Most respectfully, your obedient servant.

Wilson Courts No Rebuff on Peace

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Commenting on what it calls American peace talk, the Outlook says.

We all want peace, but what the allies do not want and will not permit is the interference of persons and nations who are not active participants in the war. As a matter of fact official America has been strictly correct in this regard and President Wilson is the last man to court rebuff, for a rebuff he would certainly receive if he volunteered any peace proposals at the present juncture.

We sympathize with the natural desire of the States that they should enjoy the blessings of peace without the burden of its enforcement, and we understand their annoyance that abstention from the contest has not given them the commercial advantage which they naturally but erroneously expected.

Two German Spies Captured in Paris

American, Long Resident in London, Declares English Wait for Raid.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Mr. James McDonald, one of the best known Americans resident in London, for many years head of the Standard Oil interests in Great Britain, who has just arrived from England, where he has made his home in London for twenty-four years, and whose acquaintance among the leading men of England is wide and intimate, says that there is quiet confidence in the outcome of the war.

U. S. DECREE TO DISSOLVE NEW HAVEN R. R. FILED

Three Sets of Trustees Named to Take Charge of Disposal of the Securities of the Roads Held by the Company

Marcus P. Knowlton, the Former Chief Justice of State Supreme Court, Heads Board to Take Charge of B. & M. Phase

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The decree agreed upon for the dissolution of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company was filed today in the Federal Court and was signed by Judge Mayer.

Under the terms of the decree three sets of trustees are appointed to take charge of the disposal of the securities of the various companies held by the New Haven.

The first set of trustees is to take charge of the New Haven holdings of the Boston & Maine Railroad, now held by the Boston Railroad Holding Company.

The second set is to have charge of the New Haven holdings of trolley lines in New Hampshire and the third of trolley holdings in Rhode Island.

Attorney-General Gregory states that the trustees are to be made officers of these properties and will have charge of the disposition of the New Haven holdings as provided for by the decree.

The first set of trustees is Marcus P. Knowlton, Henry B. Day, James L. Doherty and Charles P. Hall, all of Massachusetts; Frank P. Carpenter of Manchester, N. H.

TRANSFER OF SHARES.

Acting as trustees they will have transferred to them immediately by the New Haven 31,065 shares of common stock and 244,935 shares of preferred stock, being all of the common and all but approximately 25,000 shares of the preferred stock of the holding company, the latter being holders of 6,642 shares of the preferred and 213,189 shares of the common stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company. The New Haven will transfer to the same trustees the following shares of corporations, the railroad lines of which are leased to the Boston & Maine company:

Four hundred and twelve shares of the Boston & Lowell Railroad Corporation, 710 shares of the Pemigewasett Valley Railroad, 1,462 shares of the Connecticut & Passumpsic River Railroad, 73 shares of the Upper Coos Railroad, 922 shares of the Northern Railroad of New Hampshire, 1,015 shares of the Connecticut River Railroad, 62 shares of the Manchester & Lowell Railroad, 146 shares of the Hereford Railway Company, 2,469 shares of the Concord & Montreal Railroad, 484 shares of the Vermont & Massachusetts Railroad, 85 shares of the Lowell & Andover Railroad, 18 shares of the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad, 93 shares of the River Witton Railroad, 16 shares of the Sugar River Railroad, 6 shares of the Peterborough & Hillsboro Railroad, 354 shares of the Nashua & Lowell Railway Corporation, 354 shares of the Massawippi Valley Railway Company.

The second set of trustees is composed of William C. Noyes, L. B. Brainerd, Charles Cheney, G. E. Hill and William W. Hyde.

The Navigation Company, in accordance with the decree, will at once assign and transfer to these men as trustees 400,000 shares of the capital stock of the Connecticut company.

The third set is Rathbone Gardner, J. O. Ames, J. J. Farnsworth, T. P. Greene and C. F. Mumford, all of Providence. As trustees they will have assigned to them immediately by the New Haven 96,355 shares of capital stock of the Rhode Island Company and the Navigation Company will assign to these trustees 9,132 shares of Providence & Danielson Railway; also 5,000 bonds of this company; 7,000 shares of Sea View Railroad Company; also $500,000 bonds of this company.

CANCELS CENTRAL CONTRACT.

The decree stated that the New Haven had cancelled its contract with the New York Central for sharing the financial result of the operations of the Boston & Albany Railroad and had disposed of its interest in the Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Company. The transactions have already been approved by the Attorney-General of the United States. The time within which the sale of the holdings placed in the hands of trustees is to be made, the decree states, may be extended in each case fixed by the court for good cause shown upon the application of any

Julia Arthur Returns to the Stage for Charity's Sake

To Appear Only Twice, Once in Boston, Once in New York

JULIA ARTHUR CHENEY AS "MERCEDES," AS "JULIET," AND AS SHE APPEARS TODAY.

Famous Actress, Now Mrs. Cheney, to Play Title Role in "Mercedes," to Help European Actors' Relief Fund; Same Play in Which She Won First Great Triumph, Considered by Many Her Greatest Work.

BY HARLEIGH SCHULTZ.

JULIA ARTHUR, beloved of a world of playgoers to whom she has been lost in the years since she became the wife of Benjamin P. Cheney, the Boston capitalist and son of an old Back Bay family, is going to return to the stage. Fact is, she has already returned.

Drop into the Plymouth Theatre almost any forenoon and you will find her busy at rehearsal. There on the stage you will see her. 'Tis she, little, if any, changed by the passing of time—the same Bernhardt of the American stage who set your hearts throbbing at her will in the days that have gone, but which somehow seem only yesterdays.

Of course, there can be but one reason for her return to the footlights. And that is—charity.

She will make what will probably be her last appearance on the stage to help the European Actors' Relief Fund. This fund, as she explained yesterday, is to benefit the actors and their families who suffer as a result of the war.

Mrs. Cheney will appear but once in Boston. This will be at the Plymouth, probably the second Tuesday in November. It will be a matinee. The entire proceeds will go into the fund.

She plans but one other performance. This will be in New York for the same fund in December.

The play is of her own choosing. It is one she loves. It is "Mercedes," that little dramatic masterpiece written by Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

It was in this play that Mrs. Cheney won her first great triumph in New York. She created the part. Of her one of the critics of the day wrote:

"In this tragedy Miss Arthur found a character peculiarly suited to her personality—for with her lustrous eyes, her raven black hair, her soft, rich voice so full of music, her captivating expression of innate passion, she is an ideal heroine of romance."

NO OTHER IS PART.

Just here it is to be noted that no other actress has taken the part since. Other actresses have wanted to, but when they found the ear of the poet who wrote the play, Mr. Aldrich told them "the memory of Miss Arthur's Mercedes is too sweet and too great for me to permit another to attempt to play the part."

Many consider her Mercedes her greatest characterization.

Mrs. Aldrich, the poet's widow, is assisting Mrs. Cheney in the production, as I not only gave her permission to use the play, but gave the great actress a valuable Spanish comb to wear during the performance. This comb is hand-carved and has long been in the family, and hence is treasured.

When Mrs. Cheney informed Mrs. Aldrich that the comb might come to grief during her acting, the poet's widow replied with a smile:

"Well, if it does it will be all right, for you see the comb will be dying in a good cause."

When I am acting," added Mrs. Cheney, "I forget everything but my acting, and I don't know what may become of the comb."

Others are helping the fund benefit. "It is simply splendid the way people are volunteering in this good cause," said Mrs. Cheney. "It makes me very happy. There is George C

GOVERNOR DAVID I. WALSH GIVES AN ACCOUNTING OF ONE YEAR'S STEWARDSHIP

Youthful Leader of the Massachusetts Democracy Measures the Performances of 1914 by the Platform Promises of 1913 and Finds that Democracy, Aided by Aroused Public Sentiment, Did Surprisingly Well

There Were Spots Wherein We Failed, the Governor Says Frankly, but Remember That, Because of the Way Districts Have Been Gerrymandered, the Republican Minority in Massachusetts Still Controls

In a public address a night or two ago, Charles Sumner Bird of East Walpole, still the worthy and distinguished First Chief of the Progressive party in Massachusetts, called upon Governor Walsh to "explain the wide gulf which stretches between the Democratic platform" of 1913 and Democratic performances of 1914. This is Governor Walsh's reply to Mr. Bird's invitation:

By DAVID I. WALSH.

Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Mr. Charles Sumner Bird, the Progressive leader, has called upon me to explain "the wide gulf that stretches between the Democratic platform on which I was elected to the office of Governor and the accomplishments of my administration."

I share with the people of Massachusetts in the great respect which they entertain for Mr. Bird, and I propose to take up the task which Mr. Bird has laid down for me, because I believe that he has made his demand upon me in good faith.

There is no little difference between the essential policies and principles of the Democratic and Progressive platforms that it becomes largely a question of good faith and political efficiency between the Democrat and the Progressive.

I shall take up, first, the accomplishments of my administration. But before discussing the several reforms which have been achieved during the last year, I wish to say that every policy to which I was pledged by the Democratic platform last Fall, and every policy to which I pledged myself in my inaugural address that was not enacted into law this year, failed not by reason of any indifference or neglect on my part or any apostacy on the part of the Democrats in the Legislature. They failed entirely by reason of the gerrymandering of the representative districts.

The large plurality of votes which elected me was unable to elect a Democratic Legislature. Those policies which did fail were defeated entirely by Republican opposition. It is a fact which the people of Massachusetts do not sufficiently appreciate, that by the unfair division of the State into representative and senatorial districts the Republican party is able to control the Legislature, when the overwhelming sentiment of the voters, as expressed at the polls, is against it.

Last year the vote for Mr. Bird and for myself exceeded the vote for the Republican candidate for Governor almost three to one. The vote for the Democratic and Progressive candidates for the Legislature exceeded the votes for the Republican candidates for the Legislature almost two to one; and the Democratic and Progressive parties were pledged to practically the same fundamental policies.

Those were the very policies which I failed to carry through the Legislature. Yet they were endorsed by the overwhelming vote of the people of the State at the last election. I know that Mr. Bird will bear me out in these statements.

To proceed now with the reforms which my administration has accomplished:

THE RAILROAD QUESTION.

The most pressing problem was the railroad question. The Democratic platform declared in favor of the separation of the Boston & Maine from the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The merger of these roads accomplished in the teeth of public opinion ten years before was responsible for the orgy of corruption, mismanagement and demoralized service and finances of our New England transportation system. The Republican party had aided and abetted the plans of the Wall Street influence which then controlled the New Haven Railroad.

Every legislative enabling act and every act of immunity which was desired by the railroad managers, though in contravention of long established and experience-proved wise State policy, the Republican party, then controlling all branches of the government, gave them.

Immediately upon my inauguration I took up the work of aiding in the separation of these two railroads. I did all that I could to co-operate with the national government in making these roads conform to the law and in bringing about their separation.

It did not take the representatives of these corporations long to realize that the powers of my office and such influence which I might have with the Legislature would be employed to enforce obedience to the law and respect for the public interests and public opinion.

The separation of these two roads within seven months after I took office is practically an accomplished fact. Nothing remains now but the legal and formal details of the separation.

THE TAX SITUATION.

The tax situation in Massachusetts is one of the most perplexing and baffling in all the country. It is believed that five billions of taxable property is concealed and is escaping taxation.

I estimate that if all taxable property were properly taxed, the average man would pay only one-half the taxes he now pays. Here is a case of constant and perpetual robbery which far exceeds in the aggregate the enormous stealings from the New Haven and Boston & Maine stockholders.

This year we have caused to be submitted to the people at the coming election the proposed constitutional amendment providing for an income tax. When this amendment is adopted by the people, it will be a great step forward in the reformation of our archaic taxation system.

REORGANIZATION OF BOARDS.

This year has been also the beginning of a rational system of control and management of the State's institutions for the insane. The State has been more thoroughly reorganized upon accepted principles of business efficiency than in many years before.

I believe that less men, giving their entire time to the public service in their departments, can render better service to the Commonwealth than more men, giving such part of their time as they please to the public service and regarding it as incidental to their other occupations.

Thus, on my recommendation, the Directors of the Port of Boston, the State Board of Health and the State Board of Insanity have

Low Is Tall, and Tall Is Short, and Twixt the Two Is Shortall

You can't size up the Harvrd freshman by his name this year.

J. Low of the yearling class is a six-footer. I. H. Tall, from Medford, is short. But H. Shortall is right between Tall and Low in stature. He is neutral.

There is a Kaiser in the freshman class. (Major Clarence Wiener please write).

Mr. Rich is in the class, also two youths of Means. But they are offset financially by Mr. Poor.

The class is a kaleidoscope for color, with four Browns, three Grays, two Whites, a Green and a Blacker.

J. Knowles, Jr., is regarded by his fellow-freshies as a promising hunter.

Richard Croker Victim of Swindler

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Richard Croker, former chieftain of Tammany Hall, who is now visiting New York from his home in Ireland, was swindled a few days ago out of $25, he admitted today. A youth who said he was a reporter called on Mr. Croker and asked him to contribute to a fund for the assistance of newspapermen who had lost their positions because of the war. His plea won $25 for the fund and only today, when talking with a real reporter from the paper the young man had pretended to represent did Mr. Croker find out the truth that he had been victimized.

Seven Autos and Nine Horses Lost

The police are making efforts to recover seven autos and nine horses which disappeared in Friday night's rainstorm. The police thought the autos had been stolen, but that the horses had simply wandered away.

BIG EUROPEAN ORDERS TO U. S.

Great Britain and France Require Supplies of Many Kinds at Once.

Foreign business for American business men continues to increase in volume and variety.

Current orders received follow:

A reading, Pa., firm is to furnish the British government 50 motor trucks, at the rate of 10 a week.

The French government has ordered from Pittsburgh factories 5,000 tons of steel, to be used for bayonet manufacture.

A Philadelphia concern has contracted to supply Britain with one packages of lockjaw antitoxin for troops compelled to fight in the trenches.

The commissary department of the French army is to receive 600 light auto trucks from Cleveland manufacturers.

Sheet armor plate of three-quarter to one inch thickness is being required for an Dreadnought by the British government.

Condemned U. S. army equipment is being sought for the Winter campaign in Europe by British and French agents. Army blankets, sheets, sweaters and heavy army overcoats especially are wanted. To date 100,000 olive drab army blankets have been taken by the French and English, says a prominent merchant.

American mills have requisitions on hand for 7½ per boxes of drawback tin plates.

Some 22,000 barrels of petroleum will soon be found for Scandinavian ports.

Russian orders for auto trucks now total 1,000.

A Boston shoe firm has received from France an order for 150,000 pairs of shoes. Negotiations with American shoe manufacturers at present are said to involve 3,500,000 pairs.

"GERRYMANDERING" DEFEATS MAJORITY'S WISHES, SAYS WALSH

Governor in Reply to Bird Outlines His Administration's Successes and Gives Reason for Failures.

[illegible] reduced in number and given [illegible] receive their entire time to their work. [illegible] tions. They will now, for the first time, be under the supervision and [illegible] the time must be devoted to their [illegible].

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The power of the Board of Health is concentrated into the hands [illegible] on the efficiency and honor of whose office will be sufficient [illegible] the greatest expert of public health [illegible] ty contains, and such a man I have secured for that [illegible] in the lead over all other States [illegible] public health

JUSTICE TO THE WORKINGMAN.

Greater justice has been done to the workingmen of Massachu- [illegible] ever before by providing a very substantial [illegible] amount of compensation which shall be paid to them [illegible] accidents which befall them in the course of their occupation. [illegible] maximum time during which they shall be paid for their [illegible] has been extended from three hundred weeks to five hundred [illegible] weeks.

A new law has been enacted which provides for the compulsory [illegible] of the findings of the arbitration boards in these often disastrous con- [illegible] troversies.

Since public opinion nearly always decides a great labor conflict, [illegible] this new law provides that public opinion shall be just by making it [illegible] possible for the investigation and publication of the material [illegible] facts.

TAX ON FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

After a hard fight with organized wealth, some success has been gained in raising the tax on the great foreign corporations, like the Oil Trust and the Beef Trust, which had been unjustly exempted from [illegible] their proper taxation by an arbitrary limit in the State law.

HOMES FOR WORKING PEOPLE.

[illegible] sent than it may at first seem is the fact that the Legislature [illegible] a resolve for an amendment to the Constitution which, if [illegible], will enable the State to help people of small means [illegible] their homes.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

[illegible] to submit to the people the question whether women shall have the right to vote on equal [illegible] has been kept.

RURAL CREDITS.

An act [illegible] the farmers in providing for rural credits and [illegible] on farm property on more liberal terms [illegible] year.

PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATIONS.

[illegible] important laws relating to public service corporations have been enacted.

One of these brings the water power, electric power and water supply public service corporations under public regulation, thereby [illegible] for our cities and towns to purchase their [illegible] plants.

Another [illegible] powers of the Gas and Electric Light Commission, and [illegible] the laws relating to their supervision and regulation. Until this modernization was secured the laws had remained unchanged for years and were archaic in the extreme.

FIRE HAZARDS.

A Fire Department to deal with fire hazards in the metropolitan [illegible] been secured.

CORRUPT PRACTICE ACT.

Several [illegible] also been secured in our corrupt practices [illegible] true, and far less than I recommended, but [illegible] a step [illegible].

STATE ARMORIES.

[illegible] State have been thrown open under my [illegible] public uses. It was an extraordinary waste [illegible] to let these magnificent structures stand idle during all [illegible] the militia was not using them.

Now they may be used for political, educational and other proper [illegible] purposes.

A CHANCE FOR THE WIDOW AND ORPHAN.

The Legislature has this year also abolished that cruel rule of [illegible] courts which required a dead man, killed by the negligence of a [illegible] car, a machine, or by anybody else's negligence, to prove after his [illegible] voice had been stilled that he himself had not been negligent.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT OF ESTATES.

A cause of great annoyance and much needless expense to [illegible] others interested in the settlement of the estates of [illegible] deceased persons has been removed.

[illegible] process lithe to requiring two years for their completion now require but one year; while other processes hitherto requiring [illegible] year will now require only six months for their completion. [illegible] revisions of our probate laws are all in line with common- [illegible] business ability.

PRIORITY OF CLAIMS IN LIENS.

[illegible] has been granted the authority to appoint a special com- [illegible] relative [illegible] public property [illegible] from [illegible] Legislature [illegible] purpose [illegible] use of [illegible].

THE SUBMISSION OF A NEW PRIMARY LAW.

[illegible] I have been opposed to the primary law which requires a declaration of party affiliation before a vote can be cast in [illegible].

[illegible] undesirable features, but to me a compul- [illegible] State [illegible] Governor or [illegible] that a modified primary law [illegible] submitted for their final [illegible].

FAILURES.

Wherein I have failed to bring about the legislation to which I was pledged by my party platform, I charge said failure to the opposition of a Republican Legislature.

I herewith enumerate briefly the objects which I tried to accomplish and which I shall still endeavor to accomplish in case I am re-elected:

1. A Constitutional Convention.
2. The submission of a constitutional amendment providing for the [illegible].
3. Biennial elections in company with direct legislation.
4. The right of the Governor to veto specific items in appropriation [illegible].
5. The abolition of the Executive Council.
6. An increase in the excise tax on foreign corporations, my recommendations of last year having been only partially granted.
7. Various taxation reforms, looking to the accomplishment of a more equitable system of taxation.
8. I would have every dead corrupting real estate accompanied by a true statement of the consideration paid.
9. I would give the State Tax Commissioner authority [illegible] in whole or in part and to make new assessments when necessary.
8. I would strengthen the Corrupt Practices Act, the Republican Legislature slashing me only one-half of what I demanded.
9. I would have the State pay all the necessary and legitimate expenses of political campaigns.
10. I stand for penalizing the pernicious practice of bank officials in secretly profiting by financial transactions of their banks.
11. I would secure, if possible, the greater consolidation of commissions.
12. I would have the Public Service Commission maintained at the expense of the corporations over which it has supervision, thus saving $200,000 annually to the State. There is no reason why an exception should be made of this commission while other commissions are maintained by the corporations which they supervise.
13. I still stand for the transfer of the telephone and telegraph companies to the supervision of the Gas and Electric Light Commission.
14. During my administration I issued a message demanding that insurance be considered as a commodity so that it would be subject to the law governing commodities, and that public hearings should be held and proper reasons given before insurance rates could be either increased or decreased. Unless something of this kind can be accomplished, the mutual companies in this State will be driven out of business.

The foregoing are some of the measures for which I stand definitely and specifically stated. I think this sufficiently answers Mr Bird. I now call upon the Republican candidate for Governor to declare with equal precision for what he stands.

The people are weary of generalities. The demand is urgent that all candidates for office shall be specific, definite and positive in the statement of the principles that they intend to work for.

Will the Republican candidate make such a statement?

Has not the time come when we should rise above our partisanship, get together, man to man, and labor for the interests of the Commonwealth?

This is my attitude, and I gladly welcome any suggestion that may come to me from any source that will help out the interest of the people.

If my opponent can make any suggestions for the general welfare which I can carry out in case I am elected, I will gladly do so, regardless of their origin; and if I am defeated, I will labor with equal earnestness to help carry through any worthy measures that may be agitated.

IMPORTANT SENTENCES FROM STATEMENT OF GOVERNOR WALSH

The large majority which elected me was unable to elect a Democratic Legislature

By unfair division of the State the Republican party is able to control the Legislature

Every pledge to which I pledged myself that was not enacted into law failed by reason of the gerrymandering of the representative districts.

I estimate that if all taxable property were properly taxed the average man would pay only one-half the taxes he now pays.

Greater justice has been done to the workingman this year than ever before by providing a substantial increase in compensation for accidents during the course of their occupation.

The sixteen thousand citizens in our insane institutions will be now, for the first time, under the supervision and protection of three men whose entire time must be devoted to their welfare.

LOOK FOR RECORD FOOD FAIR CROWD

The third week of the Boston Food Exposition and Pure Food Exposition, which [illegible] tomorrow promises to be even more crowded with events than its predecessors, with an even larger attendance than the record-breaking crowd of last week.

[illegible] a recital in Paul Revere Hall, at which "Daniel" will be described and demonstrated. In the evening Lief Allyn of Westfield, the pure food protagonist, will deliver an address.

Tuesday is Grange Day and an afternoon session will be presided over by Miss Elizabeth Willcoxon. Addresses will be made by Mrs. George S. Ladd on "Country Life in New England," and Miss Helen Hubbard will talk on "Practical Use of Flower Gardening for Women." In the evening [illegible] will be held and a lecture [illegible] by H. Cross, secretary of the Arts and Crafts League of the World.

TWO BABIES WITH MOTHERS IN JAIL

Crooning lullabies, softly, two mothers watch over their babies in the Girls' Street Jail. The mothers are prisoners.

Mrs. Maria Sonzino is one. "Being an accessory before the fact to commit murder in the first degree," is the way the charge against her reads. She is but twenty-six years old.

The other one does not seem to [illegible] her quite so much as the baby. [illegible] is Russian born and [illegible] arrested Under [illegible] on September 2, and was sent to [illegible] to wait also to get [illegible] verdict. She was arrested on [illegible] warrant and taken to the jail.

Mutterzolb and Son—By D. Darby Aaronson

"WHY, father, exclaimed Milton, "you can't be lying there sick in bed without the care of a doctor. I'll send for Dr. Stein at once.

"Never," replied Mutterzolb, weakly, "don't send for Dr. Stein. I'm already sick enough as it is. Three dollars a visit that crook charges.

"Then get a good doctor," suggested Milton.

"Is that so?" replied Mutterzolb. "Well, if you talk that way you don't know what a good doctor is. Dr. Abramovitch, my lodge doctor, is what I call a good doctor, and he don't cost me anything."

But did you notify Dr. Abramovitch to come to you?"

Sure I did," answered Mutterzolb. "but what good wuz it? Every time I notified him he wuzn't in. Six times mamma telephoned him before I forget, Milton, make out right away a bill to my lodge for six telephone calls. Well, make it seven; maybe mamma telephoned once without letting me know. Then again, you better make it only six, because the finance committee will maybe put up a big kick, and you couldn't blame them even if they did, because we had terrible big expenses in the lodge lately.

"Only last week we bought two American flags for the celebration of our twentieth nursery, and that's not mentioning a thing about the medal which we bought our president, Sasha Zaitman. And he was deserving the medal, too. He does such a great things. Last week he had our dues reduced."

"Do you know, father," interrupted Milton, concealing a smile, "I never expected to find you sick in bed, because when I left you this morning, after you had received the check from that new customer, you were feeling fine."

"When I received the check in the morning," answered Mutterzolb, "I wuz feeling fine. It wuzn't until the afternoon that I found out the check wuz no good."

"Well, how are you feeling now?" asked Milton.

"Very bad," replied Mutterzolb, sadly. "Account of not being able to be in the shop to watch them pressers I bet you they're burning up too much gas."

"Why, you're getting awfully weak," exclaimed Milton, as Mutterzolb sank back exhausted. "I'm going to send for a doctor even if it's your lodge doctor."

"But I don't think, Milton," mumbled Mutterzolb, "that you'll be able to get my lodge doctor. You know this is the time of the season that he's very busy in his own line."

"What's that?"

"Plumbing."

"Well, then," said Milton, smiling, in spite of himself, "I'll get some other doctor."

"I just reminded myself," said Mutterzolb, "that I don't need a doctor altogether. Just go to the medicine chestnut and get me some of the white pills which you'll see there. I'll take them. They'll make me feel better. I know they made mamma feel better when she wuz sick two years ago, and they must be good, too, because she paid a big, high price for them."

"But you may not be ailing with the same thing mamma was, and they won't do you any good," protested Milton.

"Well, I'll try them," replied Mutterzolb. "They can't do me any harm. It wouldn't cost me anything."

"I guess you better take a little nourishment of some kind," suggested Milton. "I'll have mamma make you some chicken broth. It will do you a lot of good."

"It wouldn't do me so much good as you think," replied Mutterzolb "I suppose you don't realize that chicken is 32 cents a pound.

"I tell you, Milton, the high cost of prices now is enough to drive a man to a crazy insane asylum. That Abe Lazarus, who suffers mit dyspepsin gum, complains to me yet that he can't eat. Some people don't know when they're lucky."

"Would you believe if I tell you they got the cheek to charge high prices even for fish, which I saw mit my own eyes they take out from the water for nothing?

"And take even vegetables like celery tonic or asparagussie. Don't they charge you big prices for that, too? And why should they? Any young child, no matter how old, could tell you that they don't have to pay designers, cutters and pressers to make them salable.

"Mit clothes it's the same. If you want to buy a decent suit of clothes you got to pay a lot of money for it, and think when you go in to buy yet six or seven suits at a time, like I always did when I wuz in the retail clothing business. Believe me, it certainly is a big difference in prices years ago and now, even for doctors. I remember, in the old country, if I wuz sick and wanted a doctor, he would charge me only seven kopecks a visit, 3½ cents American money. Why, it wuz a pleasure for a man to be sick then.

"Say, Milton," he continued with a sudden start, "wuz you over to Berkowitz yesterday, whose bill is long overdue, to get my goods back from him?"

"Wasn't there yesterday," answered Milton. "I was there this morning, but the only thing I found he had left in the store was a piece of rope, and I didn't know what to do."

"You should've hanged yourself mit the rope," snapped Mutterzolb "That's what you ought to done, for not going there yesterday like I told you. During the middle of the night, when everybody wuz asleep, he failed."

No, it isn't war talk; it was overheard in a milliner's shop the other day.

Tobacco dealers are complaining of the scarcity of small change. Evidently tobacco dealers are getting to be just like the rest of us.

A man down in Mexico was saved from death because a painted some excellent portrait of Carranza and Mrs. Carranza and the little Carranzas and the Carranza relative. This chap literally painted his way to safety.

And so here is one artist whose life was spared because of his pictures. Ordinarily it is quite the reverse.

The Jersey Central Railroad has done away with that ancient and sacred fried egg emblem, a white circle with a golden centre, which more or LESS ornamented the ferryhouse smokestacks.

Because so many commuters SCRAMBLE ahead every night, why not serve the cakes to match?

There has been considerable talk of raising the price of chickens owing to the war.

If this war continues much longer the European chickens will be a drug on the market.

Latest News from the Front

Our Special Correspondent Gives Us Some Real Hot-Off-the-Bat Stuff.

A LITTLE Behind the Front

As I write this on the back of a menu from the Grand Hotel, I am some distance behind the front.

The funny thing about my present position is this:

So long as our side is going ahead I am behind the front, but if the enemy chases our men I shall be in front of the front.

I may add that I have no desire to be in front of the front, far from it.

A lot of people here are making a fuss over some old building that was destroyed by artillery; they say it's a shame to wreck a historic. I am far more worried over the destruction of the kitchen and wine cellar in the old hotel. One can't dine on historic monuments.

As the censor always cut out all references to places, troops, etc., I have given up trying to get any news, for what use is news to me? This greatly simplifies the life of a war correspondent. The only real trouble I have now is the delay in getting mail through from the home office.

"This war thing won't be over till I get it," wrote my father-in-law, "so please enquire in the best of all engraving shops as to the cost of a nicely mounted portrait of me, showing me directing everything from a safe distance behind the front."

Alas, I can do nothing at all.

Haven't noticed any troops being shirked lately.

Several aeroplanes have "swooped," however.

Also a number of heavy guns have "boomed" off the coast.

IN THE SMILE'S LETTER BOX

A JERSEY TRAGEDY.

TO THE EDITOR—Near Lambertsville there lives an old lady named Simmons who possesses a cat, a bottle of cough medicine and a fondness for both. Unfortunately the cat is afflicted with a cough, and the old lady, in trying to relieve it, has given the animal the entire contents of the bottle in the mistaken belief that it was cough syrup. The cat is now dead, and the old lady is prostrated with grief. Is there any way to relieve the latter from the former's misery? Please advise me. But, alas! the Jersey kid goes hunting these days on the bay now. Says he to me, "Look, mother, look what I found in the bay." A bottle, empty indeed, but ah, that unmistakable aroma! That's all.

PASS HONEYMOON DANCING ON STAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hall, Just Wed, to Appear at Opera House.

Romance gives an auspicious commencement to the season of light entertainment at the Boston Opera House, for the two accomplished dancers who will make their appearance tomorrow night have just brought a courtship to a happy conclusion.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hall were made man and wife yesterday and they will spend the first week of their honeymoon cavorting upon the historic stage of the Boston Opera House.

Manager William W. MacDonald is opening the first picture show de luxe that Boston has had. The Strand in New York, the Lexington operated by Oscar Hammerstein, the Claremont Palace in Paris are this sort of theatre but up to this time Boston has had no counterpart to them.

The Boston Opera House is one of the most beautiful and comfortable and luxurious theatres in the world. It seats only three thousand and every seat in the house is a wide and comfortable arm chair where the most perfect comfort can be enjoyed. In the lounging rooms a porcelain jar of cool drinking water for the occupant with pure, fresh water.

The three worst features of the old fashioned [illegible] are small seats, overcrowding, indifferent and bad ventilation are to be eliminated.

Nearly all the big Boston theatres which run vaudeville interrupt them with intermission.

At the Boston Opera House the entertainment is to be vaudeville but musical and artistic features in keeping with the high character of the playhouse.

For example Manager MacDonald has been striving for some time past to induce two leading society people of Boston to appear in his program the first week, a modern and classic dancing, and particularly in curious ancient dances for which they have become famous among the younger set.

Unfortunately their wedding was fixed for October 17, and they had planned a long honeymoon. Both persuasion and friendship failed to shake their resolution to grace the hymeneal altar on the day set but almost as much to their own amazement as that of their friends they consented to postpone their honeymoon journey for a week. After the wedding in Trinity Church last Thursday the happy couple ran away for a day or two, arriving, however, to return for the dress rehearsal on Sunday. All the world loves a lover, and the union of the handsome young couple will take on an added interest when the romance is known.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hall have some Chinese dances which they have worked up that are said to be wonderfully effective. These will be shown in costume as well as classic and society dances.

The feature picture is one that should interest everybody now that war is stalking abroad through Europe is "Napoleon and France." The picture is long and extremely elaborate. It was made with the greatest attention to historical accuracy and detail and describes the career of the young Corsican from his youth through his romantic passages with Josephine, over scores of battlefields in which whole armies of rioters were engaged and tons of powder were exploded through the days of his empire, his disastrous invasion of Russia and his final fall upon the field of Waterloo in the very country where the fighting between Germany, France and Belgium is now taking place.

This picture is one of a series of great plays which will be shown the Boston public at the Opera House.

And lest the real mission of the theatre be forgotten there is the garden scene from Gounod's "Faust" said to contain the sweetest music ever written in opera, and which includes the spinning song, flower song and duet.

For the operatic excerpts Mr. MacDonald has secured Katheryn Lee a Boston girl who was a big hit in Paris when the war broke out and who has been heard at the Grand Opera and at the Trocadero. Alberto Amadi an Italian tenor who has appeared at the Colon in Buenos Aires, and Bernard Ferguson, basso.

The stage show will be supported by a big orchestra of twenty-five pieces from the Boston Opera House Orchestra, which in itself sufficient recommendation for the musical portion of the program.

In addition the wonderful organ of the Opera House, one of the three finest in America, will be operated by an expert organist.

The musical accompaniment to the motion pictures will be unequalled. The accompaniment to the unrolling of the film of the life of Napoleon will be the "Marsaillan suite" of Ippolitoff-Ivanow while the second part will be the "Faust Fantasa" for orchestra by Gounod.

The complete program of the opening performance is as follows:

LEPER COLONY AT PENIKESE HAPPY

"Happy and contented."

These are the words with which the Rev. George D. Harris of St. James' Episcopal Church, Fall River, described the condition of the four lepers on Penikese Island.

Dr. Harris is the first Protestant minister of Massachusetts to visit the colony. He recently spent several days there.

"There are fourteen of the lepers," he said, "ten men and four women—including Japanese, Chinese, Portuguese, Russians, Italians, Germans and West Indians. Dr. Frank Parker and Mrs. Parker, with Miss Hurlbut and Miss Tuffy, the nurses, make life as pleasant as possible for them.

"There is unselfish devotion and Christ as fortitude in rare measure in the danger ever before them is avoided only by the most careful attention.

"The patients do their own cooking, mending and washing. Each has a garden spot. Their daily routine is like that of other people except that they come regularly to the dispensary for medicine and dressings.

"Except for one who is feeble they are happy and contented. They know little or nothing of the world's doings.

"The establishment is a splendid one. There are fourteen bathrooms, eleven of them for the lepers, supplied with fresh and salt water from reservoirs upon the crest of the island.

"I held simple religious services there and a priest is on occasional visitor. Otherwise the patients have no religious life.

"It is a strange life these men and women lead, facing inevitable death. Some of them hope for a cure, but most of them accept their condition and go tranquilly about ending their days. There are heroes there as well as elsewhere. It is an unique country."

Catarrh of Bronchial Tubes

Exposed to Cold Drenching Rains

Mr. George A. Douglas, No. 49 East 131st St., New York, N. Y., writes. "As my work compels me to spend a large part of my time out of doors, I have often been drenched by sudden rains, chilled by extreme cold, and I soon found that I had a bad case of catarrh of the bronchial tubes.

"I tried plasters and medicine, but nothing I did seemed to help me until I took Peruna.

"This splendid medicine took right hold of me, drove every bit of the disease out, and built me up until I felt stronger than I had for years.

"Whenever I have been exposed now a couple of doses always restores me. Peruna is an ideal protector in all sorts of weather."

This is a typical case of bronchial catarrh. It is very prevalent, winter and summer. Peruna is a recognized standard remedy.

90,000 Barrels of Apples Sent Abroad from This Port

Boston yesterday about 90,000 barrels of apples had been exported from the port of Boston from the New England crop which is the largest in years. Foreign countries are clamoring for New England apples. The major part of the New England crop are Baldwins, which are Winter apples and easy to keep.

Apples are selling anywhere from $3.50 to $4.75 a barrel in Boston, and fancies are bringing as high as $5. The apple harvest in New England was 30 per cent. larger this year than last. It is the biggest year since 1896 when the crop reached the high water mark, higher even than this season.

Official reports from New York show the apple crop was 50 per cent. greater there than last year.

BERKMAN TO LEAD IDLE IN VIOLENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, declared today that he will lead an army of unemployed this coming Winter in a campaign "more violently radical" than ever before attempted.

"The campaign last Winter was not radical enough," declared Berkman. "It did not have violence to be impressive. Entering a church or two and getting arrested for demanding food and shelter does not amount to anything."

Berkman said he did not know just what form the campaign would take but he thought it was to be a series of vigorous demonstrations against war and capitalism.

Mrs. Smith Calls on Mayor to Let Women Run Free Market

Mrs. Charlotte M. Smith demanded that Mayor Curley turn the Free Public Market at Castle street and Shawmut avenue over to the women, and let them run it, in a protest passed on to the Mayor through his personal staff at City Hall yesterday.

Twenty women from different sections of the city were on hand ready to buy apples at the advertised time for the market opening yesterday. The rain, however, kept the farmers away.

Mrs. Smith and Miss Sarah Rotstein, a student of the Roxbury High School household arts class, finally got the would-be patrons of the Free Market together. Then followed hurried phone calls to the Mayor, and Mrs. Smith's demand that the women be given a free rein in the matter from now on.

FIND YOUTH WITH SKULL FRACTURED

A young man found with skull fractured at the foot of a stairway leading to a garage at No. 108 Central avenue, Lynn, yesterday, is thought by the police to have been attacked and possibly robbed.

The youth's head was in a pool of blood. Close by was an empty whiskey bottle, bearing a blood stain. The first belief was that the young man had been intoxicated, fallen down the stairway and injured himself.

But the police reported later that Lynn Hospital surgeons said they did not think the youth had been drinking. This led to a theory that he had been hit on the head with the bottle and knocked down the stairway. There was no money or other valuables in his pockets.

The '$24,380.18 Hit' That Won the World's Series--and Braves' 'Big Five'

This is the play that won the deciding game of the World's Series. Rudolph was on third base and Moran on second with the score a 1-1 tie. Johnny Evers singled to centre, scoring Rudolph and Moran, as shown in the picture. This was the hit that decided the difference between the winners' and losers' end of the big purse, hence it is known as the $24,380.18 base hit. The picture is worth saving. The Boston AMERICAN camera man was the only man "on the job" to "snap" the deciding play.

that the big fellow missed. Maranville was out several games. The man who took his place played brilliantly and we won every game during the "Rabbit's" absence.

Our substitutes had learned their lessons by hard work, and when they were called upon they made good—every one of them.

The confident spirit that pervaded our team is best shown when Red Smith broke his leg on the last day of the championship season. Smith had been playing brilliant baseball and had broken up game after game with his bat. The loss of this player's services on the eve of the World's championship contests seemed irreparable.

It was in a double-header at Brooklyn that Smith broke his leg—in the ninth inning of the first game. When the game was over I took my players into the dressing room and gave them a talk. I told them we had a very capable man in Charlie Deal and that Deal would make good in the World's Series.

And They Never Lost Confidence.

The boys braced up at once, and from that time on there wasn't the slightest doubt about their confidence.

That injury to Smith on the eve of the World's Series would have broken up any other ball club on earth. But it didn't break us up one particle. Deal came through with flying colors.

Now, hard work and conscientious work from the very beginning of the season to the very end is what pulled us through a winner.

I was on the job every minute of the time. I never missed a morning's practice. My whole time was devoted to the building up of that ball club.

If I had neglected my duty, or gone off fishing or taken automobile trips instead of getting out on the field with my players every day and presiding at those meetings of the players every day, we would never have won the National League flag nor would my players have received one penny of the $2,708.86 each of them did receive for winning the World's Series.

Hard work, and plenty of it, will make a ball club where nothing else will

BUICK HOLDS ITS ANNUAL SHOW

Full List of 1915 Cars Is Pleasingly Displayed at Fall Opening.

The annual motor car show and Fall opening of the Buick Boston Company in its salesrooms at No. 97 Massachusetts avenue was really inaugurated last evening, although the official opening does not come until tomorrow.

For four consecutive years, Manager J. H. Johnson has taken the initiative in the holding of motor car shows, and the result has, to say the least, been decidedly satisfactory to his company and the product it handles, as it gives to the motor owners an opportunity of inspecting the latest creations long before the opening of the automobile show in March.

He feels that the beauties of his car should not be concealed for a period of four or five months, but should rather be exhibited to public view as early as possible in order that the intelligent motorist can gain a comprehensive idea of the models of the coming season. Inasmuch as he is always in possession of all of the 1915 line of Buicks four and six-cylinder models, he takes this opportunity to place them on public view.

His salesrooms are handsomely decorated for the occasion and he has every confidence that the sales recorded during the period of the show, which extends until next Saturday evening, will be greatly in excess of the records established a year ago.

In speaking of Buick matters, Mr. Johnson says: "Buick business methods, advanced engineering and strict adherence to a motor principle enables us to offer buyers the greatest line of Buick cars ever placed on the markets of the world. Following as closely as possible the now famous models of 1914, merely add a refinements here and there in beauty of lines, convenience of control, increased power and added comfort for both driver and passenger, we offer five models as the embodiment of all one could desire in a motor car.

"An increase of 37 per cent. in our output was possible by the enormous demand for our product during the past year, enables us to afford this season's buyers the benefit of this success in the form of a material price reduction, in addition to the increased values and added features built into 1915 Buicks—both fours and sixes.

"Twelve months of splendid performance on over thirty-two thousand Buick cars has demonstrated beyond all shadow of doubt the fitness of the Delco system of electric lighting, starting and ignition to share the success and become an integral part of the 1915 Buick Valve-in-Head motor—the motor that has been the keystone of Buick success for the past twelve seasons."

Motor Mystery Still Prevails

All automobildom is wondering how it is possible for Dodge Brothers to maintain such absolute secrecy regarding the one car they are to market this Fall.

With testing models on the road and around the works for several weeks past, with thousands of employes who must have had at least a glimpse of the car, with production of the parts under way on an ever increasing scale, with all orders placed for materials, with shipments of complete cars but a matter of days, how is it possible to withhold from the interested motor-car world every detail about the forthcoming car?

Cole Sales Force on Gunning Tour

Members of the local Cole sales force, including K. P. Smith, J. H. Alexander and some friends, took advantage of the open season on pheasants and made an early start for Ipswich, where they were very successful. Pheasants were quite plentiful and the party bagged eight of these beautiful birds together with seven partridges before they returned to Boston.

The game bagged was on exhibition at the salesroom of the Cole Motor Company, local distributors of Cole Motor cars, and the members of the expedition received congratulations from all who viewed the display.

Records Established at Speedway Tests

A strictly stock four-cylinder Cole established the world's official record for gasoline consumption by running over twenty-four and one-eighth miles on one gallon of commercial gasoline at the Indianapolis Motor speedway tests, conducted by the engineers of the Cole Motor Car Co., the Stewart Warner Corporation, Stromberg Carburetor Company and the Pelco Plant. The tests were under the supervision and sanction of the contest board of the American Automobile Association. This is the first official record of its kind in the history of the industry.

Boston Motor Man Promoted

Frank E. W. Howe, who has been associated with the Packard Motor Car Company of Boston for several years in various capacities, has accepted the position of general manager of the Packard Providence branch, succeeding Harry Ludwig, who becomes sales manager.

Mr. Howe has been identified with the motor car industry since 1901, and his experience has been wide and varied.

He recently won high honors in a sales contest in which 250 salesmen took part. Success is assured Mr. Howe from the start in his new undertaking.

SMALLER AND LIGHTER CARS

New Peerless Cars Embrace Best Features of Motor Construction and Finish.

Nearly every motor car announcement that is made makes it clear that the demand of the American public is for smaller, lighter and more economically operated motor cars. In this as in previous motor car developments the American public is following the European.

A marked indication of this drift of public desire is the announcement just made by the Peerless Motor Car Company that it will build this year light, short wheelbase four and six-cylinder models. These cars have a wheelbase of 124 and 128 inches respectively, as compared to 140 inches in the large Peerless cars.

Yet these cars are identical in finish, in quality of upholstery and springs, in ease of riding with the Peerless cars that are sold for more than twice the price. They are made for the same class of purchasers and have in every detail the same high quality, completeness and perfection of workmanship.

Cars like this have been produced for the best trade for several years. By the European demand for cars of riding qualities where it requires a car of low horsepower and small size to a motor car which the American public is not ready to accept.

A comparison of the new Peerless models with similar cars produced by thirty-nine leading makers of Europe shows that while the wheelbase is almost the same—112 inches for the Peerless four as against 122's for the average of the thirty-nine, the cylinder capacity or engine power of the Peerless car is fifty-four per cent. greater.

This is explained by the fact that most American drivers have an aversion to frequent shifting of gears and although American roads have been immensely improved during the past few years and are being improved more rapidly every year, they are still considerably below the European average and require more power in a car to travel them comfortably. Conditions in American cities are substantially the same as those in European cities. The short wheelbase is of as great advantage in threading the traffic on this side of the ocean as it is in Vienna or Paris. And nowadays the ordinary car is used four days at least in the city to one in the country. The result of the new design is a much better car for city use and one that is equally as good with its high grade springs and the best possible spread suspension for touring.

New Model Embodies Many Improvements

The Indian motorcycle for 1915 has surpassed all its previous years in the number of truly basic advances in construction and refinements.

All the engineering perfections which the motorcycle world has accredited to the Indian have been retained, and to these has been added a characteristic group of sound, new mechanical developments, such as is always expected of Indian skill and ingenuity.

For some time there has been a demand among sales for a lightweight machine developing ten horsepower. To meet this demand the manufacturers of the Indian have developed a light weight, twin-cylinder model of ten horsepower, which is seventy-five pounds lighter than the regular twin. It is expected that this machine will prove unusually attractive to those who want a light motorcycle for city use, or who dislike the weight of the high-powered twin.

One of the main features of this model is the motor construction. All the bearings and cam mechanism are identically the same size as are used in the larger twin. A specially designed roller-bearing clutch is used that amply takes care of the power and weight of the machine plus the strains and wags.

Tire Men Declare Business Is Good

Six men who direct the sales of Diamond tires throughout the country met at the Diamond factories at Akron, O., recently, and after checking up the year's work declared with one voice, "Business is good."

"This has been a great year for Diamond tires," said H. M. Bacon, Diamond sales manager, after the conference, "and next year is going to be even a better one.

"After checking up results the Diamond managers who came to Akron to confer agreed that Diamond sales have been just about doubled.

"Reports from all lines of trade show that Diamond tires have been given a remarkable reception this year, and hundreds of thousands of users, all over the country, testify to the popularity of Diamonds and to the service Diamond tires are giving our customers.

"Our meeting this year developed no pessimists. Conditions at Akron and in the field appear to be practically normal, in spite of the unsettled conditions abroad.

"The rubber industry seems to be going ahead without any faltering steps, regardless of various rumors which have been heard from time to time."

Apperson Company Declares Dividend

Apperson Brothers Automobile Company at its annual meeting re-elected the following officers: Elmer Apperson, president; T. E. Jarrard, vice-president; Edgar Apperson, secretary and treasurer.

The usual 10 per cent. dividend was declared.

Apperson dealers have already contracted for a majority of the 1915 cars that the company will produce, and new dealers are being established in places where the Apperson is without representation.

GREAT INCREASE IN BUSINESS ANTICIPATED

Motor Manufacturers Contend There Is Every Reason to Expect a General Development in the Business Conditions of These United States.

By J. C. KEARISON.

Business confidence is being rapidly restored. The pessimist has given way to the optimist. Instead of looking toward the dark, the business men are faced toward the dawn—a dawn of a period of business prosperity that promises to equal any one of the successful years that have gone before.

The automobile industry, which logically should be among the first to suffer and the last to recover from business depression, has throughout the so-called "dark days" been unexpectedly active and progressive, and is today in a prosperous condition.

Statistics prove conclusively that the volume of business transacted in the motor industry during the past three months is greatly in excess of that transacted in the corresponding period of last year. Manufacturers are not worrying about the disposition of their product nor have they curtailed the output to any great degree. This is equally true of the cars selling for $3,000 or over as it is of the cars selling for less than the $3,000 mark.

The motor manufacturers are students of conditions. They are constructive students. They must necessarily be more or less cautious in their deductions, as a false value of conditions would prove detrimental to their respective organizations.

These men are in the main confident that business conditions, as a whole, will shortly take a decided boom for the better that money in large volume now placed in circulation and the so-called "hard times" become a memory only. They base their belief upon the fact that in the past few weeks American manufactures have received unexpected and unusually large orders for goods presumably for foreign shipment.

These orders have not by any means been confined to any one section of the country. For instance, New England has received orders in such large quantities for shoes of a particular kind as to tax some of the factories to their capacity. The Middle West has received orders for large quantities of steel, the South for great shipments of horses; the motor manufacturing centers orders for motor trucks and cars in greater quantities than were ever previously exported, one concern alone receiving orders sufficient to keep it busy for months in the production of trucks for export. Medical supplies, wheat, grain and apples are being shipped abroad in large quantities. This, it is pointed out, means a prosperity produced by export business alone.

But, there is still another angle. The decrease of importations brought about by the conditions existing abroad have and will do much toward developing in this country industries that have been more or less dormant owing to the ability to import the same at a comparatively small cost.

Throughout the country, many plants, which heretofore have been running on a short schedule, are now running full time, turning out their products in greater quantity than ever before. This is particularly true of the production of novelties, mechanical and motor toys, art chinaware and similar goods, the bulk of which were heretofore imported from abroad.

All of this is necessarily indicative of increased business in the United States. It is said, and perhaps justly so, that the time is virtually here when, for a period of years at least, the United States will be called upon to furnish to Europe a large proportion of the necessities as well as the luxuries of life to those countries which are now at war.

Certain it is that the present condition of the American motor industry, if it can be taken as a criterion of what might be expected in other lines of business, points toward a prosperous future.

GREAT INTEREST IN NEW MODEL

New Velie Six Attracts Much Attention Throughout the Country.

"The Velie 'Biltwell Six,' the new Velie popular priced six, has literally taken the country by storm," said Manager Bradfield of the Velie Boston branch. "Not only in New England but from every section of the country orders are pouring in for immediate delivery. [illegible] plans to double the [illegible] number of this new [illegible] scheduled for 1915. And there is a real tangible reason for the tremendous success of the Velie Six.

"Years of hard work have been devoted to our entire organization in designing an automobile that would please the owner the utmost in real motor car value. We have kept a close watch on what owners wanted and what they must have to be satisfied, and in the Velie Six we have produced a car that [illegible] it announces every feature of advanced design that can be built into a light, sturdy, economical car. Engineering skill can go no further than we have gone in taking advantage of every [illegible] development in advanced construction, and the result is that every-day big features, all necessary to the properly built light car are incorporated in the Biltwell Six, each one of which adds to comfort, convenience, beauty or efficiency."

Cedar Rapids Secures Truck

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is the latest [illegible] American municipality [illegible] elimination of the horse [illegible] means of transportation in its police department. The city recently purchased a special Willys-Utility patrol wagon, similar in design to the large fleet of these vehicles now being operated by the metropolitan police in New York city.

The gruelling service to which these Willys-Utility patrols have been subjected in New York has given convincing proof of their dependability. The necessity for quick police service in emergency cases and for a more rapid method of conveying prisoners caused the [illegible] of the motorized equipment. The annual mileage of each New York patrol averages over 13,000 miles.

Metz Construction and Design Right

"The reason why the new Metz is [illegible] is that throughout the engineering and construction of its design and construction," says W. H. Schwartz, sales manager of the Metz company. "The new Metz is luxurious in appointment, most graceful in style and wonderfully easy riding under all conditions. Friends of the Metz family have found that are absolutely essential in a car of today—style and power. The new Metz is capable of 40 to 50 miles an hour, is easy to drive and its operation is extremely economical."

SEVERE TEST GIVEN MOTOR

Economy, Acceleration and Hill-Climbing Ability Are Proven Under Examination

A record which is attracting much attention in motoring circles was made by a 1915 Model 49 Overland in a series of independent tests recently conducted by an accessory manufacturer in Chicago. Under the official supervision of F. E. Edwards, chairman of the technical committee of the Chicago Automobile Club, the car was tested for economy, acceleration, low throttling, and hill-climbing.

On a measured gallon of the ordinary grade of 55 test gasoline, a distance of 24.3 miles was covered. The trial was made under ordinary driving conditions. The total weight of the car, including its occupants and carrying complement of four passengers, was 3,820 pounds.

The acceleration test showed that from a standing start, the Overland was capable of attaining a speed of thirty miles per hour in the remarkably short period of 12 1-5 seconds after having been throttled down to three miles per hour on high speed. It quickly accelerated to forty-two miles per hour

The Advantages of Magneto Ignition

THE new Overland is equipped with the finest high tension magneto.

This is entirely independent of the starting and lighting system.

High tension magneto ignition is conceded by the great majority of experts and engineers to be the most efficient. Also it is the most expensive.

All high-priced cars are equipped with a magneto.

Most popular priced cars have no magneto. Only the cheaper and less effective battery ignition is furnished.

Those manufacturers who use the battery ignition do so to cut down their manufacturing costs. They do not furnish a magneto because it is too costly.

A high tension magneto is furnished with the Overland because——it means a faster getaway.

—it means a livelier motor.

—it means more power at all speeds.

—it keeps the motor cool.

—it develops more power due to a hotter spark, which increases its heat as the motor speed increases.

The heat of an Overland spark, by actual test, is ten times greater than the spark of the ordinary battery ignition.

The high tension Overland magneto requires no dry cells.

The absence of a high tension magneto on a car is an indication that the car is not all it should be. Something very important is lacking, consequently there might be many other important things left off, of which you are not aware.

The Overland has every practical and essential improvement.

When you purchase an Overland you get the most stylish, most comfortable, most convenient, most complete and most carefully constructed car for the price in the world.

So far as I am concerned, the Duke of Manchester is a tremendous success as a gentleman and good fellow, but rather a disappointment as Duke.

The Duke referred worked for me in a way of speaking—two days. He was the first Duke I ever had in my employ. I can strongly recommend him to anybody in need of a first-class Duke. But the up-keep costs a heap, and the Duke positively refuses to follow a schedule. He insists on going to bed at 4 in the morning and getting up again at 8, which is bad.

I engaged Manchester a company two days, in the press box at Fenway Park. In the evening of each day the Duke dashed off a thousand words for the New York American. His copy was also used in the Boston AMERICAN. He wrote every word of both dispatches with his own hand. They had placed me over him as a sort of submonarch. I found the Duke competent help.

But he wasn't up to specifications. I was looking for the "silly ass" sort of Duke we see on the stage, with a monocle, and spats, and an accent. I FOUND a "regular fellow."

NOT ONE BALLY "FAWNCY."

He never heard him say "bally" or "fawncy," or "my word" applied a reporter and a "pressman." He pronounced it "clark." And one of the most eminent ... alive pull a bone, ... what a bone! WHAT a ...

Dear Mary Jane
I just escaped being vaccinated. A doctor was really going to inoculate me with poison. Dear me. When people did n't have sewers, bath tubs or any sanitary arrangements they thought the way to kill one poison was with another poison — they are still sticking to the old barbarous ideas. Some day education will empty our hospitals, prisons and asylums. Don't you get vaccinated, it is liable to take you off

Mlle. Forzane, the Beautiful Parisienne, Who Can't Start Any More Crazy Fashions Because All of Those Gay Artists Are Off to the Front

MLLE. JACQUELINE FORZANE was the acknowledged reigning Queen of Paris Fashion at the outbreak of the war. She was the originator of most of the queer, crazy fashions that have entertained Paris this season. She was sketched in them by the cleverest eccentric artists of Paris. She wore her wonderful clothes every day in the Bois de Boulogne, where all the most distinguished connoisseurs of fashion and beauty gathered to admire her.

Now weep for Mlle. Forzane! There are no more artists to depict her charms and crazy fashions. They have all gone to the cruel war. It is no use to display herself in the Bois, for even the flaneurs have something more serious to worry about.

The idea behind Mlle. Forzane's costumes—if there be one—is to get everything upside down and hind part before. Observe the very interesting photograph of her. Her skirt is designed back to front and her waist runs the same way. The curve of the hips runs forward instead of backward. Even her lingerie appears to be worn outside instead of underneath. There is certainly a marked absence of it under the skirt.

The accompanying sketches of Mlle. Forzane by the clever Parisian artist Zoe Borelli give some idea of her eccentricities of dress. She is the originator, for instance, of the mask fad. At balls and other entertainments Frenchwomen have been wearing fantastically colored masks. Some have even used them in auto riding.

How strangely original is the hat that falls over one eye, while the tail of a stuffed bird of paradise partially hides the other. In another picture, if we eliminate the head and feet, we should see a fashion of a few years ago reversed.

Mlle. Forzane is so pretty and charming that she can carry off such eccentric fashions with success. She succeeded to the position of reigning beauty after Mlenna Delza, the luxurious, had had her turn.

BEASTS, BIRDS and INSECTS Can TEACH MEN the Wiles of WAR

How Almost Every HUMAN STRATEGY Has An EXACT COUNTERPART Among ANIMALS

By Fleet Surgeon C. Marsh Readnell, R. N.

SEVERAL of the stratagems witnessed in modern warfare are strikingly similar to the methods employed by the dumb, ruthless beasts and deadly insects—in that ever-waging struggle known as the "struggle for existence." The cunning displayed by these lower creatures in the maintenance of self-preservation and in their methods of attack and defence, the fiendish calculating capacity of the male spider, the fortunate adaptation of the garden lizard to the surroundings, and the ingenious methods of certain ants are notorious.

An army of these pests moves across country clearing the ground of all animal matter, dead or alive. The African driver ant, when on the war path crosses broad streams by forming suspended bridges. Lateral columns, five to six deep, are thrown out to protect the flanks of the main army, and should a rich food supply be discovered a general halt is called and a sufficient force detailed and concentrated on it.

Spiders and all active insects take to flight directly they suspect the approach of the ants, but sluggish creatures fall to the prey of the marauders are devoured. Skirmishing parties are sent out and bushes and even young trees in their path are climbed by these ruthless destroyers. When a column of ants is encountered the slaughter on both sides is terrific, no quarter is asked or given all are being immediately dismembered.

A boy who has indulged in bird-nesting—a pursuit for the training of the young scout to teach him how to observe without being observed—probably been chased by the common ant when disturbed on her nest or taken away, and stung and flapping as if she had a broken wing, tempting the intruder to give chase and so leave the nest.

"Playing wounded" was the artifice that enabled the famous scout Burnham to escape from the clutches of that arch-strategist De Wet. Seeing capture to be inevitable, the wily scout feigned a bloodcurdling wound in the leg, and as the enemy came up he threw himself to limp painfully. The ruse succeeded, instead of being placed with the rest of the prisoners the scout was relegated to a wagon in which were some genuinely wounded men guarded only by a lad.

Two days the wagon stuck in a quagmire, and the boy-guard was forced to bear the brunt of the scout's chance for which he had been waiting. When the colored sentry turned to see if he was being found one was missing.

The cuttle-fish when pursued by a foe ejects a cloud of inky fluid into the surrounding water, under cover of which it makes good its escape. On several occasions the Boers resort to a similar device, for instance, on May 5, 1900, a commando of Boers finding themselves [illegible] Swift River, set fire to the grass [illegible] the British, who, [illegible] kopjes and were lost sight of behind impenetrable clouds of smoke. Again, on June 8, 1900, when Baden-Powell shelled the enemy out of Laing's Nek and a running fight ensued, they fired the veldt in their rear, to [illegible] embarrassing their pursuers and masking their own line of flight.

Many animals feign death in order to escape detection; "playing possum" is a well-known trick of savage warfare, even [illegible] the Cape was not without an example; when the Dublin Fusiliers, having gained the enemy's trenches after the fight at Bridle Drift were employed after sundown in burying the dead Boers, one of the seeming corpses was seen to jump up and run away.

Shouting out words of command in the language of the foe can only, for obvious reasons be resorted to during night attacks. On January 5, 1900, Colonel Watkinson and a battalion of the Suffolk Regiment were climbing the hill overlooking Colenso the summit of which was known to contain some entrenched Boers. The enemy did not discover the attack until the Englishmen were well nigh on top of them, then they opened fire and a fierce duel at close quarters ensued. And a Major to [illegible] hands. The Boers would have been still more mortified had they known that our men were armed with carbines, which, of course, are not fitted with the bayonet.

An amusing [illegible] is related [illegible] of Mafeking. A megaphone was constructed, and on a dark, still night the Boers were startled by hearing a voice apparently at their very feet [illegible] the order "Fix bayonets! Charge!" The result was a profound rifle fire while our men lay convulsed with laughter in the fastnesses of their trenches.

Another little piece of pleasantry indulged in by the [illegible] of some dummy forts. These the Boers considered [illegible] as the expense of their besiegers was the [illegible] shelled for a week, and on October 1, 1899, to the [illegible] delight of the British, they made a [illegible] only to discover [illegible] had been duped.

There was something in the Boers' method of conducting [illegible] that savored very much of Old Testament [illegible] Compare the two following: In 1406 B.C. The remainder of the army then demonstrated in front of the main gates and so lured the Benjamites out to try conclusions. The battle had scarcely begun when the Jewish general gave the order to retire; the Benjamites gave chase, but were no sooner well clear of the city than the 10,000 "hers in wait" rushed into it and set fire to the flames. When the Benjamites saw this they turned back, but found themselves behind the children of Israel, who "chased them out and trod them down with ease over against Gibeah towards the [illegible]." "Gentlemen" Burglars at the Fashionable Dancing Teas

Surprising Revelations of the Ingenious Methods of Mr. Eaton, Gentleman Thief, and Others Who Are Victimizing Women of Wealth and Respectability in a New Way

Mrs. Jacques Bustanoby, Whose Troubles Began at the Cabarets and Tea Dances.

In the criminal world as in the industrial world, the ingenuity of men usually finds a way of giving expression for new forms. The Tea Room, the Cabaret and the "Dancing Tea" restaurants have opened a new field for exploitation, and wolves around these places, the police estimate that 5,000 criminals in New York are now making a comfortable living.

The now rather notorious case of Herbert F. Eaton and his victim, Mrs. Arthur E. Pike has shed a flood of light on the operations of these scoundrels. Other cases have shown that robbery is not the only harm to womankind that has followed the breaking down of old social restraints through the seductive influence of the tea room with its accompaniment of music and dancing.

The astonishing if Mr. Herbert F. Eaton English gentleman dancer and burglar was followed by some very interesting revelations. The police are now able to understand the steadily growing complaint of hitherto unexplainable robberies. Mr. Eaton is not alone in his peculiar modus operandi, the police records indicate that there are many others who are victimizing the patrons of the tea dance restaurants in the same way.

Eaton was a gentleman. He had the manner and the personality of a man of breeding. He was careful never to force his attentions on a prospective victim. It is believed that he worked at times with a young woman confederate and through her was able to be formally introduced to respectable patrons of the places he frequented. But Eaton's own adroitness and resourcefulness were often sufficient to secure an acquaintance with a woman of wealth without the formality of an introduction and yet without arousing suspi-

[illegible] club of freedom of [illegible] An instance of this will be given further on.

It stands to reason that when a woman dances with a man she does not know she enters upon a perilous path. The "[illegible] dansant" is a queer institution that [illegible] everyone, who can pay the price of admission or of refreshments an opportunity to dance. The manager must see to it that [illegible] women visitors have partners to dance with, and it need hardly be said that [illegible] can find good looking, well-dressed [illegible] men for this purpose he is only too glad to have them and will not inquire very closely into their character. It has proved from recent cases that the most fashionable and dignified hotels in town have been the means of promoting [illegible] promiscuous acquaintances.

The fact that these dances are held in the daytime allows young girls and [illegible] married women an unusual freedom to attend them. The old institution of the chaperon has been more or less abandoned for daytime affairs. A girl or a woman who indulges in the intricacies of the modern dance with a man can scarcely help developing a certain intimacy with him, even though she may never have met him before. After the dance she can hardly refuse his request to escort her home, especially if he is going the same way, and in many cases she would not deny a good dancer the privilege of calling on her. Thus chance acquaintance carries a stranger straight into the intimacy of the home.

New Dangers for Thoughtless Women

Keen observers of life estimate that there are just as many men who frequent the tea rooms simply for the purpose of making the acquaintance of attractive women as for the sake of robbery. The intentions of these men may not be always of the worst, but it is certain that on the whole they are a social danger. A girl has no opportunity of judging the character of a man whom she meets under such conditions, and too often she is not guarded by family and friends against the dangers of chance meetings.

Mrs. Pike's experience illustrated only one of the dangers of this phase of city life. The ease with which the friendship of a most respectable woman could be cultivated under cover of the afternoon dance and the criminal acts it might lead to. Mrs. Pike, who is the wife of a cotton broker and lives in a handsome apartment at No. 640 Riverside Drive, was shocked recently to find that her place had been robbed of $1,900 worth of jewels and a quantity of valuable clothing. When she turned the matter over in her mind she was forced to admit that suspicion rested on a certain "Mr. Williams," a very attractive young man who had met at a tea at the Hotel Astor, one of the most dignified and fashionable hotels in the city.

Mrs. Pike was listening to the strains of the fox [illegible] the new fashionable dance, at a [illegible] being an exhibition [illegible] had not [illegible] getting to [illegible] somebody, she said not re[illegible]ber who [illegible] and her to "Mr. Williams" and he immediately asked her to dance. He was a splendid dancer and put [illegible] all the new steps. [illegible] needlers set off [illegible] gaiety and [illegible] costumes of the [illegible] In short in the fall and [illegible] to [illegible] he was [illegible]

He had been a soldier in the Boer War [illegible] the sake of adventure, you know, and a gold miner in California [illegible] His conversation was delightfully entertaining. Mrs. Pike mentioned that she was a second daughter of J. Spencer Turner, [illegible] noted cotton broker.

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Williams, "[illegible] people in Liverpool know [illegible] I regret [illegible] other selling [illegible] Mr. Turner [illegible] Among [illegible] after dinner.

THE STAR of BETHLEHEM COMING BACK?

The Position of the Star of Bethlehem When It Appeared Over Palestine, as Calculated by Professor Sepharial.

Interesting Evidence That the Comet Now Visible Is the Same Celestial Visitor That Has Heralded the Most Momentous Events in Human History

By Prof. Sothnos Latillier
The Distinguished Astrologer.

THIS is the predestined year in which the Star of Bethlehem reappears in the heavens to herald the battle of Armageddon. Already in the evening skies a new star, which is really a comet, is dimly discernible, and as the titanic conflict now raging reaches its climax it will be visible to all.

This celestial body has recently been named by astronomers "Delavan's Comet," but it has always been known to astrologers as "the Star of Bethlehem." It may be seen in North America about 10 o'clock on clear nights at a point almost directly below the Pole Star. As the night wanes it rises higher in the heavens, and in the early morning between 2 and 4 o'clock it reaches its greatest altitude above the horizon.

A great mass of interesting evidence has been collected to show that the present comet is really the Star of Bethlehem. These facts should interest both sceptical students and those who devoutly believe in same. A noted astrologer, who is also a competent scientific astronomer, has stated that the present comet will in December 25 occupy almost the same position in the heavens that was occupied by the star whose appearance is described in the Gospels. He has calculated closely the position of the star at that time from the accounts in the Bible and from other records. Of course there has been a certain change of position in the two thousand years that have passed due to the fact that all heavenly bodies are moving.

It may be recalled that Halley's comet which reappeared in 1910 was also a star of Bethlehem, but astronomers have shown that this comet could not have appeared in the first year of the Christian era, whereas the present comet has been seen in it that year. Its present appearance, moreover, is the latest of the Heavens, known in the East, which is clearly indicated by the Bible.

The Star was first observed by mankind during the cruelties committed by King Herod in Palestine. It then guided the three wise men from the East to the manger where the Saviour was born.

Whenever it has appeared since then it has betokened an event of the utmost importance to humanity. It was seen in 1066, the year of the Norman Conquest of England, as the ancient Bayeux tapestry, woven at that time, clearly proves. Again it was seen in the year 1200 when the Crusaders took Jerusalem and the Holy Sepulchre from the infidels.

To the eyes, of those who saw it in 1300 it appeared to take the form of a flaming sword, a fact attested by ancient chroniclers and sculpture in Rheims Cathedral. These incidents were confirmed in the belief that this was the Star of Bethlehem because they believed it was a fulfilment of the Saviour's prophecy "I came not to send peace, but a sword." (St. Matthew X. 24.)

My learned friend, Professor Sepharial, of London, has recently explained in his work "Cosmic Symbolism" why the comet now dimly visible in our evening skies must be the Star of Bethlehem.

"Tycho Brahe observed the star in 1572," says Professor Sepharial, "and Sir John Herschel predicted that it would reappear in the present century. Tycho tells us that the star gradually grew in luminosity until it outshone Sirius, and even Venus, and gradually disappeared.

"The star appeared above the head of Andromeda in the constellation Cassiopeia. This would give it about thirty-two degrees of north declination, and thus make its appearance vertical to the latitude of Bethlehem in Judea. The sign of the Zodiac coinciding with its longitude would be Aries, which, according to Ptolemy, rules over Judea.

"This observation signifies the requirements of that passage where the Magi are reported to have said: 'We have seen his Star in the east, and have come to worship him.' Then, if a geographical quarter was referred to by 'the east,' why should they travel westward from Persia to Judea? Obviously they referred to the quarter of the heavens, and being astrologers, would well know that Judea was signified by Aries, in which sign the Star made its appearance, its standing over the house where the child lay indicates its position in the zenith of Bethlehem at the time of the southing, the latitude of Bethlehem being 31 degrees 43 minutes north in agreement with the observed position of the Star in Tycho's time."

We know what events happened in the year when the Star of Bethlehem first appeared, and we know what has happened on every appearance of the Star since then. Can we doubt that the mighty events of this year are connected with its return?

Will any reasonable man question that this world-war is the battle of Armageddon foretold in the Bible? In the sixteenth chapter of the Book of Revelation St. John writes:

"And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates, and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the East might be prepared. And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet.

"For they are the spirits of devils working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

"And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."

In the twenty-sixth chapter the Book of Revelation tells us what will happen after the battle of Armageddon:

"And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them; and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection."

It is clearly foretold here that after this war we shall have a thousand years of peace, after which will come the general resurrection, and the end of the world.

Many seers have warned us of the events of the present year. Madame de Thebes, the distinguished Parisian prophetess, published in January these words.

The Bayeux Tapestry Shows That a Comet Appeared in 1066, the Year of the Norman Conquest of England. This Is Believed to Have Been the Star of Bethlehem.

The Crusaders Saw a Comet Having the Form of a Flaming Sword Over Jerusalem in 1300. They Believed It Was the Star of Bethlehem Returning Because of the Prophecy, "I Came Not to Send Peace, but a Sword." (St. Matthew X., 34.)

"It is an ominous year for the Kaiser of Germany, and no glory will accrue to him from its momentous events.

"The Austrian Empire is tottering to its ruin."

A correspondent of the London Times has described a conversation in which a gypsy woman foretold to the old Emperor William, grandfather of the present Kaiser, the events of this year. The Emperor, who was then Prince William of Prussia, met the woman near Mainz in 1849. She addressed him as "Imperial Majesty." Not a little amused, for at that moment his chance of succeeding even to the throne of Prussia seemed slight, the Prince asked "Imperial Majesty, and of what emperor pray?" "Of the new German Empire," was the woman. "And when is this empire to be formed?" he asked.

The woman took a scrap and wrote on it the year 1849. Then adding its figures together she obtained the total "22," which added to "1849" made "1871," the year in which King William was actually proclaimed German Emperor.

"And how long am I to rule over the empire?" then asked Prince William. By similar calculations she showed that he would be Emperor until 1888, and that the empire itself would come to an end in 1911.

The Rev. Charles T. Russell, pastor of the Millennial Dawners, who worship in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, warned the people very clearly that 1914 would be the year of the battle of Armageddon.

"We have strong Bible evidence," said the Rev. Dr. Russell as long ago as 1889, "we consider it an established truth that the final end of the kingdoms of this world, and the full establishment of the Kingdom of God will be established by the end of A. D. 1914."

The Rev. Dr. Russell very rationally argued that the battle of Armageddon would be that the common people would turn upon their kings and rulers who had recklessly led them into war. He believed that before the close of the present year the nations will dethrone all kings and form a universal brotherhood which will make a conflict like this impossible in future.

M. Peladan, the distinguished leader of the mystic Rosicrucian fraternity, has pointed out in the Paris Figaro that the details of this conflict were foretold with amazing exactitude by Brother Johannes, a monk, in the year 1600. The prophecy of Brother Johannes, written in Latin, begins thus:

"People will imagine that they have seen him many times, for all the shapes of the lamb resemble one another, and all the wicked are precursors of the great wicked one.

"The veritable Anti-Christ will be one of the monarchs of this earth, and he will call upon God and proclaim himself His representative.

"He will assemble one army, but he will not fight battles, making as a method of warfare, will peep, like infernal beasts.

"For a long time he will act by ruse and treachery, and his aides will overturn the whole earth, and he will be master of the secrets of the mighty. * * *

"A war will give him the occasion to remove his mask. It will not be against a French monarch, but against another, and in two weeks it will be universal. * * *

"His words will be like those of the Christians, but his acts will be those of Nero and the Roman persecutors; he will have an eagle in his escutcheon and there will be one also in that of his acolyte, the other bad monarch.

"But the other is Christian, and he will die under the malediction of Pope Benedictus, who will be elected at the beginning of the reign of Anti-Christ.'

From the French point of view this prophecy points clearly to the German kaiser, who, as most people know, has only one good arm. The other monarch referred to as having an eagle in his escutcheon is the Austrian Emperor. The reference to "Pope Benedict" is most impressive, for the present Pope was elected and assumed that name after the beginning of the war, and we have been told that he has protested vigorously to the Austrian Emperor against certain shocking occurrences

Perfumes Any Woman May Make at Home

CEDAR has been employed ever since the days of Solomon as a perfume. It is used in sticks for burning, laid among clothes in drawers to prevent moths, and distilled into a fragrant oil, which is used in the making of various delicious scents. An excellent perfume for the handkerchief may be made as follows: Otto of cedar, one-fourth ounce; rectified spirit, one pint; triple esprit de rose, one ounce.

Eglantine or sweet briar yields a most delicious perfume when fresh, but loses its fragrance in manufacture. A good imitation, however, may be obtained, and good imitations of the odor of lime tree blossom and of white lilac are also made, the delicacy of these rendering them peculiarly charming.

Rose leaves may be preserved by separating the petals carefully, and to every pound of them rub in one pound of common salt. The salt absorbs the water from the petals, and rapidly becomes brine. This reduces the whole to a pasty mass, which may be stored away, and will keep any length of time without the fragrance being seriously injured. Perfumers are often glad to buy the leaves preserved in this way.

A good rose water may be made by distilling twelve pounds of pickled roses and two and a half gallons of water. Two gallons are to be drawn off, and the result will be a double distilled rosewater, as sold in the shops. This can, of course, only be done with proper apparatus for distilling.

Verbena perfume is delicious, the following being a simple formula: Rectified spirit, one pint; otto of lemon grass, 3 drachms, otto of lemon peel, two ounces, otto of orange peel, one half ounce. Let stand together for a few hours, and after filtering is ready for use.

A simple lavender perfume may be made as follows: Spirit of wine, one pint; otto of French lavender, one-half ounce; otto of bergamot, one-half ounce; otto of cloves, one drachm.

Another simple and favorite perfume is made of one ounce of essence of bergamot in a pint of spirit of wine. These should be filtered through blotting paper and a little magnesia added to improve their appearance.

Shameless Extravagance The First Symptom of the War Disease!

Voluptuous Dances, Unbridled Profligacy and Luxury Always the Beginnings of "Racial Malady" Whose Crisis Is Wholesale Slaughter!

By DR. HANS HULDRICKSEN,
Distinguished Swedish-American Psychologist.

EVERY great war has been preceded by a period of profligacy, of brilliant and wickedly extravagant entertainment, of devotion to voluptuous dancing and shameless and reckless luxury.

Living in the midst of it, the average man has little power to realize the world-wide luxury by comparing it with the simplicity of other days. The sociologist can render a service to civilization by impressing on the nations the enormity of this extravagance. It has prevailed no less in America than in Europe. The expenditures on public amusements in the civilized countries have alone reached an amount that is staggering, but they are perhaps less conspicuous than the craze for more demoralising and unwholesome individual pleasures.

Of especial significance is the dancing mania, which has affected the whole civilized world in recent years. Dancing is a recreation which, though beneficial when enjoyed in moderation, easily leads to the most demoralizing excesses and extravagances. The close contact of persons in the intoxicating rhythm of the dance, aided by the consumption of wine and other causes of excitement will work havoc with the ordinary restraints of social life.

In England there has been a mania for public costume balls, where costliness has vied with immodesty in the adornment of the dancers. At public balls English duchesses in the garb of Thais and other sirens of mythology have thrown themselves into the arms of strange men costumed as pirates and pashas. At such public affairs as the Covent Garden costume ball, the largest theatre in London, has been filled with 5,000 gorgeously attired people of all ranks of society, from the peerage to the saloonkeeping class, who have mingled indiscriminately.

The expenditures at such affairs have been enormous. Women of ancient family vie with the wives and favorites of new capitalists in piling fortunes on their shoulders. A woman with $200,000 worth of pearls around her neck was picked up unconscious by a poor waiter after such an affair. The traditional modesty of English society has been thrown to the winds, but their excesses have not surpassed those of the other civilized nations.

The danger of the dancing craze has been clearly pointed out and emphasized by my colleague, Professor Hugo Muensterberg, in his last book.

"Can we deny," he says, "that this recent craze which, like a dancing mania, has whirled over the country, is a significant expression of deep cultural changes which have come to America? Only ten years ago such a dancing fever would have been impossible. People danced, but they did not take it seriously. It was set off from life and not allowed to penetrate it.

"No one can doubt that true dancers are near whenever the dancing habit is prominent. The dance is a bodily movement which aims at no practical purpose, and is thus not bound to outer necessities. It is simply self-expression, and this gives to the dancing impulse the liberty which easily becomes licentiousness. Two mental conditions help in that direction; the mere movement as such produces increased excitement, and the excitement re-enforces the movement, and so the dance has in itself the tendency to become quicker and wilder and more and more unrestrained."

Dancing is, of course, not the only alarming form of social extravagance, although it is the most conspicuous. Excess in eating, drinking, dress and other forms of indulgence has become universal among the well to do classes. We hear of a banquet in Berlin where the decorations reproduce the Golden House of Nero. In Paris a fantastic midnight banquet is held in a swimming pool.

It is especially significant that Germany, which used to be the land of [illegible] sing, has become as deeply addicted to extravagance as the others. While immodesty has become general in England, excesses in eating and drinking are the prevailing sin of Germany. It is common to hear of feasts that cost $100 [illegible] Even water cure resorts, like Marienbad, where people try to recover from the effects of excessive eating and drinking, have in recent years been overcrowded with [illegible]

Many forms of social excess in Germany have only been hinted at. There were strange reports concerning the fantastic feasts of that great multi-millionaire, Alfred Krupp, before his mysterious death. [illegible] tainments of that peculiar ornament of Berlin's aristocratic society, Count Philip von Eulenberg, will also be recalled by many.

It may seem absurd to my American readers to speak of the demoralization of Paris, because they have always regarded it as the delightful incarnation of wickedness, but the truth is that the demoralization of Paris has reached a new stage. The separation of the virtuous and the disreputable classes no longer exists. The wickedness which was once a spectacle has now become part of the life of the nation.

That most acute observer of French social life, M. Octave Uzanne, has described better than any one the demoralization which has come over French society. All this, mark you, is essentially the result of extravagance, for it is the insatiable desire for luxury that makes virtue a cheap commodity. In his recent book, "The Modern Parisienne," M. Uzanne says:

"For nearly forty years a great change has been taking place in social customs, tending to a vague confusion between the demi-monde and the higher classes. The left hand quarter echoes those of the right hand, and the latter imitate the manners, tone and fashions of former, and sometimes even take a leaf of their book. They meet secretly to exchange confidences about a husband or lover. They consider themselves in the lig of rivals and meet at charity bazaars, ra[illegible] They employ the same dressmaker and milliner."

It will be well to prove by a few historical instances that great calamitous wars have [illegible] preceded by a period of unbridled extravagance. The typical illustration is the fall of Babylon, whose doom, as related in the Bible, was announced to King Belshazzar in the midst of his wanton revelling by [illegible] Daniel.

The collapse of the Roman Empire was, of course, heralded by the most tremendous and long continued era of luxury the world has ever known. The catastrophe was due to the inrush of those barbarians who had long been plundered by the Romans, and who had therefore contributed to their luxury.

To turn to a different period of history, we find that the French Revolution was preceded by the extraordinary extravagances of the French Court and aristocracy during the eighteenth century. That was the age of the Pompadours and Du Barrys and of King Louis XV.'s unspeakable revels at the Parc-aux-cerfs.

The Franco-Prussian War of 1870 was heralded by the glitter and license of Napoleon III.'s tinsel empire. It would be wearisome to enumerate all the cases where great social extravagance has introduced a great war. Such excesses are invariably the [illegible] of a [illegible] malady whose crisis [illegible]

It [illegible] considered that the extravagance [illegible] years has far exceeded that of any of the historical periods mentioned. In those earlier [illegible] mass [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Health and Morals of Colors.

By Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile")

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of costumes in the world, writes each week for this page exclusively for newspaper presentation. [illegible]

By Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile")

In our talk, our literature, our every day life and our universal life we recognize color as an enormous factor. We [illegible]

New "Lucile" Walking Dress of Blue Dimetyn. A "Harmoniously Colored" Gown for Out-of-Doors.

Young Girl's Gown, "Lucile" Model of Chiffon and Silk in the New "Rainbow Colors That "Harmonious with Youth."

[illegible] increase in them the desire to make themselves even more admirable. But if these things are denied, the springs that should call them forth vanish in time.

All we know of the world we know in terms of color. It is part of our very being. Therefore let us study it and use it for its full power. It is a charm, an amulet against bad fortune.

I know a woman of France's aristocracy who has dresses she calls her "doctors." So much of unhealth is, after all, of the mind. She only wears them when out of sorts. For the dull and morbid moods there is a gown that is scintillant as a diamond, fairy sparkling. For the depressed mood there is one that blends tones so that it fairly sings of joy. And for the nervous, irritable mood there is one of calmest, strongest colors that has the same effect as the hues of some great Gothic church.

Almost any woman can be attractive if she will study her colors and the colors that will help her. Many an ugly duckling can be made into a raving beauty by the same study. And the most beautiful woman in the world can utterly kill herself with the wrong colors.

To my mind, to be entirely harmonious with the great forces of nature is to be healthy and happy and to see and think true. In this sense colors have both health and morals.

I write this little essay, which is somewhat outside of mere fashion description, because it is one of the basic truths of which fashion itself is but the foam on the wave. It is one of the few things worth real study and thought.

New Things Every Woman Ought to Know

How to Make Your Kitchen Efficient

By GEORGIE BOYNTON CHILD
Author of "The Efficient Kitchen"

IS THERE A "QUIET CORNER" IN YOUR HOME?

"Such a place, equipped with all the necessities for writing orders, keeping accounts etc., adds much to the household's efficiency."

Even RAGING progress is being made in the task of applying the principles of efficiency to the household and making them produce there as good results as they are showing in our offices, stores and factories.

A number of books devoted exclusively to the subject of household efficiency have already appeared and the most interesting and helpful of these is "The Efficient Kitchen," by Georgie Boynton Child, published by McBride, Nast & Co.

Much of the modern housekeeper's distress, accord Mrs. Child, is due to the fact that our kitchen the needs and customs of our grandmothers' and not those of to-day.

The first step in making a kitchen efficien is to have it not merely in itself but in its relation to the other parts of the house. This is where the woman who has determined to have a convenient kitchen is apt to find herself in conflict with the architect. The best way to overcome this difficulty is to plan the kit yourself or you do any other room in the house.

Other things being equal the small kitchen is the most efficient. A very convenient kitchen, quite large enough for a family without a maid or for one em with a maid, can be made of a room seven feet square. Ten by twelve feet or eleven by thirteen feet is about the right size for the average family. It should be oblong rather than square.

Wall paper should never be used in a kitchen. The only exception is the washable oilcloth paper which is recommended where the walls are in bad condition. Oil paint makes an ideal finish but where this is too expensive it should be finished with kalsomine a number of coats of flat washable paint. For the floor, linoleum, inlaid linoleum will give the most satisfactory results for the money.

Kitchen utensils and kitchen groceries are kept together in one cupboard, the ware utensils in another, cooked food in a refrigerator, service dishes which are part of a set, in the dining room. This is a natural arrangement, and one does not realize that it is wasteful of labor until we begin to work. Then we find that the waste of steps involved in getting equipment and material together for any one process becomes a very serious drain upon not only of the time but of the energy of the worker.

Keep to hand the articles which are used every day. Things used often should be kept in a convenient fixed place.

Have shelves with one row of things on each, because other rows of articles are hidden. Shelves should be about 12 inches wide, for articles that can be stored flat. No shelf should be permitted to rest on the floor. This saves bending over and facilitates cleaning.

Have nothing in the kitchen that is not easy to keep clean. Fixed equipment should be placed where the light is good.

Small utensils should be suspended from hooks and cupboards fastened to the wall or to the edge of shelves.

Sink and work table should be at a convenient height for the worker.

However small or large your room plan to have either in the kitchen or in a convenient part of it what is called a "quiet corner." A corner where you can hold accounts and make your plans for conducting your household affairs in a systematic and businesslike way. This corner should be equipped with a table or desk, a chair, waste-basket, scissors, files for letters and bills, pencils, paper and memorandum pads, and, for the woman who has a large family to provide for, a little card index system.

Dishes with Which Washington's Best Cooks Tempt the Appetites of Famous Men

THE city of Washington has long been famous for its delicious things to eat. In hotels, restaurants and private homes there the epicure is able to find, as in no other city, dishes for which each section of the country is famous. The "Administration Cook Book," published by the W. B. Conkey company, have been gathered together the favorite recipes of many of Washington's famous women and some of the best of these are represented here:

STUFFED CHOPS.

By MISS GENEVIEVE BENNETT CLARK,
Daughter of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Miss Clark

THE ordinary chop can be made into a dish for an epicure by means of a little stuffing. Select meaty chops, not too fat, and have them cut one and one-half inches thick. Have the butcher remove the bones, so the chops can be rolled. Several hours before they are to be cooked—really, they are better if put on ice the day before—spread them, where the bone was removed, with finely minced mushrooms, seasoned with salt and pepper, and roll them as you would a section of beef, fastening them with wooden skewers. Sprinkle them with salad oil, dust with salt and pepper and keep them in the refrigerator until required.

Half a pound of mushrooms will do for a dozen chops. Save the stems and peeling of the mushrooms to use with a tiny piece of mace and one cupful of stock for the gravy. Broil the chops in a very hot frying pan with a tiny bit of butter until quite brown on the outside and still pink in the centre; arrange on a hot dish; then add to the fat in the pan one table spoonful of butter and one of cornstarch, and when these are slightly brown add the stock, etc., and cook until about as thick as cream. Strain over the chops and serve.

ORANGE AND GRAPE FRUIT MARMALADE.

By MRS. WILLIAM COX REDFIELD,
Wife of the Secretary of Commerce.

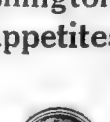
Mrs. Redfield

WASH and cut in half three oranges, three grape fruit and three lemons; carefully remove all seeds, but do not peel; put through the meat grinder, taking care to catch all the juice. To every pint of fruit add three pints of cold water. Let stand over night. In the morning put into a preserving kettle and boil for ten minutes.

Let stand until the following morning and again measure. To each pint of the mixture add a pint of granulated sugar. Return to the stove and boil steadily until the marmalade jellies when dropped onto a plate. Fill jelly glasses and, when cool, cover lightly with paraffine, then put on tin covers.

ENGLISH PLUM PUDDING

By MRS. [illegible] GARRISON,



Mrs. Garrison

ONE pound [illegible] pound of currants, one pound of suet [illegible] one pound of [illegible] of a pound of almonds, chopped fine [illegible] of candied peel, lemon and orange, two cupfuls of bread crumbles [illegible] nutmeg, grated one-half teaspoonful of [illegible] grated fine two apples, chopped [illegible] four eggs, one quart of milk, one [illegible] spoonful of salt, one cup of best brandy [illegible] seven hours, putting the pudding in a small tin pail, well greased, and [illegible] the lid tightly. Set away until wanted, then boil two hours [illegible] Serve with brandy sauce.

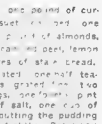
This is very fine and is always served in my family for Christmas dinner.

CINDERELLA PUDDING

By MRS. HOKE SMITH
Wife of the Senator from Georgia

TAKE a large round sponge cake, and, with a sharp knife, scoop off the top and all of the inside leaving just a shell of cake. Cover this with a layer of home-made apple jelly. Make a quart of rich old fashioned custard, and, when perfectly cold stir into it as much of the cake crumbs as will [illegible] the consistency of stiff gelatine jelly. Fill the cake shell with this and on top place a double whipped syllabub and let the syllabub cover the sides of the cake shell entirely. Sprinkle over this maraschino cherries. Serve ice cold.

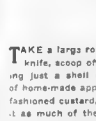
This is a recipe that I invented for my children when they were small, and since they have all become grown-ups they ask for it so frequently that I feel sure it will prove palatable to others.



Mrs. Hoke Smith

CHICKEN TIMBALE.

By MRS. ALBERT S. BURLESON,
Wife of the Postmaster-General



Mrs. Burleson

STEAM a fowl until the meat falls from the bone; skin and remove all bones, then pound the meat in a mortar; when almost smooth, add an unbeaten egg and continue the pounding until the mixture is fine enough to put through a sieve. Add gradually a glass of cream; mix thoroughly; season with salt, pepper and a pinch of mace. Keep cool. Fill but tered timbale cups, sprinkle with finely chopped nuts or truffle, set in pan of hot water and bake twenty minutes without closing the oven door.

TOMATO ASPIC SALAD.

By MRS. OSCAR UNDERWOOD,
Wife of the Democratic Leader of the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Underwood

HEAT one can of tomatoes with a small bayleaf added; one pint of soup stock, one tablespoonful of sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Strain and add a scant half [illegible] gelatine which has been dissolved in a little water. Put in mold and set aside to cool. When firm remove to salad dish and fill the centre with Waldorf or pepper salad and serve with Mayonnaise in crisp lettuce leaves.

This is my husband's favorite salad and one that many of our guests find delicious.

What to Eat for Your Teeth's Sake---By Mme. Lina Cavalieri

OTHERWISE well-informed persons show an appalling ignorance of what to eat, not merely for the purpose of enjoyment but to strengthen the different organs.

For example, do you know what you should eat to make your teeth strong and lasting? Don't apologize, in all of your enlightened city you would probably not find a score of persons outside the officers of those societies whose business it is to teach the dentists, who have any intelligent ideas on the subject. They might talk vaguely about lime, but that is as far as they could go. They would be moved quickly to change the subject.

Three principal elements compose the teeth. Calcium or lime, phosphorus and fluorine are three corporeas, so to speak, of tooth structure. To make them strong and enduring we should eat plentifully of the foods that will supply these elements.

What For?

THE world DOES grow better—but slowly and wretchedly.

Take a microscope of the greatest power, examine a grain of sand.

Suppose you find it inhabited by intelligent beings, learn that they lived upon that sand grain for thousands of centuries, and see them butchering each other now, as in ages past—what will you think of the wretched atoms?

How do you suppose this miserable, fighting, bloody, hellish little planet of ours looks to our ancient neighbors in space, and to Divine intelligence, as they look down upon us with the microscope of cosmic power, and find us, after thousands of centuries, following kings that lead us to murder, following vile passions that lead us to aggression, lying, fighting and horrible cruelty?

* * *

Our earth is not one-tenth populated.

All of the human beings upon the planet could stand on Staten Island, in New York Harbor.

All of the human beings on earth and twice as many could live well provided for within the borders of Texas, with proper cultivation and manufactures.

Yet we are murdering each other in the quarrel for land, when we have too much.

We are slaughtering each other in a craze of murder based on ambition, when there is no real ambition except in peace and intellectual achievement.

* * *

If you saw two men on a raft, floating on the ocean, drew nearer and found them busy with knives, slashing each other, bathed in blood, full of hatred, what horror would fill your mind?

Yet such a raft is this earth, and the men upon it, traveling through the stream of eternity, across the ocean of infinite space and time, knowing not whither they are going, living here but for a moment, yet busy with knives, cannon and swords.

* * *

This is the trouble with the human race

We are still AS A RACE, savage beasts that fight in packs.

Our civilization, our intellectual aspirations, our progress, and all that is good, come to us AS INDIVIDUALS.

When we unite in PACKS, like the wolves, we become ferocious, destructive wild beasts.

And the most vicious beast among us is chosen for leader. And all ideals are lost and sunk in the ambition TO KILL THE OTHERS.

Nations at war are vile, murderous, lynching mobs.

Each as it proceeds to murder believes itself in the right and blasphemously prays to God to help in the killing.

The dreadful, discouraging part of this war is proof of the fact that every kind of human activity may lead to wholesale murder.

We used to have horrible murders, and tortures, wholesale and retail, based upon superstition, bigotry and religious hatred.

The race hoped that with superstition and religious ignorance dead, murder and torture would die out also.

We had wars and wholesale killings based upon brutal individual ambition, ruling over ignorance and stupidity.

Men hoped that growing intelligence would suppress murderous vanity.

Competition between the noblemen, kings and emperors, one craving the land of another, one resenting the insult of another, caused wars that lasted seven years, thirty years, or one hundred years.

It was hoped that democracy, making the people rule in place of kings and barons, would end war.

* * *

Commerce and money came to rule the earth in place of individuals, in place of ambition, vanity and superstition.

Commerce and money apparently required peace; the merchant, big or little, wanted his shop—THE NATION—quiet.

But now we find that commerce itself, the love of money, and the creative trade, drive to war and brutal bloodshed as eagerly as did the ruler's ambition, or the religious bigot's desire to force his faith upon others.

We have the Germans telling us that the English forced this war through jealousy of German commercial growth—and there is no doubt that that jealousy did exist in its most bitter form in England.

We have the English telling us that the war was forced by Germany, because Germany was determined to get English colonies, English trade and English money.

We are bound in this country of neutrality to refrain from taking sides. But, WHAT SIDE IS THERE TO TAKE?

We see the nations of the world vieing with each other in destroying life.

We know and they know THAT NO GOOD CAN COME.

We know that [illegible]ion which wins in the end, the group of nations that win, will be hopelessly bankrupt, despondent, bled half to death, and discouraged when the war ends.

We have seen the old story of murder and conquest repeated over and over.

We saw the day, long centuries ago, when Kings, dressed in furs, sat opposite each other on the thrones of Carthage and of Rome."

And those Kings, coming from barbarian ambition, thought, of course, that they would sit upon those thrones forever.

Soon they were swept away.

We have seen the world divided and re-divided.

We read now of the plan of one fighter for division of the earth when victory comes.

We used to read as children the plans and boasts of Attila, and others that thought brutal power could conquer the mind.

And we have seen and KNOW that no race can be made to stay in slavery, that no conquest based upon brutal force can endure.

* * *

Over and over, the world has been divided, and sub-divided, and re-divided.

Civilization, intelligence, study, have concentrated power in the brain, taking it from the muscles.

Wealth accumulated has made men "effeminate." That is to say, it has taken their attention from brutal conquest.

Then brute power has come in and conquered the "effeminate" intelligent, to be again conquered in its turn by intelligence.

So it has gone century after century, AND SO IT GOES ON, SHAMEFULLY, TO-DAY.

* * *

Fortunately, ridiculous as it may seem to you who read of wholesale murder hitherto unknown on this earth—fortunately we say—"THE WORLD DOES IMPROVE."

The man who destroys temples of art and science to-day, must apologize and blame the other. A few centuries ago he would have boasted that he had destroyed the churches of his enemies, or the great libraries containing knowledge that he despised.

To-day the man whose bombshells, dropping from the sky, destroy helpless women and children, finds that he must apologize and explain that it is the enemy and not he who forces the murder. He would be only too glad to spare the women and children if the enemy would submit.

To-day on both sides, on all sides, you have the murderers apologizing.

A few years ago every murderer was a boaster. He was PROUD as he felt the hoofs of his horse sink into the faces of dead women and children.

He was proud as he gave the order to spare no life, proud as he ordered the plows to pass over the place where the city stood, and salt to be scattered that no grass might ever grow there.

* * *

We DO improve.

We are a nation of bloodthirsty rioters.

The most intelligent of us are carried away by the mob spirit, and become as brutal, as blind to right and justice as the wolves that attack the enemy turn to eat their wounded fellows.

Brutal we are, bloody, murderous.

What our spirit tells us is right we do not do.

What we know to be wrong is the task of nearly all the great nations in the world to-day.

Disgraceful to our race, disgraceful to the men of thought and power is the rule of the brute, the thug, the murderers, whose ambition and brutal vanity demand the submission of the superior to the inferior.

But still it may be said THE WORLD DOES IMPROVE.

* * *

Let the cynic sneer and say that war will last forever. He is WRONG.

Let the good man in despair bow his head and say that the world gets no better, HE IS WRONG.

We kill the women and children, but at least we do not DELIGHT in the killing.

We destroy that which is most ancient and precious, but at least we are ashamed of our destruction.

We know that brutality may temporarily rule Europe, or the whole world.

But we know and are determined that BRUTAL RULE SHALL NOT ENDURE.

We are led away by the mob spirit, the ferocity of battle, but we recover from the drunkenness of crime as we did not use to do.

You have read of the taking of cities in Europe, the killing of men, women and children, destruction of works of art.

It seems horrible and IS horrible. But if you doubt that the world is better, let your mind consider the thousands and hundreds of thousands at least left ALIVE and permitted to seek safety. Consider the cities that STAND, although they have been conquered, and then consider conditions in the old days.

You cannot doubt that slow as progress is, we have come many miles from the bottom of the chasm of horror, and are destined to reach the top, where war will be no more, and civilization will commence.

* * *

There are great powers and great cities that hate each other to-day, as Rome and Carthage hated each other. And one of the great forces at war will win. But the horrors of old will NOT be repeated.

Not long ago the remains of the city walls of Carthage were dug up. They were covered with ashes five feet deep. Through the centuries the site of that great city had lain dead, a field of blood and forgotten horror.

When THAT city was taken that was not the end, as when a city is taken to-day.

For six days after the Romans entered the city they carried on their work of murder, singing and shouting, as they cut down the half starved miserable inhabitants.

At night they set fire to houses that "they might see to kill." When the work of killing was done, the last of the resisting force gathered in the temple on the hill dedicated to the god of healing, destroyed themselves by fire.

Then, for seventeen days, Carthage burned.

"The plow was passed over the soil to put an end in legal form to the existence of the city. House might never again be built, corn might never again be sown upon the ground where it had stood."

Of those that were not murdered in the taking of a city in the old days, some died in prison, the others died as slaves.

There was no mercy, no pity.

We do not kill as men used to kill. Excepting a few wild beasts in high places, we no longer delight in blood or plan for the extermination of millions.

The world is better, and eventually it will be GOOD.

But to-day it is a nest of horror, a corner of Hell floating around the sun.

Let us hope that to the older planets, where decent spirits dwell, we are invisible, or at least that we are ignored by them, as we ignore the rats that live and fight in the filthy sewer.

There must come an end to this war, fortunately. The fields will be green from the blood and the bodies of men. The wealth of a century will have been wiped out in a few months.

EVERY HUMAN BEING ON EARTH WILL HAVE SUFFERED AND WILL CONTINUE TO SUFFER.

After this horrible lesson we can talk no more of "the last war." We cannot hope that we have seen the last of the wild beast coming to the top and having his day.

But we can at least hope that a great lesson will have been learned, that a greater number of people will come over to the side of peace and protest.

We may hope that this will be the last riot of blood and murder for many years at least, and that we shall be nearer the end of the horror, and more than ever determined to achieve that end.

REDMOND'S STAND IN WAR CRISIS IS FOUNDED ON IRISH HONOR, SAYS EGAN

Parnell's Close Friend; Intimate Associate of Michael Davitt; First Treasurer of the Land League; Sterling American Patriot, Makes Logical Argument in Support of Policy of Ireland's Famous Leader.

When Charles Stewart Parnell, in association with Michael Davitt, [illegible] the standard of the Irish National Land League, among the first men of influence in Ireland to rally to that standard was Patrick Egan.

From the outset of the great movement down to the day of Parnell's death, there was not a man of the Irish race the world over of whom Parnell thought more highly than he did of Patrick Egan.

Egan has been all his life a sterling Irish Nationalist. He was such in the days of the Fenians. He was a leader in the amnesty cause. He stood by the side of Isaac Butt, when that great Unionman first unfurled the banner of home rule.

And, when ten years later, Butt was succeeded by Parnell, no man saw more quickly than Patrick Egan that in the new party, with its aggressive policy there was at last found a way to win justice for Ireland.

At the first meeting of the national directory of the Land League, Mr. Egan was, on the motion of Parnell himself, chosen the national treasurer.

All through the exciting days of the Foster Coercion regime Egan was in the forefront of the fight. When Foster suppressed the Land League on that memorable night of 1880, it was Egan who outwitted Foster, and got away into France with the cash and the books and records of the splendid fighting organization.

Mr. Egan's statement, which is printed here, in justification of Mr. Redmond's position in the present war, is entitled to be read carefully and with deep respect for the Irish patriot who writes it:

By PATRICK EGAN.

A GREAT national convention, held in Dublin in April, 1912, unanimously adopted the home rule bill which was offered to Ireland by Prime Minister Asquith and which was recently made part of the statute law of the British empire.

As a gathering of the people of Ireland the convention was the largest, most liberally elected and conducted and the most representative ever held upon Irish soil. To it were invited in addition to the regular membership of the United Irish League, clergymen of every denomination, the lord mayors of Dublin and Cork and mayors and city councillors of the leading cities, members of the county councils throughout Ireland and representatives of professional, commercial, industrial, trades, benevolent and labor organizations. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish party, occupied the chair.

After introducing and fully explaining the new home rule bill (the same that has just been triumphantly made the law of the land), Mr. Redmond said, as reported verbatim in the Dublin Freeman:

"I claim that the men on whose shoulders is cast the responsibility of passing this measure into law, of safeguarding it from being wrecked — those men, I say, I claim must have the power (loud cheers) of deciding for themselves on the ground, and according to the exigencies of the situation, on every question of policy and tactics. (Hear! Hear!) We want to pass this bill (loud cheering) and we mean to pass it (renewed cheering).

"I accept it in the exact words which I read out in the House of Commons, the very words which Parnell (loud applause) himself used when he accepted a far worse bill in 1886. I ask you here today to indorse my words. (Loud and prolonged cheering.)

"When I spoke in the House of Commons I was told that I did not speak for the convention or for Ireland. (A voice, "You did," and cheers.)

"I answer I spoke for every single individual in the Irish party, and I ask you today to say that I spoke for Ireland." (Loud cheers, the audience again rising to their feet and waving hats.)

When the cheering subsided, Mr. Redmond continued: "I beg to move the following resolution: 'That we welcome the government of Ireland bill as an honest and generous attempt to settle the long and disastrous quarrel between the British and Irish nations; and this national convention of the Irish people decides to accept the bill in the spirit in which it is offered; and we hereby declare our solemn conviction that the passage of this bill into law will bind the people of Ireland to the people of Great Britain by a union infinitely closer than that which now exists, and by so doing add immeasureably to the strength of the empire.'"

The resolution was seconded by the Lord Mayor of Cork.

Mr. Redmond: "Does anyone desire to move an amendment?"

There was a thundering "No!" in response.

Some thirty other speeches delivered at that great national convention—many of them by the biggest, the most brainy, the most unquestionably patriotic men of our race — [illegible] in the high keys of broad, high and pure patriotism, and of profound, thoughtful desire to bring about, as promptly and as practically as possible, the elevation and betterment of our long-suffering country, bear upon their faces in connection with the formal resolutions, the evidences of a clear, distinct understanding—nay, contract—between the people of Ireland, acting through their carefully organized and duly elected convention, and the parties of the second part, namely, the legal and official representatives of the great democracy of Great Britain, with plenary powers, as to policy and details, to John Redmond and his party to secure and carry into effect such understanding.

The English people have now performed their part of this understanding, by forcing "the passage of the bill into law" over the heads of the House of Lords, and however intensely many of us may remember the lines that have so often made our blood tingle:

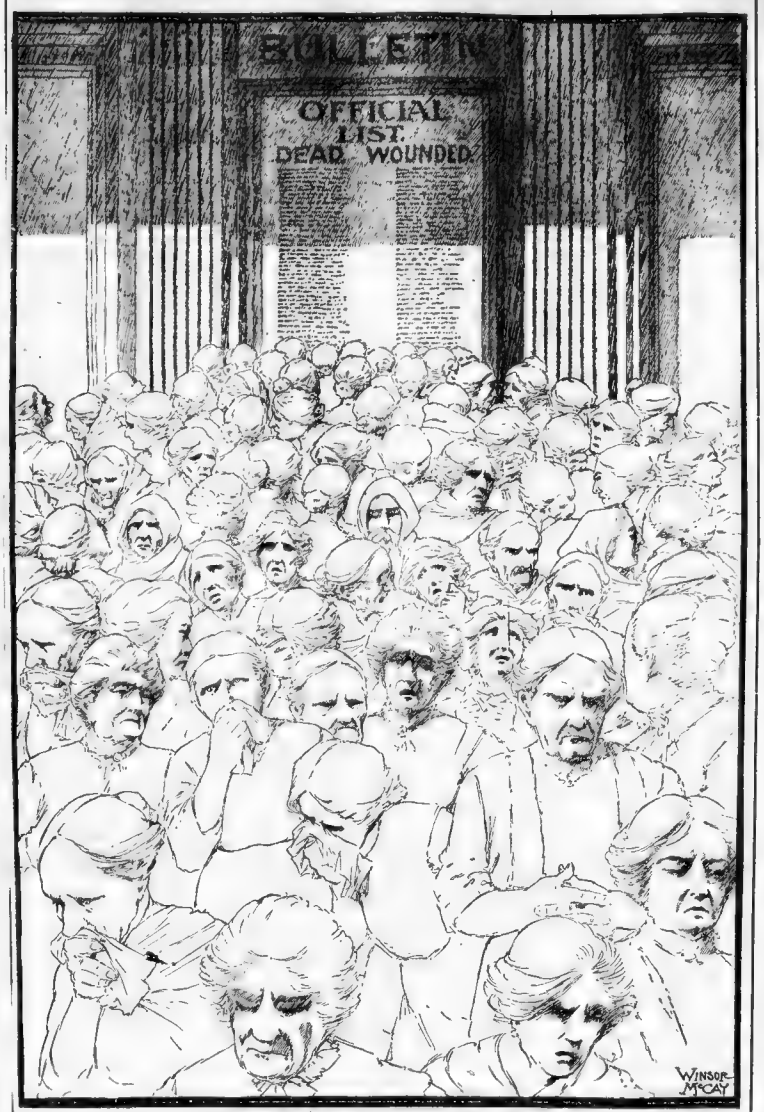
"There are stains to wash away, there are memories to destroy,
In the best blood of the Briton today at Fontenoy";

and however much many of us should like to be able to settle "the thousand centuries," in our own way, upon an Irish hillside, the facts are that Ireland stands today—notwithstanding the bugaboo amending bill—as a recognized partner, under deed, with Great Britain, that I she is subject, in case of British naval reverses, to liability to seizure, occupation and confiscation by Germany—from which fate I earnestly pray may God save her—and that she is honorably bound, under the solemn agreement entered into, and the promises made, having become the beneficiary of the stipulated consideration, to assume her proper proportion of the defence of the mutual assets of the partnership.

As for John Redmond, authorized and empowered as he was, as agent and spokesman of the Irish nation, and having been obliged, as he must have been, to negotiate and promise and stipulate in order at times to save the bill from being wrecked, were he now to repudiate those undertakings and violate his stipulations he would most certainly put upon "Ireland's honor, good faith and even self-interest" a stain from which they would not soon recover, besides writing himself down a coward and a poltroon—an act that no one of John Redmond's blood would ever be guilty of committing and that Ireland would never condone.

In conclusion it must be remembered that there have been at the front almost from the beginning of the present European war several Irish regular regiments of troops, numbering about 40,000 men, and that there is a floating population ever ready for adventure and excitement who would enroll anyway.

It is to those latter that Mr. Redmond has addressed himself and not to the [illegible] volunteers whom, in the words of his manifesto, he desires to have "put in a state of efficiency as speedily as possible for the defence of the country"—Ireland.



It is for these wives and mothers—the suffering non-combatants in the European war—that the prayers of hundreds of thousands of Americans have arisen. The man at the front feels the thrill of battle, and hopes for the glory of the victory, but the women and children at home know only the sorrow and the horror, as daily they find the names of their loved ones on the lists of dead. Well may the men and women of a country blessed by Providence with peace lift their voices in prayer that the war may be ended before its grim shadow is cast upon every household on the Continent of Europe.

The Messenger

SHE rose up in the early dawn,
And white and silently she moved
About the house. Four men had gone
To battle for the land they loved,
And she, the mother and the wife,
Waited for tidings from the strife.
How still the house seemed! and her tread
Was like the footsteps of the dead.

The long day passed; the dark night came.
She had not seen a human face,
Some voice spoke suddenly her name.
How loud it echoed in that place,
Where, day on day, no sound was heard
But her own footsteps. "Bring you word,"
She cried to whom she could not see,
"Word from the battle-plain to me?"

A soldier entered at the door.
And stood within the dim firelight:
"I bring you tidings of the four,"
He said, "who left you for the fight."
"God bless you, friend," she cried, "speak on!
For I can bear it. One is gone?"
"Ay, one is gone," he said. "Which one?"
"Dear lady, he, your eldest son."

A deathly pallor shot across
Her withered face; she did not weep.
She said: "It is a grievous loss,
But God gives His beloved sleep.
What of the living—of the three?
And when can they come back to me?"
The soldier turned away his head;
"Lady, your husband, too, is dead."

She put her hand upon her brow;
A wild, sharp pain was in her eyes.
"My husband! Oh, God help me now!"
The soldier heard her shuddering sighs.
The task was harder than he thought.
"Your youngest son, dear madam, fought
Close at his father's side; both fell
Dead, by the bursting of a shell."

She moved her lips and seemed to moan.
Her face had paled to ashen gray:
"Then one is left me—one alone,"
She said, "of four who marched away.
Oh, overruling, All-Wise God,
How can I pass beneath Thy rod!"
The soldier walked across the floor,
Paused at the window, at the door.

Wiped the cold-dewdrops from his cheek
And sought the mourner's side again.
"Once more, dear lady, I must speak;
Your last remaining son was slain
Just at the closing of the fight.
'Twas he who sent me here tonight."
"God knows," the man said afterward.
"The fight itself was not so hard."

GERMANY MUST NEVER GIVE UP THREATENED PROVINCES, SAYS PROF. MUNSTERBERG

Appeals to Americans in Behalf of Alsace and East Prussia—Points Out Historical Reasons for Their Retention by Germany, Should She Be Defeated in Great Conflict—Compares Conditions in the South.

By PROFESSOR HUGO MUNSTERBERG

Of Harvard College, from his new book, "The War and America"

THE papers brought a sketch of Germany as it will look after the great disaster.

England, they say, and of course they must know, will be modest in its demands and will take only the whole German fleet and the Kiel Canal, besides the cost of the mobilization.

France, to be sure, will insist on the billion dollars which it had to pay after the Franco-Prussian War, together with the interest for forty-four years, and will take not much more land than Alsace-Lorraine.

Russia will grasp for eastern Prussia, with its Baltic seacoast to include Danzig. It was a slender Germany which was left in that gruesome picture.

But how many American readers do really know what it would mean for Germany to lose Alsace and Prussia to the Danzig coast?

Alsace! Yesterday was the anniversary of the battle of Weissenburg, the first great struggle in the war for German unity. To the American it is a battle name, colorless and commonplace.

Weissenburg is to him one of the many little French towns in the French land which the brutal force of Germany has torn out of happy France and has crushed by blatant militarism and which, in its suffering through almost half a century, longs to be taken home into the mother arms of the French people. But this is untrue and a hundred times untrue.

Alsace is a German province with German traditions and German lifeblood. For a while French rule was forced on it, but it never became French.

This French rule was much more rigorous and intolerant than any German rule after 1870.

Moreover, the Alsatians were never really accepted as Frenchmen. In the eyes of Paris they always remained only half French; their French dialect appeared ridiculous. They disliked France and were disliked in France.

Alsace Resources Long Undeveloped.

It was no wonder that their resources remained undeveloped. Even the proudest city of Alsace, Strassburg, when it came into German possession in 1870, was after all only an overgrown village.

Today it is a wonderful, proud city with beautiful palaces, with one of the best equipped universities of the world, with noble avenues and parks, enriched by Germany's good will as much as it was held down by France's indifference in the past.

Alsace would be today perfectly happy in its natural German frame, if French longing for political revenge had not artificially kept alive agitation for jointude with France. To be sure, the German administration was often unstable; there was not sufficient unity of purpose.

Sometimes the effort was made to win the population by overindulgence. As soon as such leniency was intolerably misused at the instigation of Paris, the regime was changed to the other extreme and the German language and German methods were sternly insisted on.

As soon as that started up reactions, the other groove was tried again until the French societies again preached treason. One consistent policy in the German camp would probably have succeeded better.

But the real fault was with France, which refused to forget. If France, after the fall of the Napoleonic empire had reconstructed its realm with the same spirit with which in America the Southern States submitted to the decision of the Civil War, Alsace would be perfectly German today, and the whole military machine of Germany would never have been built up.

But France smarted under the memory of Sedan; it draped in black the statue of Strasburg in Paris and knew no prayer but for the recovery of the beloved provinces which it had despised until they were taken.

Only on account of this artificial stimulation from Paris, a part of the Alsatian people felt anxious to don their French costume.

Yes; Alsace is German; and if the overwhelming number should capture the provinces on the left of the Rhine and the tricolor should once more flutter over the Strassburg cathedral, Alsace would be for a while the glory of the Gallic nation, and a little later it would be again degraded to a second-class France because its people are not French, but German.

How long would it be before the rich Strassburg of the German empire would again be the neglected, impoverished town of France? Is it really necessary for every American who contributes to the papers a word about Alsace simply to repeat that absurd cant about the "lost" provinces?

Russia to Select Richest Prize.

About Alsace, which the Frenchmen are to take, we hear at least not a little in America, as everybody knows everything about it. But about the province of West Prussia with its capital Danzig, which Russia has selected as its prize, we never hear anything at all.

The editorial writers seem not to be at home there. But there I am at home. I was born in Danzig, spent my youth there, and have gone back to my beloved native town whenever I went to Germany.

It is quite true: Nothing which Russia might gain could be so valuable as Danzig with its harbor in the Baltic Sea at the mouth of the Vistula. A great seaport which can be used all the year must be the longing of Russia, which finds no outlet from its Baltic harbors during six Winter months.

The ice-free harbor in the east was, after all, the chief aim in Russia's fight with Japan; an ice-free harbor of the west is its hope in Germany, and Danzig's harbor is surpassed by few.

We know Danzig's history since 997. At the end of the fourteenth century three hundred ships brought goods there from England every year; and at the end of the fifteenth more than seven hundred ships left Danzig's harbor yearly. Its world commerce was often checked and always again came to power. In the last few decades it has developed its resources with new energy and is flourishing today. Will all this German work be lost to Russian greed?

But what is Danzig's harbor compared with Danzig's beautiful streets? Americans who automobile through Germany are enthusiastic over Nuremberg; they do not know that Leanzig is still more wonderful. Those squares and streets, houses and churches, halls and towers and city gates tell the fascinating story of five centuries of architecture in one of the richest cities of the north. They call it the northern Venice.

The houses are filled with the arts and crafts of beauty-loving times, and their facades and their gable roofs are the gems of eastern Germany. Will the Cossacks break into this paradise of stone?

To be sure, it would not be the first time that the Russians would come to the doors of Danzig. In 1734 a Russian army besieged Danzig because it had taken sides in the fight about the Polish succession. It had to surrender, had to pay a million thalers to the Russians, and the free town had to send a delegation with pledges to Petersburg.

After the dismemberment of the Polish kingdom in 1793, the old, free German town of Danzig joined the kingdom of Prussia. Soon the great oppressor of Europe destroyed the peace of the flourishing city. Napoleon's armies forced their way to the far east of Prussia and cruelest Danzig by a most cruel siege. I remember well how my grandmother told me of the terrible suffering in her childhood when the population was hidden in the cellars of the town.

Danzig surrendered to the French in 1807, but the suffering was not at an end, Napoleon squeezed millions over millions from the impoverished citizens and filled the town with insolent French soldiers. Those years of brutal French oppression were the darkest time of Danzig's thousand years of history.

If a cruel fate were to deliver the province of West Prussia with its capital Danzig to the Slave, it would be as if New England were handed over to Mexico as a Mexican colony, with General Villa as dictator in Boston.

HINDOO HARVARD STUDENT TELLS OF ENGLAND'S GRAVE PERIL IN INDIA

A great body of these hardy fighters from British India have been landed in France and Belgium and more are on their way. The large picture in the centre is a photograph of some of the troops who were shipped across Canada to the front. The pictures at the left and right are types of the different regiments sent to Europe. At the left is an Indian infantryman and a non-commissioned officer of the Second Lancers. At the right is one of the Fourteenth Lancers and an officer of the Eighteenth Bengal Lancers

Achuta Shridhar Bhandarkar, noted Bombay Hindu and leading thinker among the younger element in India, now completing his studies at Harvard, today in the Sunday AMERICAN discloses the effect of the European war upon the national and political situation in India, now that a native force of 60,000 men has been called to fight for Great Britain against the Germans.

Mr. Bhandarkar makes it plain tha[t] today the Nationalists' hatred of British [illegible] ted to fanatical length. Nothing that the British can do in India is good—to the Nationalist. Mr. Bh[illegible] clear reveals a condition frought with [illegible] Anglo-Saxon situation in the Far East, as an indirect result of the war, in the future.

[illegible] ages is [illegible] abolished and eventual social transformation, brought about by the weakening of Great Britain through the war.

By ACHUTA SHRIDHAR BHANDARKAR.

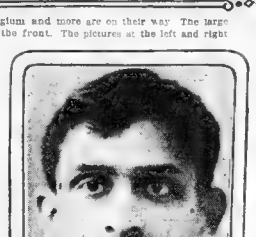
Let us understand clearly the national and political situation in India today. There are the great masses of people, ignorant and poor; then the growing number of Nationalists, that is, young students and the younger men in general who have studied and formed most opinions and who hate the British rule, and, finally, the educated class, comprising the older and more mature people who do not approve of violence in the acquisition of a home rule government. This last group is, of course, in the small minority. The group of Nationalists is not a large one.

Ignorant people comprise the body of the army.

Our Indian princes, for the most part, live in luxury, have practically no responsibility and are sycophantic towards the British rulers. Their attitude is by no means typical of the general national spirit that pervades India. We have at home only a few princes who are of the educated type in the wider sense of the word, the Gaekwar of Baroda and Holkar, [illegible] of Central India, being two of them. In the Gaekwar's country education is compulsory. Nowhere else in India is this so. The educated people, as a whole, are represented by a number of leaders whose utterances are received with confidence and respect.

Now turn to the British attitude towards these people. Compulsory education has been constantly opposed by the British in India. The English have shown constantly in their acts and repressive laws that they are against the growing spirit of democracy among the younger element. Freedom of the press and of speech is everywhere denied. And this for two great reasons:

In getting a better education the people would come to desire more of it and they would refuse to go into the army. India is mainly kept in control by Indian troops today



ACHUTA SHRIDHAR BHANDARKAR.

Secondly, educated, the troops would imbibe true patriotism and would refuse to take arms against their fellow countrymen.

The troops today are of the ignorant masses. They are taught to ride, to shoot, to obey. That is all they know. In case of an uprising, the English officers in charge of the troops order them to take arms against the people of India. They know no better than to obey. The English prefer to have the army, and also the native princes, kept down by ignorance and illiteracy. The princes see no necessity of education. Why should they? They are the proteges of tyrant England. Their welfare and even their duties are looked out for and safeguarded by the English.

As I have said, to the younger educated class, everything British is bad. This class would gladly welcome the German rule in India, or any other rule for that matter, providing it were not British.

There is no doubt that England is playing her old game in taking 60,000 troops and so many of our native princes out of the country, though that 60,000 is but a drop in the ocean of India's population. The British policy is to play one enemy against another, to let the other fellow do all the fighting and then to step in and grab what England wants after it is over. Taking away the soldiery from India, and with it the native princes, is weakening the power of the princes at home.

Nearly all the troops going to join the allies are subjects of the particular princes who lead them. While they are in the front of the battle line in Europe there is no fear that these princes will be getting educated, and like the Gaekwar institute compulsory education in their provinces.

The English realize that if the people of India should unite and demand political rights, the British would be obliged to yield at once. The trouble is that there are at present too many factions, having different social and religious ideals, too many sects and sub-sects in India to permit of harmony between all.

It is a question whether an opportunity like the present, when England is being weakened at home and has weakened her standing army in India by drawing on its forces for the war may not quicken India into a united nation.

If the Turks can be induced to join with the Germans in the war, and rebellion enters as a cause in this alliance, the whole Mohammedan population may rise. All Mohammedans are exceedingly fanatical about their religion. During the Turko-Grecian War, the casual uprisings in India were due to the fact that the people regarded it as a religious struggle.

The war will have a decidedly moral effect upon India. The army, if victorious, will return to India with a different spirit. If the religious element enters, the Mohammedans in India, Egypt, Persia, and along the north of Africa will be likely to keep the colorful troops of both France and England so busy that they will have no opportunity to take part in the fighting on the continent. With Great Britain weakened by fighting, the Nationalists in India will consider it the most opportune time to strike the blow for independence.

Supposing that Great Britain meets with severe reverses and losses in the present war supposing France and Russia are weakened? Will it not be natural for all the eastern powers to seize the opportunity? Japan, China, India are not asleep. Wide-awakeness in India is everywhere. The demand for more education is insistent among the leaders.

The coming revolution must be social as well as political. The masses of the people must gain. The young Nationalists are idealists as well as fanatics. They will insist that education be universal and compulsory, that the Hindu be given charge of his own people [illegible] may cost bloodshed, revolutions and much bitterness, but it is the inevitable end of the present British-Indian situation in [illegible].

As a result of the present war, India and the other eastern nations will realize that Great Britain and the western nations are unable to manage their eastern affairs without the aid of the eastern peoples. In other words knowledge and realization of their own power will be brought home to the people of the east as it never has been before.

Supposing that India is dent[illegible]ion and privileges, after [illegible] turbed 60,000 troops for the present campaign. Will not this serve to add greatly to the fl[illegible] of [illegible] that is being kindled by the Nati[illegible]

Today the masses of the people are [illegible] poorer and poorer under Brit[illegible] rule. Cotton goods made in India are now bigger than those imported from Manchester. Ar[illegible] The average income [illegible] has been reduced to two and a half cents per day per capita.

By throwing 60,000 Indian troops into the [illegible] of Germany, [illegible] and German empire, [illegible] should they rise against Great [illegible] No one that the personnel of these troops [illegible] Sikh element, a class particularly [illegible] against British colonial rule.

Thus many significant results may follow the present situation with our troops upon European soil struggling for the British. [illegible] may be seen tomorrow in uprisings in India. It may be delayed for weeks, months, years, but is hard to tell. But in the end it is situation is bound to be fraught with great results for our people.

H Reeves Smith, who plays Jerry, the lover in "Peg o' My Heart," was asked for his photograph a few days ago and said he didn't have any We chronicle this as among the strange and curious facts that sometimes come to our attention. Think of an actor not having a photograph. As the more startling is Reeves Smith is one of most experienced leading men in the country. If he were given a strip for every famous play in which he has played, the way they do policemen and conductors, Reeves Smith would be striped all over like a convict

Reeves Smith has been in more long run successful than any other man at present on the stage at this time. Two of these "Our Boys" and "Charley's Aunt" were produced in London. The latter broke all records and is now being played in "Peg o' My Heart." He played consecutively the leading parts for over 2000 performances, which is said to be a world's record for a leading man. He also appeared in "Betsy" at the Criterion for twenty-two months and "Seven Days" at Terry's London for nine hundred months. He was an original member of the cast of "The

What the Coming Season's Debutantes Are Doing

An important addition to the list of this season's debutantes is Miss Dorothy Hooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Hooper, late of No. 7 Marlborough street and now residing at The Clarendon on Boylston street. Miss Hooper has lately returned from an extensive trip on the Continent and the British Isles, and it is understood will be presented at a small dance to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Hooper some time in January.

Mrs. Herbert Trent Paine, 2nd, and her daughter Miss Elizabeth Mason Paine, prospective debutante, of Boston and Coolidge Point, Manchester, are sojourning in New York, with the Motel Gotham as their temporary home.

Another prospective debutante in New York this week is Miss Beverly Curtiss Motel, Louca, [illegible] Richards. Mrs. Charles D. Aldrich is with her. They are stopping at the [illegible].

A trio of sisters who will be particularly in the limelight during the coming social season are the Misses Margaret, Katherine and Ruth McCall, daughters of the Hon. and Mrs. Samuel W. McCall of Winchester. The McCall girls are particularly promising in social doings besides being individually of the type which evinces always a decided preference for out-door recreations. All these girls will be seen much at the more important debutante functions of the earlier season. Their popularity among the younger set being universally admitted.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Tolman of Boston have been registered at the [illegible] for the coming Winter season.

Miss Sigourney Fair Debutante

Miss Katherine Sigourney, daughter of Mrs. Henry Sigourney of No. 77 Beacon street, is listed among the [illegible] to be presented to society the coming Winter season. Miss Sigourney promises to prove one of the most interesting of the forthcoming debutantes. Always vivacious, with a charm of manner that accentuates her attractiveness of [illegible] figure, and with frank [illegible] attitude towards everyone [illegible] out door pursuits an interest greater than usual in social features of this kind. Miss Sigourney is a member of the Sewing Circle and is prominent in many out door sports taken up by the younger set.

The Preston Gibsons have located at Washington for the Winter after their season at Beverly Farms.

Hunter-Lorillard Engagement a Surprise

An engagement of much interest [illegible] Newport by Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hunter, is concerned the announcement of their daughter, Edith N. Hunter, to Louis L. Lorillard.

Mrs. Frederick Prince of "Princemere" is an aunt of Miss Hunter, Guy Norman of Boston and Beverly Cove [illegible] Hunter.

Mr. Lorillard is a son of the late Louis L. Lorillard and a nephew of Mrs. R. Livingston Beekman and Mrs. James P. Kernochan. His brother, George, is in the consular service.

Miss Hunter made her debut in Newport last July after a two years' sojourn abroad with her parents. While in Italy she met Mr. Lorillard, their friendship culminating in their engagement, which was a surprise to their friends.

The engagement was announced at a dinner which Mr. and Mrs. R. Livingston Beekman gave at "Land's End," Newport. Mr. Lorillard left Switzerland yesterday to join his fiancee in Newport.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay of Washington and Prides Crossing is planning for Miss Frances Moore's debut at the capital this season.

Mrs. William F. Draper and Miss Margaret F. Draper, who were absent from Manchester this season, summering abroad, have returned from Europe to their Washington residence. This week they registered at the Ritz-Carlton, New York, for a fortnight's stay.

Page of News About the Women's Clubs

The Sunday American has begun the publication each Sunday of a page of news of interest about the women's clubs of Greater Boston. Announcements of coming events concerning the clubs, notes of the prominent members and news of the doings of the various clubs will be printed each week.

The club news will be found on page three of this section today.

Juniors to Have Bazaar.

The Junior Chester Club opens the season with a bazaar and dance at the Copley-Plaza on November 6 and 7.

The [illegible] of Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. Howard S. Johnson, Mrs. William Ball, Mrs. George Lawlis, Mrs. E. E. Richards, Mrs. Louis Magee, Mrs. Philip Bruce, Mrs. Sarah Goffe, Miss Robina Jordan, Miss Mabelle Bonelli and Miss Viola Marsters. Miss Mabel Paine, the new president, is planning a variety of entertainments, and keen interest is felt in the cabaret, vaudeville and exhibition dances; the [illegible] scheduleh to be announced next week.

MID OCTOBER FINDS BOSTON'S SMART SET BACK IN CITY HOMES

By BETTY BOSTON.

Mid-October has been the social bridge, which has been crossed, week, to leave behind seashore and country and bring many prom... Bostonians back to their city homes.

Reluctantly we have left the glories of Autumn, tempered with unusual Summer suns, to begin our individual social duties and answer the calls of Winter environments.

We [illegible] of the ample purse and freedom of leisure can dine at will and to the full on melodious menus, we are grateful, too, that such philan... [illegible] of the Robert Gould Shaw settlement will [illegible] for [illegible] for [illegible]

In truth our great musical organization, the Boston Symphony Or... [illegible] this week the station notes that have fully awakened us to our social duties in the city.

The [illegible] Club and the [illegible] have been planning for immediate philanthropic work, as their prospective bazaars and entertainments to be held in the Copley-Plaza next month attest.

Who ever dreamed that the time would come when the matter of [illegible] as a suppliant' [illegible] society in that prospect. The B. A. R. organizations are to be [illegible] mother of this appeal. Doubtless they will try to aid sincerely the dubious situation in the cotton district.

That the "dansant" is to be a social medium again this season was emphasized by the initial one given yesterday afternoon by the Copley-Plaza management. Its bid for social supremacy is likewise marked by the many affairs of this nature in which the coming debutantes will figure.

So at last the social wheel seems to have all its cogs fitting very neatly with many an able social engineer behind the propellors, steering, [illegible] at last toward the real inauguration of the season of 1914-15.

WOMEN'S NEW CITY CLUB PRESSES ON TO 3,000 MEMBERSHIP MARK

Remarkable Organization Founded on Principles of Men's City Club Includes Employer and Employe, Society and Business Women

Mrs. James J. Storrow, whose interests vary from esthetic dancing to horseback trips through the Arizona deserts and world peace unions, is just now finding her time pretty well occupied with her duties as president of a thriving organization of close to 3,000 members. If her burden prove heavy she is deprived of the satisfaction of blaming someone else, for she is one of the three original perpetrators of the unique idea of founding a club for women along the same lines as those governing the Men's City Club.

Beginning with three broad-minded and energetic women, the symbol of the club might well be taken as a figure three, so prominent has this been in its development. Thirty representative women were gathered together and formed an organization committee, each pledging herself to secure ten additional members. The resulting 300, comprising the charter members, formally launched the Women's City Club of Boston on June 30, 1913. Shortly thereafter the slogan "3 to 3,000" was adopted, and now the 3,000 is practically an established fact. The "broad acquaintance" aimed for seems in a fair way to be realized. It is hardly to be expected that each member of the Women's City Club will be hand in glove with every one of the other 2,999 members, but the results to date indicate that there will be a pervading sympathy and fellowship, a dropping of the distinctions between the woman of wealth and the self-supporting woman, between different religions, different interests. George W. Coleman well expressed the situation in an article on "Boston a City of Progress: An Interpretation," when he wrote:

WHAT COLEMAN SAID.

"But perhaps the most amazing thing that Boston has done of late in the line of progress is the formation of a Women's City Club based on precisely the same lines as the initial organization started by the men. And, although this new club is only a few months old, it already has nearly 2,000 members, with $13,000 in the treasury and a fine old Beacon street mansion leased for a club house. When you realize that these city clubs admit Jew and Gentiles, Catholics and Protestants, employers and employes, society ladies and working women, and that they will mingle together freely and easily every day, the men in their building and the women in theirs, you begin to realize what a democratic force has been let loose to the community, and what it is likely to accomplish."

This, in short, is what has been accomplished by the organizing members of the Women's City Club. The three originators have labored valiantly and effectively, and their enthusiasm has grown with each successive step. Today one finds Mrs. Storrow bending her every energy to the perfection of the club organization. Miss Grady and Miss Brurton have put heart and soul and every available minute of their crowded time into the affairs of the club, in addition to carrying responsibilities in business life which would bend the shoulders of any but the most remarkable women. Working with them are equally enthusiastic fellow-officers and an executive committee which for intellect, ideals and accomplishment could hardly be equalled.

EXECUTIVE ABILITY.

Executive ability in organization and club work could find no more successful exponents than Mrs. May Alden Ward, lecturer and president of the New England Women's Club, Mrs. George W. Perkins, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Mary Schenck Woolman, former president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union. Familiarity with civic problems, industrial conditions and social welfare work is acquired through Miss Mabel Gillespie, generally associated with the Women's Trade Union League; Mrs. Glendower Evans, whose invaluable services on the first Minimum Wage Commission and in other fields affecting the working women need no recalling; Miss Bertha Hazard, founder and manager of the Hennessy House; Dr. Blanche Denig, who has quietly carried on a wonderful work at the Young Women's Christian Association and the New England Women's Hospital; and Mrs. Clara T. Guild, head of the Tuckerman School for Boys.

Mrs. Edmund Billings, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, who is very active at present in the suffrage interests, Miss Katharine Child, head of the Stuart Club, and Mrs. Emily Beal, founder of the nurses home and registry bearing her name, are others who typify the material of which this body of women is made up. The success of Mrs. Katharine T. Hodges as chairman of the membership campaign committee is expressive of the initiative and resourcefulness of the executive committee as a whole.

NO HOMESICKNESS.

"The really remarkable thing about the club" remarked Miss Grady recently, "is that it should be possible to thus bring together first tens and then hundreds of women, to whom we could not offer even a temporary clubhouse, when it has been necessary to hold our meetings in various places and at greater expense than would otherwise be possible."

The meetings to which Miss Grady refers as having been held under the disadvantages of a homeless organization have been singularly lacking in any indications of homesickness. One recalls particularly the occasion of the first annual meeting of the club, held in May, when under the direction of Mrs. F. E. A. Goodwin, a member of the executive committee, the entire seating capacity of Symphony Hall was engaged for the opening night of the "Pops."

It was perhaps something of a surprise to the members themselves when late comers found every table engaged and barely enough balcony seats to fill the demand. Traditional "first nighters" at the "Pops" realized suddenly that the new women's club of which they had been reading in the papers was something to be reckoned with.

This meeting was the occasion of the announcement that the lease of No. 40 Beacon street had been arranged for. In the short five months ensuing funds have been raised for alterations and furnishings costing approximately $50,000, plans drawn, details decided upon, contracts placed and executed, and the finishing touches are now being added.

MISS FRANCES G. CURTIS

Still "homeless," the first meeting of the current season, however, exhibited no vacant chairs. The foregathering for world peace of such speakers as Miss Jane Addams, Hamilton Holt, Albert J. Bryant, Miss Lucile Gulliver, Mrs. Mary Wright Sewall, Mrs. Glendower Evans and Mrs. Storrow is an earnest of similarly inspiring meetings in the future.

Specially deserving of a niche in the club's hall of fame is Miss Frances G. Curtis, perhaps more familiarly known as a member of the Boston School Committee and of the State Board of Charities than as second vice-president of the Women's City Club. To her untiring zeal may be attributed the possibility of securing a lease of the 40 Beacon street premises under conditions within the financial capabilities of the organization, and with an arrangement whereby it may be owned by the club later, if found to be continuously satisfactory.

THE SALEM TAG DAY.

Mrs. Caroline Saunders, whose work as treasurer has been unusually strenuous in the past few months, fairly bubbles with enthusiasm. Mrs. Saunders, although averse to being quoted, was quick with appreciation of this response to the Executive Committee's appeal. Especially gratifying to the officers is the fact that it was unnecessary at any time to resort to personal appeals. The members were offered the opportunity to help and grasped it promptly. The fund was raised by subscription to interest bearing notes for amounts from $10 to $500, the only solicitation made being in the form of printed statements of the expected requirements and the hope that the members would co-operate.

When Mayor Curley called upon the officers to help in raising funds for the devastated Salem by conducting a Tag Day in that city, it was necessary owing to limited time to depend upon notices to members in the newspapers and such personal appeals as were possible by telephone —this in addition to the fact that a double holiday (July 4-5) had lured many members out of town. Despite these difficulties a large number of volunteers joined with Mayor and Mrs. Curley, the latter also an active member of the club, with a resultant contribution of nearly $2,500 to the sufferers.

The club's value to the community may be expressed in the words of Miss Margaret Murray, auditor of the organization, who believes that "the best thing the club can hope for is to carry out the fundamental idea of democracy. Following the aims of the by-laws is the fullest accomplishment to be desired."

Someone has said that the busiest man can always find time for one thing more, and it impresses one as equally true of the efficient secretary that the Women's City Club. Miss Flora MacDonald manages in some mysterious manner to sandwich a stupendous amount of club detail between the duties of her personal business, and many informal committee meetings and unscheduled consultations take place in the cozy little studio given over to interior decoration.

The outbreak of the war in Europe caused some prophecies that the newly launched women's club would be one of the first victims of the impend'g financial difficulties. Prospects of the club's increasing usefulness as a direct result of the war prove the contrary. Miss MacDonald is finding that many women now look forward to doing most of their entertaining through the facilities of the club house, as a matter both of economy and convenience. "One member recently told me," stated Miss MacDonald, "that, owing to the war, she has closed her city home and is going to live out of town, using the club house for city headquarters and doing all her entertaining there.

"Numerous calls have already come to the office from other organizations," continued Miss MacDonald, "requesting the use of our audience hall or smaller rooms for meetings and entertainments."

RESTAURANT FEATURE.

The restaurant committee is planning to make its department a principal feature of the club house.

Keenest interest, probably, centres at present around the building and furnishings committee, of which Mrs. Emily Beal is chairman. Supporting her, Mrs. Beal had the benefit of the advice and assistance of a committee including Miss Curtis, Mrs. William H. Lothrop, Mrs. William H. Mckiwain and Mrs. Herbert H. White.

Presiding over the homelike rooms now in preparation will be Mrs. Louise P. Chapin, destined to be as well known to the members as any officer of the club. Mrs. Chapin will be assisted by Mrs. Lois C. Davidson, well known in Boston for her upbuilding of the dining room at the Young Women's Christian Association

TRAVEL TALK.

The entertainment committee of the club is hinting at choice surprises for the membership when it announces its Winter program. There will be lecture courses on music, literature, art and social civics, as a matter of course, besides many special features not yet divulged. One event which is anticipated with pleasure is the travel talk promised by Mrs. Storrow, to be illustrated by her own photographs, describing the varied experiences encountered by Mr. Storrow and herself in their horseback trip from Arizona to the Yellowstone this past Summer. It is hoped that she will consent to appear in the picturesque western costume in which she made the trip, and which has also committee.

Miss Mary Caroline Crawford, as chairman of the entertainment committee, anticipates a busy Winter. She carries not only the responsibilities of the entertainment program for the club but her work for the School Voters' League and her duties as managing editor of "Ford Hall Folks," of which organization she is a leading spirit. "When people who have never met before," she declares, "can sit down before a cheery open fire and talk of a wide range of interests they frequently get more benefit and enjoyment than in almost any other way. The club will bring together all kinds of people who would not otherwise really know each other in a decade of casual acquaintance."

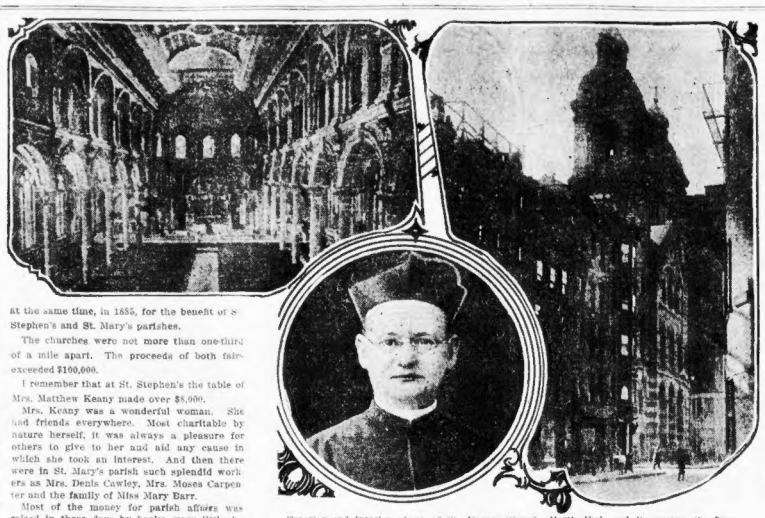
Memories of the Old North End — Suggested by the Coming Reunion of St. Mary's Parish — By John F. Fitzgerald



Exterior and interior views of St. Mary's Church, North End, and its rector, the Rev Father Conway, S. J.

By JOHN F. FITZGERALD,
Ex-Mayor of Boston.

On October 28 there is to be a great gathering of the present and former residents of the North End, caused by the reunion of the parish of "Old St. Mary's" on Endicott street.

Animated by the memories which the coming reunion awakens in the hearts of all sons and daughters of the North End, the following reminiscent article by ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, prepared expressly for this paper, will be read with interest:

I THINK it would be a splendid thing if all old North Enders would pay a visit to the churches—St. Stephen's and St. Mary's—say three or four times a year.

There must be at least 100,000 people in the metropolitan district of Boston who have attended either of those churches as boys or girls, as men or women, during the past fifty years.

It is pathetic to go down on Sunday morning now and see the empty benches in two of the finest churches in the world.

I recall with a great deal of pride the heroic efforts that were made by the parishioners in the seventies to build and equip the churches and schools. In those days the North End was the home of the poor, although a number of wealthy families lived there also.

But even with those good, well-to-do people the contributions that built and acquired those two great parish properties, which must have cost at least half a million dollars, came out of the pockets of the poor, who, rich in their faith, were opulent in their gifts.

I can vividly recall two fairs that were held at the same time, in 1855, for the benefit of S Stephen's and St. Mary's parishes.

The churches were not more than one-third of a mile apart. The proceeds of both fairs exceeded $100,000.

I remember that at St. Stephen's the table of Mrs. Matthew Keany made over $8,000.

Mrs. Keany was a wonderful woman. She had friends everywhere. Most charitable by nature herself, it was always a pleasure for others to give to her and aid any cause in which she took an interest. And then there were in St. Mary's parish such splendid workers as Mrs. Denis Cawley, Mrs. Moses Carpenter and the family of Miss Mary Barr.

Most of the money for parish affairs was raised in those days by books, very little by dances and entertainments, as is the case now.

We had a wonderful priesthood at St. Stephen's in those early years. There was Fr. Moran, the pastor for many years, a great business man and a good preacher. Father O'Farrell was there, first as Fr. Moran's assistant and later for many years as rector; then we had Fr. McMahon, now in Charlestown; Fr. Willerick, who spent years afterward in St. Joseph's, West End; Fr. Powers, afterward pastor in Chelsea; Fr. Garrett Barry, now up at St. Philip's; Fr. Killilea, now in Brockton; Fr. Knappe, at present pastor in Newton Upper Falls, and the present rector, who is worthy to succeed those splendid men.

The spirit of the North End has ever been fidelity and loyalty to early associations. Wherever one goes one will find men who still speak of the old days at St. Mary's and St. Stephen's and of their affection for their successive pastors.

There was a great leadership at the altar and in the pulpit of St. Mary's—Fr. McElroy, Fr. Brady, Fr. Duncan, Fr. Byrne, Fr. White; all were builders and workers, and the people of today enjoy the fruits of their labors.

The shifting of population has greatly embarrassed the priests who labor in those parishes today. When I was a boy, the North End was a district of Puritans largely. I meet some of them even today. They gave place to the Irish Catholic, these made room in turn for the Italian and the Jew.

But the same old North End spirit still remains, no matter where the families have gone, and neither St. Mary's nor St. Stephen's is lost to their memories.

It may be interesting to state that the North End is the birthplace of the term "caucus." In the days away back to Sam Adams the "calkers" was a favorite meeting, first of those who calked oakum into the seams of ships, and later, the term was picked up as a political term and in years turned into "caucus."

As a North Ender, born and bred, I have always taken a deep interest in the welfare and in the history of my boyhood district. When I was in Congress, the question came up of celebrating the 100th anniversary of the building of the frigate Constitution.

I went down to Portsmouth and there I found the fine old ship simply rotting at a wharf. I made up my mind the proper place for the Constitution was in the Charlestown Navy Yard where she could be seen by the thousands who every year visit historic Bunker Hill. I put in an order for an appropriation to bring the fine old ship to Boston, and it carried it through. The Constitution was brought around to Charlestown and was given a magnificent welcome.

That incident leads me to recall that in 1876, when I was in the Senate, I had the 19th of April—sacred in American history to the ride of Paul Revere, who was a North Ender—made "Patriots' Day," abolishing the other holiday, "Fast Day," which had grown to mean nothing to the newer generations.

When I was first elected Mayor one of my earliest interests was to have Hanover street paved for its entire length, a work that had never been done before.

The people who live today in the North End are enjoying wonderful advantages—splendid schools, open spaces and a bathing place for all the year round, which you cannot find in any other city in the world.

Not long ago in New York I met a prominent man who said to me, by way of introduction of himself, "I'm a Deano; I was born on Cooper street."

That's the spirit of affection which always dominates the splendid product, in pure womanhood and sterling manhood, that has come out of the old North End.

New Way to Treat the Hair

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle upon the hair.

There is a natural oil on the head that holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

The pores in the scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then the hair begins to fall out. Cleanliness is the one thing needed, and Birt's Head Wash is the ideal shampoo to bring it about. Its use will put the hair and scalp in a healthy, natural condition, so that faded, lifeless hair may resume its natural color and vigor.

Birt's Head Wash is made of Refined Creamy Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp, and doctors will tell you so if you ask them.

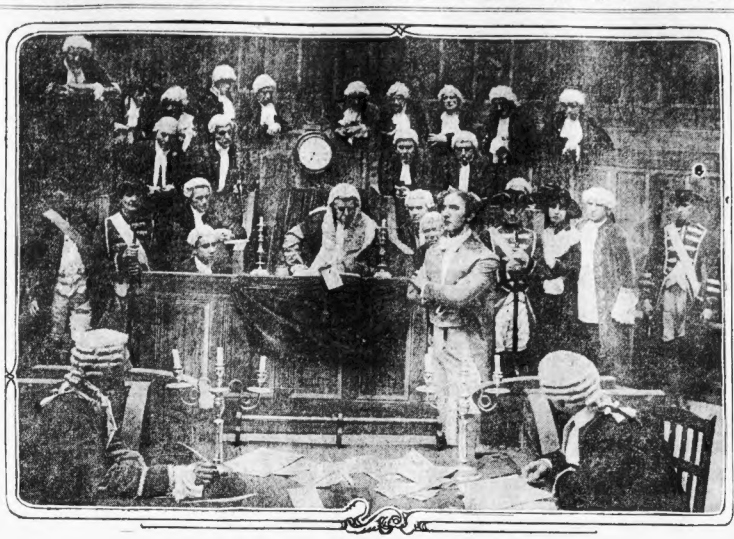
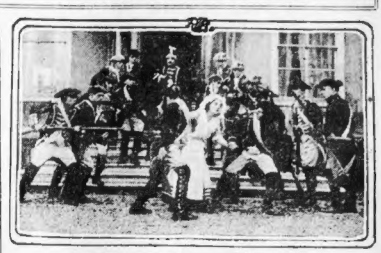
MANY STIRRING SCENES IN IRELAND'S HISTORY SHOWN IN MOVING PICTURES

Anne Devlin tortured to force her to betray Emmet.



Robert Emmet makes his famous speech after he has been sentenced to death.



Anne Devlin made prisoner by British soldiery.

Michael Dwyer tells his men where to meet for midnight drill.

John Philpott Curran denounces Lord Castlereagh in Irish Parliament.

Father Murphy, the rebel priest, asks blessing for his people.

Emmet and Sara Curran at their secret tryst.

Emmet taking leave of his sweetheart, Sara Curran.

NOW that Ireland has got home rule, the story of the struggle to obtain it becomes an interesting subject for the platform and the stage.

Through the agency of the moving picture the children of Irish parentage and race origin, of whom there are a vast multitude in Boston, are to have an opportunity of seeing for themselves, the story through motion pictures, which portray the leading figures and events of the Irish rebellion in which Emmett and his fiancee, the beautiful Sara Curran, Michael Dwyer, Father Murphy and many others bore brave and inspiring parts.

In all such national uprisings as that of Ireland in 1798, it is not the men alone who make cause against the enemy.

That was proved at Limerick when Sarsfield made his gallant defence of the ancient city and the women of Limerick fought beside their husbands and their brothers. It was also true in the insurrection of '98, when Emmet lost his life upon the scaffold after he had made the speech which has become a classic in the literature of oratory. Anne Devlin is a heroine worthy to be classed with Joan of Arc.

Public interest the world over follows the story of Emmet and his confreres. Children love it for its poetic bravery. Maturer minds are attracted to it by its nobility of sacrifice and its romantic fervor.

And then, when those figures, clothed in national color and surrounded by scenes of wonderful natural beauty, are placed in moving picture realism before the public an educational service of no mean order is accomplished.

The pictures to be shown in Boston deal with the arrest and the so-called trial of Emmet, with the midnight trysts between the young rebel leader and his sweetheart, Sara Curran, daughter of the great Irish orator, with the intrepid acts of Michael Dwyer and Father Murphy on the hills of Wicklow and Wexford.

These are the stirring events which began the long chain that stretched all through the nineteenth century and into the twentieth, finding its latest link in the consummation of the battle for home rule.

The pictures are to be shown at the National Theatre, beginning tomorrow. (The photographs on this page are copyrighted by the McNamara Film Company, Inc.)

THE LAST SHOT

A Story of War and Love, Told by a World-Famed War Correspondent. The Author Is Now at the Front

By FREDERICK PALMER

Copyright, 1914, by Clark Publishing Co. Copyright, 1914, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

THROUGH a rubber disk held to his ear in the closet of his bedroom a voice, tremulous with nervous fatigue, was giving Lanstron news that all his aircraft and cavalry and spies could not have gained; news worth more than a score of regiments; news fresh from the lips of the chief of staff of the enemy. The attack was to be made at the right of Engadir, its centre breaking from the redoubt manned by Fracasse's men.

"Marta, you genius!" Lanstron cried. "You are the real general! You——"

"Not that, please!" she broke in. "I'm as foul and depraved as a dealer in subtle poisons in the middle ages! Oh, the shame of it, while I look into his eyes and feign admiration, feign everything which will draw out his plans! I can never forget the sight of him as he told me how two or three or four hundred thousand men were to be crowded into a ram, as he called it—a ram of human flesh!—and guns enough to support, he said, to tear any redoubts to pieces; guns enough to make their shells as thick as the bullets from an automatic!"

"We'll meet ram with ram! We'll have some guns, too!" exclaimed Lanstron. "We'll send as heavy a shell fire at their infantry as they send into our redoubts."

"Don't. It's too like Westerling. It has become too trite!" she protested. "The end! If I really were helping toward that end to save lives and our country to its people, what would my private feelings matter? For that, any sacrifice. I'm only one human being—a weak, lunatic sort of one, just now!"

"Marta, don't suffer so! You are overwrought. You—"

"I can say all that for you, Lanny," she interrupted with the faintest laugh. "I've said it so many times to myself. Perhaps when I call you up again I shall not be so hysterical."

Lanstron was not thinking of war or war's combination when he hung up the receiver. It was some moments before he returned to the staff room, and then he had mastered his emotion. He was the soldier again.

COULD STILL SMILE.

An hour or so before the attack the telegraph instruments in the Galland House had become pregnantly silent. There were no more orders to give; no more reports to come from the troops in position until the assault was made. Officers of supply ceased to transmit routine matters over the wire, while they strained their eyes toward the range. Officers of the staff moved about restlessly, glancing at their watches and going to windows frequently to see if the mist still held.

No one entered the library where Westerling was seated alone with nothing to do. His suspense was that of the mothers who longed for news of their sons at the front; his helplessness that of a man in a hospital lobby waiting on the result of an operation whose success or failure will save or wreck his career. The physical desire of movement, the conflict with something in his own mind, drove him out of doors.

Westerling was rather pleased with the fact that he could still smile; pleased with the loyalty of this young officer when, day by day, the rest of the staff had grown colder and more mechanical in the attitude that completed his isolation. Walking vigorously along the path toward the tower, the exercise of his muscles, the feel of the cool, moist air on his face, brought back some of the buoyancy of spirit that he craved. A womth's figure, with a cape thrown over the shoulders and the head bare, loomed out of the mist.

"I couldn't stay in—not tonight," marta said, as Westerling drew near. "I had to see. It's only a quarter of an hour now, isn't it?"

"Our cause is at stake tonight," he declared, "yours and mine! We must win, you and I! It is our destiny!"

"You and I?" repeated Marta. "Why you and I?"

It seemed very strange to be thinking of any two persons when hundreds of thousands were awaiting the signal for the death prepared by him. He mistook the character of her thought in the obsession of his egotism.

THE LAW OF NATURE.

"What do lives mean?" he cried with a sudden desperation, his grip of her shoulders tightening. "It is the law of nature for man to fight. One trouble with our army is that it was sott from the want of war. It is the law of nature for the fittest to survive! Other sons will be born to take the place of those who die tonight. There will be all the more room for those who live. Victory will create new opportunities. What is a million out of the billions on the face of the earth? Those who lead alone count—those who dwell in the atmosphere of the peaks, as we do!" The pressure of his strong hands in the unconscious emphasis of his passion became painful, but she did not protest or try to draw away, thinking of his hold in no personal sense but as a part of his self-revelation. "All —all is at stake there!" he continued, staring toward the range. "It's the Rubicon! I have put my career on tonight's cast. Victory means that now!"

"Then this may be truly the end," thought Marta, "if the assault fails."

And silently she prayed that it would fail; while the flashes lighted Westerling's set features, implorin success.

* * * * *

In the Browns' headquarters, as in Galland's, telegraph instruments were silent after the preparations were over. Here, also, officers walked restlessly, glancing at their watches. They, too, were glad that the mist continued. It meant no wind. When the telegraph did speak it was with another message from some aeronautic officer saying, "Still favorable," which was taken at once to Lanstron, who was with the staff chiefs around the big table. They nodded at the news and smiled to one another; and some who had been seated sat down and others rose to begin pacing. Stresh.

"We could have emplaced two lines of automatics, one above the other!" exclaimed the chief of artillery.

"But that would have given too much of a climb for the infantry in going in—delayed the rush," said Lanstron.

"If they should stick — if we couldn't drive them back!" exclaimed the vice-chief of staff.

"I don't think they will!" said Lanstron.

FULL OF HORROR

To the others he seemed as cool as ever, even when his malmed hand was twitching in his pocket. But now, suddenly, his eyes starting as at a horror, he trembled passionately his head dropping forward, as if he would collapse.

"Oh, the murder of it—the murder!" he breathed.

"But they brought it on! Not for theirs, but for ours!" said the vice-chief of staff, laying his hand on Lanstron's shoulder.

"And we sit here while the go in!" Lanstron added. "There's a kind of justice about that which I can't get at. No, one of us here has been under fire!"

Even the minute of the attack they knew; and just before midnight they were standing at the window looking out into the night, while the vice-chief held his watch in hand. In the hush the faint sound of a dirigible's propeller high up in the heavens, muffled by the fog, was drowned by the Gray guns opening fire.

* * * * *

Before the mine exploded, by the light of the shell bursts breaking their vast prisms from central spheres of flames for miles, with the quick sequence of a moving-picture flicker, Fracasse's men could see one another's faces, spectral and stiff and pasty white, with teeth gleaming where jaws had dropped, some eyes half closed by the blinding flashes and some opened wide as if the lids were paralyzed. Faces and faces! A sea of faces stretching away down the slope—faces in a trance.

Up over the breastworks, over rocks and splintered timbers, Peterkin and the judge's son and their comrades clambered. When they moved they were as a myriad-legged creature, brain-numbed, without any sensation except that of rapids going over a fall. Those in front could not falter, being pushed on by the pressure of those in the rear. For a few steps they were under no fire. The scream of their own shells breaking in infernal pandemonium in front seemed to be a power as irresistible as the rear of the wedge in driving them on.

Then sounds more hideous than the flight of projectiles broke about them with the abruptness of lightnings held in the hollow of the Almighty's hand and suddenly released. The Browns' guns had opened fire. Explosions were even swifter in sequence than the flashes that revealed the stark faces. Dust and stones and flying fragments of flesh filled the air. Men went down in positive paralysis of fatalism by the terrific crashes. Sections of the ram were blown to pieces by the burst of a shrapnel shoulder high; other sections were lifted heavenward by a shell burst in the earth.

Peterkin fell with a piece of jagged steel embedded in his brain. He had gone from the quick to the dead so swiftly that he never knew that his charm had failed. The same explosion got Fracasse, sword in hand, and another buried him where he lay. The banker's son went a little farther; the barber's son still farther. Men who were alive hardly realized life, so mixed were life and death. Infernal imagination goes faint; its wildest similes grow feeble and banal before such a consummation of hell.

But the tide keeps on; the torn gaps of the ram are filled by the rushing legs from the rear. Officers urge and lead. Such are the orders; such is the duty prescribed; such is human bravery even in these days when life is sweeter to more in the joys of mind and body than ever before. Precision, organization, solidarity in this charge such as the days of the "death-or-glory" boys never knew! Over the bodies of Peterkin and the barber's and the banker's sons, plunging through shell craters, stumbling, staggering, cut by swaths and torn by eddies of red destruction in their ranks, the tide proceeds, until its hosts were oftener treading on flesh than on soil. And all they knew was to keep on—keep on, bayonet in hand, till they reached the redoubt, and there, they were to stay, alive or dead.

That is the duty prescribed; such is human bravery even in these days when life is sweeter to more in the joys of
